SPECIAL SESSION TO MEET THURSDAY

ALL HOPE GONE, MAYOR CERMAK GOES INTO COMA

Doctors Issue Bulletin, Giving Him Only Few Hours to Live.

THIRD TRANSFUSION ADMINISTERED HIM

Members of Family, Called to Bedside in Miami, Emerge Weeping.

Miami, Fla., (Monday), March 6 (A.P.).—Physicians of Mayor Anton Cermak early today relinquished hope for his life.

In a bulletin issued at 12:30 a. m., the physicians said Mayor Cermak was in a condition of coma and that he probably would live only a few hours.

The bulletin said Mr. Cermak was "failing rapidly." It was issued to newspapermen standing outside the mayor's combination room and sun porch several hours after a third blood transfusion had been administered in an attempt to save his life.

Lung Is Aspirated.

The mayor's right lung, punctured on the night of February 15 by a bullet from the pistol of the assassin, Giuseppe Zangara, was aspirated yesterday as physicians sought further information on his condition.

They said they found an gangrenous condition, basing their findings on the presence in the lung of "foul gas." They said they found no pus in the lung cavity.

Family Is Summoned.

Members of the family, summoned to the bedside, emerged weeping.

Joe Cermak, a brother, his wife and Mrs. John Kallal, a sister, came from the sun porch at 12:35 a. m. Mrs. Cermak and Mrs. Kallal took their seats on the lawn before the sun porch door and wept.

Vivian Graham, a granddaughter, emerged shortly and joined the group. Daughters of the mayor had been at his side a short time before.

London, March 5 (U.P.).—King George V was confined to Buckingham Palace today with a head cold which, while not considered serious, made it advisable for him to stay indoors.

20 Persons Drown In Mayaguez Flood

Damage in Puerto Rican City Estimated at $1,000,000.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 5 (A.P.).—Damage of more than $1,000,000 and the death of at least 20 persons resulted from a flood that swept Mayaguez Friday night, it was officially reported today.

Besides, many persons are missing, and it is believed they were washed out to sea by the flood of the Ya Guez River, swollen by 18 inches of rain, most of which fell in 12 hours.

More than 300 houses were destroyed in the city, a port on the Puerto Rican west coast, today's reports said. Probably 500 families are temporarily homeless.

CHINESE LOSE 1,000 BY BOMBARDMENT

Japanese Inflict Great Punishment in "Mopping Up" of Jehol Province.

Peiping, China (Monday), March 6 (U.P.).—Chinese troops, struggling to reach the Kupeikow and Haifengkow passes, were bombarded by Japanese today with losses exceeding 1,000, dispatches reaching Peiping said. More than 1,000 troopers from two of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's brigades alone were killed, wounded or are missing, it was reported.

The Japanese bombardment was being directed at Chinese troop concentrations on the Jehol side of the two passes, which are in the Dolonor region.

The Japanese apparently were carrying through their "mopping up" campaign after having taken possession of Chengteh-Fu, or Jehol City, capital of Jehol Province.

All Chinese forces left in Jehol after the seizure of Chengteh-Fu are being driven back through the passes toward Peiping in a systematic Japanese drive, it was indicated.

Marshal Chang's brigades, fighting in bitter winter weather in an effort to stave off the expulsion, number about 20,000.

Fears Felt for Safety Of Woman Missionary

Peiping, March 5 (A.P.).—Inquiries are being made here regarding the safety of Miss Harriet F. Minns, an American missionary, who was understood to have declined to leave Lingyuan, in Jehol Province, despite consular advice. Miss Minns is connected with the Christian Missions in many lands which has headquarters at Bath, England.

Lingyuan was taken last week by Japanese troops in their campaign for conquest of the northern Chinese Province of Jehol that resulted in the capture of the capital, Jehol City, Saturday.

Senator Howell Gains In Pneumonia Battle

(Associated Press.)

Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, was reported yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital to have shown a "distinct gain" for the day in his battle against pneumonia. "He is considerably improved," the report said.

Physicians said that while the senator still was dangerously ill, his condition was not so critical.

Topeka Mayor Declares ParkingTag Moratorium

Topeka, Kans., March 5 (A.P.).—Topeka motorists may ignore parking regulations with impunity while the banks of the State are operating on a restricted withdrawal plan.

Mayor Omar B. Ketchum ordered police to refrain from tagging motor cars for violations of traffic ordinances until such time as the banks release deposits.

American Navy Ready For California Games

San Pedro, Calif., March 5 (A.P.).—The 34,000 officers and men aboard the main battle units of the American Navy completed arrangements in San Pedro and San Diego bases tonight for four days of maneuvers off the coast of California and Mexico.

Movement of 134 ships under simulated war conditions will begin from the two bases at dawn tomorrow.

HITLER WINNER BY REICH VOTE; DICTATOR NEAR

4 SLAIN IN SPORADIC ELECTION DISORDERS

Nazis' Chief Given Power to Prevent Reds From Taking Their Seats.

Berlin (Monday), March 6 (A.P.).—Seventeen million voters out of 39,000,000 manifested their confidence in Chancellor Adolf Hitler in yesterday's Reichstag election, and demonstrated to President von Hindenburg that he sensed the desires of the German people rightly when he asked the chief of the Nazi Brown Shirts to take the helm of the ship of state.

In general, the election was carried on peacefully, although there were sporadic brawls in which four persons were killed and several injured.

One of the dramatic events of the day was an order by Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Nazi minister of interior, dismissing the Socialist Lord Mayor of Hamburg, to make way for a Nazi. After the order had been given, hundreds of Nazis took possession of the Hamburg City Hall, singing national and Nazi songs.

Dictatorship Looms.

Germany now is well on the way to Fascist dictatorship. Chancellor Hitler, by the vote of the people, has been given the legal tools to annihilate the last vestiges of the democracy, which he considers a failure.

The Nazis alone will command nearly 44 per cent of the votes in the new Reichstag and can dictate to their Nationalist coworkers in the government what must be done to shape a new Germany in accordance with Nazi ideals.

As the Nazis in their preelection campaign left no doubt that the Communist deputies would never be allowed to take their seats, the followers of Chancellor Hitler will in fact command a majority in the new Reichstag.

In Prussia, which elected a State Diet yesterday, the Nazi victory was equally sweeping. Thus in both the Reich and in its largest state no

10,000 Visitors View Mount Vernon Shrine

Place Is Open First Sunday in History to Public; Mrs. Roosevelt Attends; Inaugural Throngs Begin Return to Homes.

Ten thousand Americans who cheered the induction of the thirty-second President paid solemn tribute yesterday to the first President at his immortal home and resting place—Mount Vernon.

From prairie States and cities, from farms and villages, they made a pilgrimage by car along the magnificent new boulevard threading the Virginia bank of the Potomac—men, women and children. Mrs. Roosevelt and a party of twenty friends were among the distinguished visitors.

The occasion was one without precedent in the history of Mount Vernon, being the first time that the famous shrine has been open to the public on Sunday. This was done because the inaugural occurred on a Saturday, coupled with the unusual conditions existent throughout the Nation, it was explained.

Anxiety of visitors to return to their homes as soon as possible because of the tense banking situation was taken into consideration by the Mount Vernon Ladies Association of the Union in their decision to open the home on Sunday. Also, it was learned, a special request was made to the association by railroads and other transportation units to accommodate the public on this date.

The association, it was pointed out by Col. Harrison H. Dodge, resident superintendent of Mount Vernon for the past 45 years, has always been indisposed to open the home on a Sunday because of the large crowds that would congregate, imposing a burden on the house and grounds and resulting in a hurried inspection. The association has always felt that having the home open every day in the year except Sunday presented ample opportunity for visitors to the Capital to see the shrine if interested.

From the time the gates were opened at 9 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. when they were closed, a constant

INAUGURAL SERVICE CROWDS CATHEDRAL

Many Notables Attend Special Rites Commemorating Historic Event.

Visiting governors of States, virtually the entire Electoral College, high officials of the new administration, members of Congress, representatives of foreign nations, national notables and prominent Washingtonians made memorable the national patriotic service in Washington Cathedral yesterday afternoon in commemoration of the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

This was the first service ever held in Washington Cathedral in honor of a new Chief Magistrate. Pressure of public business due to the financial emergency prevented the attendance of Mr. Roosevelt at the service. Mrs. Roosevelt did not attend, either, but a number of relatives and close friends were in the congregation, which packed the great choir and sanctuary to the doors while hundreds waited on the steps of the north transept hoping for a chance to enter the edifice and participate in the service of praise and prayer. The sermon was preached by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

In this sermon he pledged the whole-hearted support of the Nation to the new President and his associates, and special prayers were offered for the President during the service. Bishop Freeman spoke from a crimson draped pulpit in the great choir, and took his text from the first two verses of Psalm 127, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it; except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain."

The times challenge both the wis-

ROOSEVELT ATTENDS WALSH RITES TODAY

Catholic Service in Senate Chamber to Be Held at 10 A. M.

President Roosevelt will attend the State funeral services for Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, at 10 a. m. today in the Senate chambers.

He will join congressional and Government dignitaries who will be present with diplomatic notables and members of the family at the impressive ritual of a Catholic ceremony, the second ever held in the chamber. The first, for Senator Kenna, of West Virginia, was about 25 years ago.

After the funeral, the body of the veteran Democratic leader whom President Roosevelt had chosen Attorney General, will lie in State for a short time before the long journey to its last resting place in Helena, Mont., is begun.

Interment will be in Resurrection Cemetery, in which the first Mrs. Walsh was buried in 1917. The burial rites will be solemnized Thursday, after church services in the Helena Cathedral.

Services in the Senate chamber will be in Latin and English, conducted by Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore, assisted by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore and pastor of St. Gabriel's Church in this city.

The grief-stricken widow, Mrs. Nieves Perez Chaumont Walsh, whom the senator married just a few days before his death en route to Washington from Florida on Thursday, rested yesterday in her apartment here.

With her were the senator's daughter, Mrs. Emmet C. Gudger, and a brother, John Walsh, and friends and other members of both families.

Roosevelt, in His Air Address To Legion, Asks Aid in Crisis

President, in First Postinaugural Speech, Declares That Necessities of Peace Are No Less Serious Than Those of War.

(Associated Press.)

In his first post-inaugural speech President Roosevelt last night told the American Legion that he invited its support and that "of all men and women who love their country, who know the meaning of sacrifice, and who, in every emergency, have given splendid and generous service to the Nation."

The speech was arranged some two weeks ago at the request of Louis Johnson, commander of the legion. The brief message was delivered at the White House, and broadcast over networks of the two radio chains.

The President said:

"I am glad that this, the first word addressed by me to the people of this country from the White House, can be dedicated to the great ideals of sacrifice and service. The men of the legion and indeed all veterans and all good citizens know that the essential things of life are related intimately to these two great words.

"The men of the ranks of the legion, in the trying days of 15 years ago, offered for the welfare and preservation of their country the ultimate contribution that a human being can give.

"The deep necessities of peace are no less serious. It is a mistake to assume that the virtues of war differ essentially from the virtues of peace. All life is a battle against the forces of nature, against the mistakes and human limitations of man, against the forces of selfishness and inertia, of laziness and fear. These

Merchants Sound Slogan While Approving Act of President.

BANK RULES MADE BY CLEARING HOUSE

Broadening of Credit Bounds for Customers Forecast During Holiday.

"Business as usual in Washington," was the slogan of the leading merchants of the Capital last night as they voiced a general approval of President Roosevelt's proclamation on the national bank holiday.

Immediately after the President's edict became known the Washington Clearing House announced that all banks and trust companies in the District will be closed today in all their departments.

Shortly after the proclamation became known a poll of the leading business men of the city demonstrated that there will be a broadening of credit to all customers. Virtually all of the business men expressed a willingness to honor the checks of their customers, just as they did before the holiday.

Effect of President's Edict.

The proclamation of the President obviated the imposition of general banking restrictions, which was being planned by the office of the Comptroler of the Currency and the Washington Clearing House Association.

The executive committee of the Washington Clearing House Association held several sessions yesterday. It had been preparing for the invocation of the banking restrictions, but the action was made unnecessary because of the presidential proclamation.

That there will be another statement issued today by the Clearing House Association was indicated in their statement that the local banks will remain closed in all departments today. Any relaxation of the absolute restrictions on banking will be contingent upon regulations which the Secretary of the Treasury may issue with the approval of the President.

For instance, if the Secretary of

Grayson Sheriff Is Shot to Death

Man He Tried to Question Kills Him Without Any Warning.

Independence, Va., March 5 (A.P.).—Sheriff C. C. McKnight, of Grayson County, was shot to death about 6 miles east of here at 7 o'clock tonight when he sought to question Posey Sexton about threats Sexton was alleged to have made against members of the family where he was visiting.

When approached in the kitchen of the home of Tom Isom, on route 12, between Galax and Independence, Sexton drew a pistol and fired twice at the sheriff without warning, witnesses said.

One of the bullets took effect in the right chest, killing McKnight almost instantly.

Britain Is Considering Early Gandhi Release

London, March 5 (U.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi may be released from prison at Poona, India, shortly, it was indicated in well-informed quarters.

Release of the Nationalist leader is being considered because there is little danger that civil disobedience will be renewed in India, it was said.

EMBARGO PLACED ON GOLD EXPORTS IN PROCLAMATION

National System for Clearing House Certificates to Be Emergency Circulating Medium in Holiday.

UNPRECEDENTED PEACE STEP TAKEN TO PREVENT HOARDING

Congress Call Issued After Sunday Meeting of Cabinet to Devise Program; Financiers Here to Confer.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Proclaiming a compelling national emergency, President Roosevelt last night placed a temporary embargo on gold exports, and ordered all banks throughout the country to suspend operations through next Thursday.

The proclamation also provides for a Nation-wide system of clearing-house certificates as an emergency circulating medium, and establishes unprecedented peace-time measures to eliminate gold hoarding.

By thus establishing a uniform bank holiday from coast to coast, the new President undertook to conserve the Nation's bank resources and to provide a substitute circulating medium with which to meet excessive demands for currency.

As the far-reaching presidential manifesto was formally made public at the White House shortly after 11 o'clock last night, Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin and members of the Federal Reserve Board stood by in the Treasury Building ready to throw the emergency machinery into action immediately.

Special Session Called for Thursday.

Five hours earlier, the President, following an extraordinary Sunday afternoon meeting with his entire Cabinet, had formally summoned a special session of the Seventy-third Congress to assemble at noon Thursday to enact a broad-gauge legislative program designed to rescue the country from complete financial paralysis.

The four-day banking holiday is calculated to stabilize the financial situation until the emergency legislative program can be formally presented on Capitol Hill.

Technical abandonment of the international gold standard is involved in the drastic holiday proclamation, and until the emergency decrees expire at midnight next Thursday, gold payments at home are suspended.

Statutory authority for the presidential orders was found in a section of the wartime trading-with-the-enemy act, and in sections of the Federal Reserve laws.

The preface to the President's proclamation cited penalties up to $10,000, or imprisonment up to ten years, for persons found guilty of hoarding.

"National Emergency."

In issuing the call for the special session of Congress, President Roosevelt said he would present "an immediate program directed to meet the present monetary emergency." The details of this program, however, were not officially revealed. Until the Congress can be swung into action, however, the Federal Government has complete command of America's monetary gold supplies.

After declaring that the heavy gold withdrawals of the last ten days, both for export ear-marking and for domestic hoarding had "created a national emergency," the presidential proclamation set forth that "it is in the best interests of all bank depositors that a period of respite be provided with a view to preventing further hording of coin, bullion or currency, or speculation in foreign exchange, and permitting the application of appropriate measures to protect the interests of our people."

The document next cited the statutory authority for the Chief Executive's assumption of plenary emergency powers in relation to gold supplies. The final paragraph of the preamble alluded to the penalties prescribed by the war-time trading act for hoarding and other conduct violative of emergency decrees.

The objective of the decree, as set forth in the official text, is "to pres-

Proclamation Closing Banks for Four Days

(Associated Press.)

Whereas there have been heavy and unwarranted withdrawals of gold and currency from our banking institutions for the purpose of hoarding; and

Whereas continuous and increasingly extensive speculative activity abroad in foreign exchange has resulted in severe drains on the Nation's stocks of gold; and

Whereas these conditions have created a national emergency; and

Whereas it is in the best interests of all bank depositors that a period of respite be provided with a view to preventing further hoarding of coin, bullion or currency or speculation in foreign exchange and permitting the application of appropriate measures to protect the interests of our people; and

Whereas it is provided in section 5 (B) of the act of October 6, 1917 (40 Stat. L. 411), as amended, "that the President may investigate, regulate, or prohibit, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, by means of licenses or otherwise, any transactions in foreign exchange and the export, hoarding, melting, or earmarking of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency, * * *"; and

Whereas it is provided in section 16 of the said act "that whoever shall willfully violate any of the provisions of this act or of any license, rule, or regulation issued thereunder, and whoever shall willfully violate, neglect, or refuse to comply with any order of the President issued in compliance with the provisions of this act, shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than $10,000, or, if a natural person, imprisoned for not more than ten years, or both, * * *;

Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in view of such national emergency and by virtue of the authority vested in me by said act, and in order to prevent the export, hoarding, or earmarking of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency, do hereby proclaim, order, direct and declare that from Monday, the sixth day of March, to Thursday, the ninth day

SENATE DEMOCRATS ASSIGN JOBS TODAY

Robinson Is Expected to Be Renamed Floor Leader at Party Caucus.

(Associated Press.)

Senate Democrats will caucus today to agree upon an organization and will be ready for action when the special session called for next Thursday is convened by Speaker Rainey and Vice President Garner.

Republicans will hold their organization conference tomorrow, after which all committee chairmanships and assignments to committee posts will have been achieved. Republican chairmen, of course, moved back to the top of the minority lists to make way for the Democrats, who have been out of control since 1918.

Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, is expected to be renamed Democratic floor leader, while Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, is scheduled to become minority chieftain. McNary was assistant Republican leader under "Jim" Watson, of Indiana, who was defeated for reelection along with many other G. O. P. veterans.

Pittman Is in Line.

Who will take George Moses' place as President pro tempore is the biggest question in dispute, although Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, is in line for it along with the chairmanship of the powerful foreign relations committee.

The President pro tem, who presides over the Senate in the absence of the Vice President—and this is quite frequent—is not elected for a specific term as it is one of those "at the pleasure of the Senate" posts.

Other important Democratic chairmanships are likely to go to the following: Appropriations, Carter Glass, of Virginia; Rules, Robinson, of Arkansas; Agriculture, Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina; Banking, Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida; Commerce, Morris Sheppard, of Texas; Finance, Pat Harrison, of Mississippi; Immigration, William H. King, of Utah; Interstate Commerce, Clarence C. Dill, of Washington; Judiciary, Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona; Military Affairs, Hugo L. Black, of Alabama; Naval, Park Trammel, of Florida, and Lands, John B. Kendrick, of Wyoming.

The Republicans will go through the formality of naming candidates for President pro tem and other elective places, but they are in a hopeless minority and Democratic nominations will be equivalent to election.

Some fireworks are expected in the Republican caucus, however. Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, has served notice he will seek to discipline the Republican independents who openly supported Roosevelt for President by denying them committee posts or by putting them on the bottom of the lists. McNary is opposed to this move and looks for its defeat.

The independents themselves have replied with the threat that the regulars "better watch out or they will be the ones read out of the party."

The four independents at which Reed is shooting are Johnson, of California, who participated in the Roosevelt conference yesterday, resulting in the call of the special session; La Follette, of Wisconsin; Norris, of Nebraska, and Cutting, of New Mexico.

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT BANK PROCLAMATION

of March, nineteen hundred and thirty-three, both dates inclusive, there shall be maintained and observed by all banking institutions and all branches thereof located in the United States of America, including the Territories and Insular Possessions, a bank holiday, and that during said period all banking transactions shall be suspended. During such holiday, excepting as hereinafter provided, no such banking institution or branch shall pay out, export, earmark, or permit the withdrawal or transfer in any manner or by any device whatsoever, of any gold or silver coin or bullion or currency or take any other action which might facilitate the hoarding thereof; nor shall any such banking institution or branch pay out deposits, make loans or discounts, deal in foreign exchange, transfer credits from the United States to any place abroad, or transact any other banking business whatsoever.

During such holiday the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, under such regulations as he may prescribe, is authorized and empowered (a) to permit any or all of such banking institutions to perform any or all of the usual banking functions, (b) to direct, require or permit the issuance of clearing house certificates or other evidences of claims against assets of banking institutions, and (c) to authorize and direct the creation in such banking institutions of special trust accounts for the receipt of new deposits which shall be subject to withdrawal on demand without any restriction or limitation and shall be kept separately in cash or on deposit in Federal Reserve banks or invested in obligations of the United States.

As used in this order the term "banking institutions" shall include all Federal Reserve banks, national banking associations, banks, trust companies, savings banks, building and loan associations, credit unions, or other corporations, partnerships, associations or persons engaged in the business of receiving deposits, making loans, discounting business paper, or transacting any other form of banking business.

Machado Declares 3-Day Bank Holiday

Cuban President Makes Exemptions to Cover Customs and Taxes.

Havana, Cuba, March 5 (U.P.).—A three-day banking holiday, effective tomorrow, was decreed today by President Gerardo Machado.

The moratorium was called after the president had engaged in lengthy conferences with bankers, members of the clearing house and Finance Secretary Octavio Averhoff. The decree was issued at the request of bankers whose institutions had been subjected to moderate runs Saturday.

New York, Boston and Canadian banks have many branches here. The National City Bank of New York is a $100,000,000 institution in Cuba, with more than 20 branches on the island. President Machado, in his decree, declared that "holders of current accounts may emit quantities sufficient for payment of customs duties and taxes."

Banking Holiday Oddities

Church's Silver Helps Out; Old Size Bill Reappears; All Checks Now Rubber Ones, Says Gerguson in Effect.

New York, March 5 (A.P.).—Incidents of the bank holiday:

The Commodore Hotel, running low on change, sent a clerk around to several churches to exchange dollar bills for the silver in the collection plates.

A taxi driver received one of the old, large-size dollar bills from a fare.

The executives of a chain cafeteria, which operates on a nickel-in-the slot system, went into conference to devise a way of stopping persons from obtaining nickels at its change booths and walking out without buying anything.

Harry Gerguson, also known as "Prince Michael Romanoff," was reported by the cashier of the St. Moritz Hotel, on Central Park South, to be greatly distressed over the situation. Gerguson was said to have observed that "a great many people's checks now are as good as those of a great many others."

A chain grocery store announced it would refuse to make change for purchasers at odd prices above 50 cents. Customers whose bill comes to 89 cents, for instance, will have to buy something else for 11 cents or else establish credit for that amount.

Authorities of Nassau County, on Long Island, prepared to issue scrip in denominations of $1, $2, $4, $5 and $10—because that is the amount paid to the unemployed.

Change-makers in the subway are giving the customers two dimes and a nickel for a quarter, instead of three nickels and a dime.

ALL BANKS CLOSED 4 DAYS; CONGRESS TO MEET THURSDAY

vent the export, hoarding or earmarking of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency."

To achieve these ends, the order directed "that from Monday, the sixth day of March, to Thursday, the ninth day of March, 1933, both dates inclusive, there shall be maintained and observed by all banking institutions and all branches thereof located in the United States of America, including the Territories and insular possessions, a bank holiday, and that during said period all banking transactions shall be suspended."

During the holiday, no bank shall be permitted to withdraw or transfer "in any manner or by any device whatsoever," any gold or silver coin or bullion or currency "or take any other action which might facilitate the hoarding thereof."

"Nor shall any such banking institution or branch pay out deposits, make loans or discounts, deal in foreign exchange, transfer credits from the United States to any place abroad, or transact any other banking business whatsoever."

Dictatorial Powers.

After these all-inclusive powers are proclaimed, the text confers upon the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, "and under such regulations as he (the President) may prescribe," the authority to permit certain banks to resume their normal functions, and to direct, require or permit "the issuance of clearing house certificates or other claims against assets of banking institutions."

A third qualifying clause authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury, also with the approval of the President, to direct banknig operations of every category in such institutions as may be permitted to function through the holiday period.

The broad definition of terms, as provided in the final section of the 600-word proclamation, left no doubt that State banks, as well as National, are subject to the extraordinary decrees.

During the life of the proclamation therefore, and longer should Congress authorize extension of its previsions beyond Thursday, dictatorial control of banking operations is vested in the White House.

Asks Faith in President.

Immediately after publication of the Presidential proclamation, Secretary Woodin and his advisers began the preparation of regulations to govern the issuance of a uniform clearing house scrip throughout the country.

In announcing these plans, Secretary Woodin repeated that the emergency action did not signalize the United States' abandonment of the gold exchange standard.

"The United States is not off the gold standard," Secretary Woodin said. "This is the start of the real thing. I think we're on the bottom and will not go lower. If people will have confidence in the great leader in the White House the country will get out of these difficulties quite readily."

After a day of momentous conferences with some of the country's leading bankers, with legislative leaders and his own intimate advisers on economic affairs, President Roosevelt signed the banking decrees in the second-floor oval study of the White House a few minutes before 11 o'clock. The text was immediately made public at the executive offices, and fiscal officers of the new administration set in at once to perfecting the necessary administrative regulations.

Scrip Plan Launched.

So far-reaching and drastic was the executive proclamation that comment upon it was withheld last night in banking circles. Similarly, members of the House and Senate declined to comment on the drastic action until time had been offered for a thorough analysis of the proclamation.

A few hours before formal announcement of the President's orders, the New York Clearing House Association had disclosed plans for launching its scrip issues today. Philadelphia and Cleveland had previously announced such plans.

Democratic leaders in Congress, who had been in conference with the President late in the afternoon, anticipated the holiday proclamation as early as 4 p. m. yesterday. The official announcement was delayed, however, until every detail of the legal authority had been checked, and also until the United States diplomatic representatives in the principal foreign capitals could be informed of the President's decision.

While national banking leaders and Treasury officials conducted a telephonic survey of banking and credit conditions in every important Federal Reserve center of the country, and while the President and his advisers whipped their emergency legislative program into shape at the White House, officers of the District of Columbia Clearing House Association conferred on ways and means to carry on in Washington for the period of the emergency.

Roosevelt's Statement.

Soon after the publication of the official proclamation calling the new Congress into special session, the White House released the following statement by President Roosevelt:

"Anticipating the meeting of the Congress on Thursday, I am preparing an immediate program directed to meet the present monetary emergency. It is, of course, essential that the first business before the Congress will be the present banking and financial situation."

Following is the text of the presidential proclamation of the special session:

"Whereas public interests require that the Congress of the United States should be convened in extra session at 12 o'clock noon, on the ninth day of March, 1933, to receive such communication as may be made by the Executive;

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the Congress of the United States to convene in extra session at the Capitol in the City of Washington, on the ninth day of March, 1933, at 12 o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as members thereof are hereby required to take notice.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, &c."

Events on Three Fronts.

Yesterday's historic events developed swiftly on three fronts, with representatives of President Roosevelt's economic advisory staff of university professors darting frequently from conference to conference as momentous decisions approached.

The financial conference in the Federal Reserve Board rooms at the Treasury began at 10 a. m., recessed for luncheon soon after 1 o'clock, resumed an hour later and continued until 6 o'clock. The third session of this group assembled at 8:30 p. m.

Participants in these discussions, besides the members of the Federal Reserve Board, included Secretary Woodin, former Secretary Ogden L. Mills, Assistant Secretary Douglas and Gov. George L. Harrison, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Mortimer N. Buckner, chairman of the New York Trust Co., and president of the New York Clearing House Association, headed the delegation of New York bankers, which also included George W. Davison, chairman of the Central-Hanover Bank & Trust Co.; Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., and S. Parker Gilbert, a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgon & Co. Jesse Jones, a member of the R. F. C. Board, also sat in at the sessions. The Chicago bankers were represented by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank, and J. R. Leavell, of the Continental-Illinois group.

Prof. Raymond I. Moley, President Roosevelt's principal campaign adviser on economic affairs, and Prof. A. A. Berle, also of Columbia University, assisted Secretary Woodin in presenting the many-sided picture of the country's immediate banking needs.

Mr. Davison's presence attracted particular attention, because of the fact that he is recognized generally as the author of the clearing house scrip plan applied so successfully in New York in the panic of 1907. Prof. Berle is recognized as an authority on capital movements and national fiscal structures.

Although the problem of the Federal Government's gigantic March 15 financing, involving some $694,000,000 in short-term loans maturities, was discussed during the day, the major attention of the gathering centered upon the more urgent problem of providing some workable substitute for money immediately in the principal financial centers.

First Cabinet Meeting.

As the Treasury conference resumed after the luncheon recess, President Roosevelt summoned his Cabinet to its first formal session, in the second floor oval study of the White House. This historic session continued for something more than two hours, but the participants were reluctant to discuss the outcome pending the President's official announcement.

Immediately after the Cabinet meeting, congressional leaders of the Democratic side were assembled at the White House to hear President Roosevelt's formal proclamation of the special session and to formulate plans for executing the legislative program.

Soon after the Cabinet meeting came reports that a Presidential proclamation placing an embargo on gold exports might be expected soon. This, however, was not discussed by the congressional leaders as they left the White House.

Neither would members of the Cabinet confirm persistent reports that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing had been working overtime Saturday and Sunday to prepare the essential issues of clearing-house bank scrip for New York.

Woodin Bespeaks Courage.

Those who participated in the legislative conference included Vice President Garner, Speaker-designate Rainey, Democratic Leader Byrns, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader; Representative Snell, minority leader of the House; Senator Hiram Johnson, of California; Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, and Director of the Budget Douglas.

White House officials had planned to invite Senator McNary, interim Republican leader, but were unable to locate him hurriedly.

Fully informed as to the bankers' discussions in the Treasury, Prof. Moley was invited to attend the Cabinet session with Secretary Woodin.

Leaving the White House after the decision on banking policy, Mr. Woodin remarked that he felt "ten years younger" than when the historic session began.

Earlier in the day he had told newspaper men at the Treasury that the extraordinary Sunday conferences would assuredly provide an adequate emergency program.

"We are going over the whole country, by telephone," he said. "It is a terrific job, but we are getting along. The one thing I hope is that the people of the country will have courage, and all kinds of confidence in us. We are going to pull this thing together."

40 Billions in Banks Temporarily "Frozen"

(United Press.)

More than $40,000,000,000 in bank deposits throughout the United States will be temporarily "frozen" under the emergency banking proclamation issued last night by President Roosevelt.

The June 30, 1932, report of the Comptroller of the Currency showed total deposits of all reporting banks in the United States as $45,390,269,000. Since then deposits have been depleted by withdrawals from many banks.

Total resources of the reporting banks at that time amounted to $57,245,131,000.

U.S. STAYS ON GOLD; WOODIN IS EMPHATIC

Cites Switzerland, Which Is on Standard, but Forbids Exportation of Metal.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Woodin, in amplifying the President's proclamation, said emphatically last night that the United States was not off the gold standard.

"Any such interpretation upon the President's pronouncement is a grave mistake," he said, adding that it was in a state of "managed currency." In this connection he called attention to Switzerland, which he said is on the gold standard, but forbids the exportation of gold.

The Secretary declared that the President's proclamation was the result of the last several days' conferences betwen financial leaders at the White House and in the Treasury, and while the plan was still in its early stages it would be in good shape by this morning.

He said that inasmuch as one of the features of the plan was designed to stop gold hoarding, he felt that it was within the purview of the Secretary of the Treasury to exercise broad powers, but that nothing definite along this line had been worked out.

The suggestion of clearing house certificates or scrip had not been gone in to the extent of permitting them to decide at this time whether they would be interstate in character, or whether their use would be confined to State limits.

Postal savings funds will be temporarily inaccessible due to the closing of all banking institutions, except isolated ones. These isolated institutions would have to be excepted by special order of the Secretary.

The Secretary has interpreted the proclamation to mean that the Treasury can refuse gold redemption on notes, and that this action will be taken if he considers it advisable.

Indication was given that the cash windows of the Treasury would be closed for the period of the holiday.

He said that commodity and security markets were not affected by the presidential edict.

Woodin described the President's step as a definite start upward from the bottom.

"The people of the United States have courage," he said. "If they will have confidence now, we will get out of our trouble rapidly."

The conferences at the Treasury, which lasted through the day and much of the night, were adjourned until today.

5,000 Americans In Italy Affected

Express Company Refuses to Cash Personal Checks of Travelers.

Rome, March 5 (U.P.).—More than 5,000 Americans in Italy are being affected by the banking holidays in the United States, according to an estimate by the American Embassy.

While the American Express Co. continues to honor letters of credit drawn on the larger banks, it has absolutely refused to risk cashing any personal checks.

An official of the company said, "We will pay anything drawn on us. We have never yet failed to honor any of our own paper. We paid every cent that was demanded at the outbreak of the war, and we will do so now."

Cable companies reported they were exceedingly busy today transmitting requests to the United States for money.

Canadian Banker Gives His Views on Holiday

Montreal, March 5 (A.P.).—The only reaction to Canada of the modified banking holiday in the United States is likely to be a general slowing up of trade with that country for a few days, Morris W. Wilson, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, stated today.

It was purely a local matter for the United States, Mr. Wilson added. The situation would undoubtedly be squared away within a short time. Naturally, he pointed out, it would be difficult to do business with the United States between now and Thursday.

"Scrip" Idea Very Old; 1820 Bill Redeemable

Edmonton, Alberta, March 5 (A.P.).—Proving the "scrip" idea, now being used in many American cities, is an old one, an Edmonton man today showed a Hudson's Bay Co. scrip note signed at London May 4, 1820.

Although more than 100 years old, the note can be cashed today for its face value of 1 pound.

Japan Closes Markets And Foreign Exchanges

Tokio, Monday, March 6 (U.P.).—Foreign exchanges and all other markets except the Rice Exchange closed throughout the Japanese Empire today because of the American banking situation.

Other banking business here remained normal.

Roosevelt Speech Pleasing to Italy

Dictatorial Power Plan Meets Support in Roman Circles.

Rome, March 5 (U.P.).—President Franklin D. Roosevelt's inaugural address in Washington was hailed widely in Italian political circles today as indicating the dawn of a new era of hope for the world's economic rehabilitation.

Mr. Roosevelt's intention of asking for virtual dictatorial power was especially pleasing to Italians, who consider it as emphasizing the efficacy of dictatorship in government.

The newspaper Popolo di Roma said that "rarely has a man assumed power so awaited and rarely has he been faced with such a difficult task. We extend our well wishes to President Roosevelt, not only because Italy has always been friendly to the United States, but because if Ameries is saved, the whole world will be saved."

GOVERNORS STUDY BANKING SITUATION

State Executives Stay Here to Keep in Touch With National Crisis.

(Associated Press.)

Banking, a subject missing from the original agenda for the governors' conference today with President Roosevelt, dominated the thoughts and discussions yesterday of State executives who remained in Washington for the meeting.

Every governor who stayed for the gathering kept in constant touch throughout the day with the situation back home. And Gov. Ira C. Blackwood of South Catrolina, announced he had decided to declare a seven-day banking holiday in his State, starting today.

A little while before Gov. Talmadge of Georgia said he had extended the holiday in that State through Thursday. Others were ready to take similar action if they felt it necessary.

The emergency situation kept some of those who were most enthusiastic about results to be obtained from the White House meeting at home, or called them hurriedly away from the Capital after the inauguration.

Ely Pleased at Start.

The call for the gathering from Mr. Roosevelt in February brought this response from Gov. Ely of Massachusetts: "It is a splendid start."

The Massachusetts executive remained here only long enough for a radio speech into New England on the situation and then caught an East-bound train to present a relief program to the Massachusetts Legislature today.

At the time Mr. Roosevelt issued the conference call he outlined mortgage relief, Federal aid to the unemployed, conflicting State and Federal taxes, consolidation of Government and State agencies to reduce taxes, flood control, reforestation and the eliminating of marginal lands from cultivation as subjects he felt could be talked over with the State heads to mutual profit.

Keep in Close Touch.

Necessarily, banking will be added to the list, although there had been no concerted move by the governors here to request specific moves by the Government to aid in the emergency, nor had any concrete program for cooperation with the Federal authorities in the emergency been drawn.

Many of those remaining, however, felt that by keeping closely in touch with developments out of business and Cabinet conferences here that they would be better prepared to take additional action in their States—if need developed—than if they went back to their capitals.

Among the executives who planned to remain or to arrive in time to attend were: Govs. Miller of Alabama, Sholtz of Florida, Talmadge of Georgia, Ross of Idaho, Herring of Iowa, Comstock of Michigan, Ehringhaus of North Carolina, White of Ohio, Gifford of Pennsylvania, McAlister of Tennessee, Conner of Mississippi, Miller of Wyoming, Pollard of Virginia, Wilson of Vermont, Winant of New Hampshire, Laffoon of Kentucky, Horner of Illinois, Langer of North Dakota, Blackwood of South Carolina, Schmedeman of Wisconsin, Buck of Delaware, Kump of West Virginia, McNutt of Indiana and Green of Rhode Island.

Insurance Checks Mailed as Usual

Payment, However, Is Not Guaranteed Due to Bank Holidays.

New York, March 5 (A.P.).—Bank holidays in the various States are not affecting the payments of the life insurance companies to policyholders and beneficiaries, it was said today by the president of one of the leading life companies.

Checks are going forward as usual, it was said, but the companies can not guarantee their immediate conversion into cash in regions where holidays have caused a temporary suspension of banking operations.

Policyholders who have reached the end of their period of grace before payment of premiums need not fear the loss of their policies it was asserted by another official, regardless of what may happen in the banking situation, unless it is determined that they have or had not sufficient funds to their credit either in closed banks or uncashed pay checks to meet the payments at the time of the occurrence of personal emergencies.

Man, 21, May Lose Eye As Result of Collision

Jack Myrs, 21, of Roundhill, Va., may lose the sight of one eye as the result of injuries received last night when his automobile collided with another machine and overturned on the Lee highway near Lyon Village.

Myrs was taken to Georgetown Hospital in a passing car, where he was found to be suffering severe lacerations of the face and eye. An eye specialist, who operated on him shortly after his arrival at the hospital, said the eye might be saved.

CONSTRUCTIVE STEP, BANK OFFICIALS SAY

Some State Action Could Be Viewed as Technically Dropping Gold Basis.

New York, March 5 (A.P.).—Banking authorities tonight described President Roosevelt's proclamation as a constructive move, permitting the issue of a large amount of clearing house certificates to augment currency in circulation to finance business transactions during the period of the emergency.

Some banking authorities said the suspension of gold and currency exports could be considered as "technically" removing the United States from the gold standard, but only for the period of the banking holiday terminating Thursday, although Treasury Secretary Woodin stated in Washington that the United States was not off the gold standard.

In any case, banking authorities in New York felt that it was idle to speculate as to whether the country was on or off gold, since the measure was to be effective only for a few days.

BUSINESS AS USUAL, MERCHANTS ASSERT

the Treasury should issue a regulation that safe deposits banks may be opened, or that relief fund accounts may be drawn upon, or that withdrawals may be made to pay taxes or to meet pay rolls, then the Clearing House Association would likely issue another statement embodying whatever exemptions may be made.

To aid the public, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association has called a meeting for 10 a. m. today at which a program will be mapped to facilitate the extension of credit to customers. The meeting was called by James Colliflower, the president.

All local firms were urged by Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Chamber of Commerce, to do everything in their power to facilitate credit and to stimulate business.

Littlepage Statement:

In a formal statement last night, he said:

"President Roosevelt's proclamation of a four-day bank holiday—from Monday to Thursday of this week—places a definite obligation on the shoulders of Washington business men to carry on under this arduous but necessary restriction with as little inconvenience as possible to the general public and to business.

"In this emergency it is proper that I speak for all members of the Washington Chamber of Commerce urging local business firms to do everything in their power during such period to insure the uninterrupted flow of business by the extension of credit facilities where essential and by any other services that may be necessary to prevent undue hardships."

Says It Is "Best Thing."

One prominent merchant declared last night that the President's proclamation was "the best thing that could have happened. It will prevent hysterics and resultant wholesale withdrawals from banks and will enable the financial institutions to retain their solvency until measures can be taken to relieve the crisis."

Credit business would go on as usual, it was said, with credit facilities being extended to new customers as in ordinary procedure.

There was a general belief among business men that all food stores, both chain and private, would act immediately to extend credit to customers and that wholesalers would be equally liberal in their credit grants to the smaller stores.

Reception Is Held For Connecticut

Gov. Cross Is Unable to Attend Because of Dates at Home.

The Connecticut State Society last night held an inaugural dinner and reception at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments. Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, who was the guest of honor, had to leave for Connecticut early yesterday and was unable to attend.

Among the guest speakers were Senator Frederic C. Walcott, who spoke on the Government, and Senator Augustine Lonergan, whose topic was economic conditions throughout the country.

The program, which was under the direction of Dr. Charles E. Morganston, was opened by Edward J. Lang, president of the Association, who welcomed the inaugural visitors. The guests were: Representative and Mrs. Schuyler; Representative and Mrs. Edward W. Goss; Mrs. John Q. Tilson; William D. L. Starbuck, and Ira M. Ornburn.

HOOVER TAKES AUTO DRIVE INTO COUNTRY

Former President to Remain in Close Touch With Bank Situation.

New York, March 5 (A.P.).—Entering his first period of private citizenship for nearly a score of years, Herbert Clark Hoover today apparently threw off completely the cares of office, motored into Connecticut to visit friends and rested.

Even as a citizen, however, Mr. Hoover kept himself informed of the banking crisis and other national affairs, almost as a matter of habit. Lawrence Richey, his personal secretary for many years, and his friends here saw to that.

But when the former President left the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where he has taken an apartment high in the tower overlooking Manhattan, he drove without ceremony or a motorcycle escort out of the city. In a leisurely 2-hour drive, he went to New Canaan, Conn., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard, friends of many years standing and frequent White House guests.

Plans for his stay here remained uncertain. Richey said no passage had yet been booked on any steamer sailing for Panama and the Pacific Coast. The Hoover party had intended originally to depart last night aboard the Liner Pennsylvania.

There was a possibility that Mr. Hoover might travel to California by train rather than by boat. Mrs. Hoover and Herbert Hoover, jr., left the special train from Washington at Philadelphia yesterday to go to Palo Alto. In any event, Richey said, Mr. Hoover will not halt his trip to fish in Panama as originally planned.

COMMITTEE URGES EMBARGO ON GOLD

Guarantee of Bank Deposits Also Asked by Trade and Farm Leaders.

New York, March 5. (U.P.).—Urging an immediate embargo on the export of gold, the Committee for the Nation, an informal gathering of 50 nationally known business and agricultural leaders formed to study the national economic situation, released its first report here tonight.

The report also suggests a suspension of specie payments, and an adequate Federal guarantee of all existing bank deposits, accompanied by congressional declaration of an intention to take necessary legislative monetary action to insure an advance in the general commodity level.

The report was signed by Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank; Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman, Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Vincent Bendix, president, Bendix Aviation, Chicago; J. H. Rand, jr., president, Remington Rand, Inc., Buffalo; B. L. Winchell, chairman, Remington Typewriter Co., New York; John Henry Hammond, chairman, Bangor & Aroostook Railroad, and Gen. R. E. Wood, president, Sears, Roebuck, Chicago, as the directing committee of the large committee of the Nation.

It was brought to the attention of President Roosevelt and members of the new administration and telegraphed to each member of the House and Senate Banking Committee yesterday. The report is the outcome of an intensive study of the national economic situation covering a period of several months.

Mosquitoes Travel on Ice To Bite Paralysis Patients

Columbia, S. C., March 5 (A.P.).—The idea of carrying a mosquito 900 miles on ice to bite a person may appal fishermen and hunters, but scientists here find it the most advantageous way to treat certain forms of paralysis at present.

The mosquito in his new role of doctor has proven so beneficial to patients afflicted with paresis, or paralysis of the brain, that the United States Health Service has established a mosquito farm at the State Hospital here for Nation-wide distribution of the insects.

Dr. Bruce Mayne, Public Health surgeon in charge of the mosquito depot and local research work, has carried, or shipped his tiny wards to States as distant as Maine, Texas, Pennsylvania and Florida on errands of mercy.

Dr. C. Fred Williams, superintendent of the State Hospital, lauded Mayne's research successes as "a wonderful contribution to humanity" through what the average man calls "that d——d mosquito."

Malaria germs infused in patients suffering with paresis were proven a remedy to the satisfaction of the medical world in 1924. Originally performed by direct blood transfusion, the process next took advantage of the mosquito and his natural needle.

Dr. Mayne's present task is the production of a therapeutic agent from mosquito organisms, to replace the mosquito-bite treatment.

Through a delicate process of extracting malaria organisms from the salivary glands of the insects, Dr. Mayne has prepared a therapeutic agent which will retain its potency for three days, Dr. Williams said. It is injected by hypodermic needle.

Dr. Mayne is continuing his research with anopheles mosquitoes, the malaria-bearing variety, which he has to capture in places as far distant as Florida, because of a dearth of them in this vicinity.

The Public Health surgeon recently acclimated a batch of Florida mosquitoes here, allowed them to draw blood of local malaria patients, and then took them to Maine through winter weather.

The mosquitoes traveled surrounded by ice at a personal temperature of 42 to 50 degrees, Dr. Mayne said. Because of their inactivity, they required no nourishment or fluid except moisture from the ice.

Rush for Hats and Coats At Ball Halted by Police

Articles Lost in Wild Disorder Are Valued at $1,500; Long Wait on Apparently Inexperienced Check Workers Is Blamed.

Handsomely clad gentlemen and fashionably gowned women joined in a general rush on the hat and cloak stand when attendants, apparently inexperienced, were unable to cope with the rush.

Police stepped in finally and established order, but not until more than a score of persons had lost $1,500 worth of silk opera toppers, fur wraps and overcoats in the jumble.

The scrtie was a climax to prehall delays in getting into the festive arena, occasioned by the slow work of the hat check workers. When the ball ended in the wee small hours everybody was in a hurry and when they found a long wait ahead for their apparel, got impatient.

A list of those who reported articles lost in the shuffle follows, as it appears on the Third Precinct police records:

RAINEY PROPHESIES EARLY BEER BALLOT

Vote Could Be Taken March 20 Under Suspension of House Rules.

(Associated Press.)

From the next Speaker of the House there came yesterday most positive assurances that "the Democratic party will make good its promises and legalize beer at the earliest possible moment."

That moment, said Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, Democratic Speakership nominee, who will be elected because of his party's large majority in the House, may come before April 1. In any event, he asserted, "it won't be many weeks."

Since the session is to begin Thursday, Rainey said, the House might even act March 20 on a bill to modify the Volstead act. House rules permit any measure to be brought up under a suspension of the rules the first and third Mondays in any month—and March 20 is the third Monday.

March 20 Vote Studied.

"Anyhow, the question of letting the House vote on that date is being considered," he said.

If such a procedure were resorted to, it would require a two-thirds majority for passage of the beer bill. Rainey held the belief "that majority could be obtained without much difficulty."

In the Congress that just closed, the House did its part in legalizing beer. It passed and sent to the Senate by a 230-to-165 vote the Collier bill, which would have permitted the manufacture and sale, and have taxed, beer containing 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight.

Senate Slashes Content.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, however, so drastically rewrote the measure that many wets in the Democratic party opposed its enactment. Among other things, the Senate Committee's changes reduced the legalized content to 3.05 per cent, considerably less than 4 per cent by volume.

Rainey and other Democratic leaders are hopeful that because of the influx of 160 new members of their party to the House—many of whom supported the platform promise of "immediate modification of the Volstead act"—the necessary two-thirds majority for passage under a suspension of the rules on March 20, can be mustered without difficulty.

If need be, they are prepared once more to emphasize the tax feature of the proposal. The measure adopted by the last Senate included, as the new bill is likely to, a tax of $5 a barrel on the new beverage. Estimates of the anticipated revenue ranged from $75,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Woman Loses $34,000 By Fire in Single Day

Newberry, S. C., March 5 (A.P.).—Fire today destroyed the home and a store building here owned by Miss Anne O. Ruff with a loss she estimated at $34,000.

Early this morning the two-story store and apartment building in the business section was burned. Damage to building and contents was placed at about $24,000. This afternoon Miss Ruff's home, six blocks distant from the store, was razed, with a loss of $10,000. The origin of the fires had not been determined tonight.

New York Last Used Scrip During Banking Crisis of '07

Approximately $250,000,000 in Certificates Came Into Circulation; Other Clearing Houses in Nation Adopted Similar Measures.

New York, March 5 (A.P.).—New Yorkers today refreshed their memories of previous occasions when the metropolis and other cities had done business by means of clearing house certificates, or scrip, use of which is being proposed for the present financial emergency.

The last occasion that demanded such a form of currency was in 1907 when the combination of a stock market and money panic and acute banking difficulties here created a crisis. Similar expedients had earlier been used in the financial troubles of 1873, 1884 and 1893, so that this method of conducting trade and commerce has been well tested.

A clearing house certificate is paper based on bank deposits and is issued by a group of banks rather than by one banking institution. Denominations are optional, and have been as small as one dollar. The units, representing actual deposits, are usable as money in the transaction of ordinary business, though they are not cashed and hence do not deplete bank funds. Pay roll requirements have in the past been met with such scrip.

In the 1907 crisis approximately $250,000,000 in certificates came into circulation. The banking situation then had been aggravated by a practice among New York banks and trust companies of accepting demand deposits without providing ordinary safeguards as to reserves and the result was the famous collapse of the Knickerbocker Trust Co., three other trust companies and six banks, with total deposit liabilities of $57,000,000.

This calamitous happening brought on a stock market crash and an almost unprecedented money squeeze, sending call loans on the New York Stock Exchange to the record interest rate of 125 per cent. J. P. Morgan, the elder, and the stock exchange authorities intervened to obtain release of $25,000,000 in funds, but troubles spread and the New York banks revived the clearing house certificate. Almost immediately other clearing houses throughout the country adopted similar measures. In New York the certificates were used for a period of 22 weeks.

10,000 AMERICANS INSPECT GEORGE WASHINGTON SHRINE

stream of people passed through immaculate grounds, admiring the priceless box hedges, pausing in reverence before the rooms where George Washington worked, ate, studied and slept, bowing in silent tribute before the tomb containing his earthly remains.

Crowd Steps Aside.

As a lengthy line awaited outside, those inside were allowed to pause for only a moment before the relics which usually occupy the attention of visitors for many minutes. The visitors were patient and good-humor , grasped the situation after it was explained to them and did their best to cooperate, Col. Dodge said.

When Mrs. Roosevelt and her party arrived, unexpectedly, at 3:30 p. m., several hundred citizens waited graciously outside while the White House visitors went through the home. Mrs. Roosevelt and her friends were welcomed by Mrs. Alice H. Richards, regent and presiding lady of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association. The Presidential party spent about half an hour at the home, departing after a visit to the Tomb of Washington.

Parking space outside the estate was filled to capacity. Thousands of other motorists took the drive along the boulevard and did not enter Mount Vernon.

Visitors Begin Leaving.

The inauguration and its festive atmosphere were in the hands of historians last night, as the tremendous throng of visitors who came to honor the accession of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the White House swiftly dispersed to the cities, hamlets and crossroads whence they came.

Union Station, bus terminals and motor highways radiating from the city were alive all through the day and into the night with the departing inaugural celebrants.

Hotels, rooming houses and private homes were fast being deserted by the crowds who came to see the pomp and circumstance of Inauguration Day and who began their steady exodus even as the parade began to break up Saturday.

Stands to Be Removed.

Today the Capital will resume its workaday atmosphere with only the clatter of inaugural review stands being dismantled as a physical reminder of the great doings of Saturday. The Court of Honor in front of the White House will be an exception, officials declaring yesterday that it would not be taken down before tomorrow.

Rear Admiral Carey T. Grayson, retired, general chairman of the inaugural committee, was resting at his home after the almost feverish activity to make the gala events of the change of administration a success.

He declared he had been showered by officials and distinguished visitors with appreciation of the manner in which the inaugural carried through.

The President was understood to have characterized the entire occasion as "splendid."

Inaugural headquarters were closed yesterday, but will reopen today to begin winding up details incident to the inauguration arrangements.

Ticket sales for the reviewing stands and ball came up to fullest expectations, it was learned, and an approximate gross of $125,000 was received. This sum is expected to meet expenses underwritten by prominent Washingtonians and leave as well a considerable amount to be donated to charitable enterprises.

General commendation was voiced by Admiral Grayson and other officials of the police handling of the enormous crowds. Out-of-town police officials expressed considerable admiration at the acumen of Maj. Ernest W. Brown and his group of inspectors.

Police Groups Return.

The uniformed police contingents from New York and Philadelphia returned yesterday to their respective cities. Plain clothes men gathered here to surveil criminal elements remained on duty throughout the day and were returning last night, or planning to return today, to their home towns.

Despite the great crush and jam of persons in the downtown areas during Saturday, pocket picking and other forms of theft that flourish in dense crowds was at a low ebb.

The widespread banking moratorium caused little embarrassment to hotel guests. Hotel officials generally stipulated business was on a cold cash basis with guests before they registered.

Demonstration Trial Seen for 70 Men Accused of Being Antired.

Moscow, March 5 (U.P.).—A "demonstration trial" comparable to the famous sabotage trial of 1930 may result from the secret police announcement yesterday that a group of 70 counter revolutionaries have been arrested in a plot to wreck agricultural progress in Soviet Russia.

Among those taken in custody are a number of high-ranking officials, including Feder Konar, vice commissar of agriculture. Chiefly the prisoners are former bourgeois landowners who have been employed in the commissariats of agriculture and in the direction of collective farms.

They are accused of deliberately destroying machinery, planting weeds and stealing grain in an attempt to bring on a famine and ruin the collective system of farming.

HITLER WINS EASILY IN REICH ELECTION

popular election may be expected for a long time to come.

| Party. | Votes. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|
| National Socialists | 17,049,000 | 43.7 |
| Nationalists | 3,117,000 | 8.0 |
| People's Party | 430,000 | 1.1 |
| Christian Socialists | 380,000 | 1.0 |
| Centrists | 4,285,000 | 11.0 |
| Bavarian People's Party | 1,206,000 | 3.1 |
| State Party | 334,000 | 0.9 |
| Socialists | 7,111,000 | 18.2 |
| Communists | 4,751,000 | 12.2 |
| Scattered | 322,000 | 0.8 |
| Total | 38,985,000 | |

In accordance with the promise he gave President von Hindenburg when he was appointed chancellor, Hitler does not intend to make any effort to rid himself of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Franz Seldte, and other non-Nazi members of his cabinet in order to put Nazis in their places.

Will Restore Old Flag.

It is understood that Chancellor Hitler, elected to the Reichstag as the head of the Nazi ticket, will not himself take a seat but will devote himself exclusively to the chancellorship.

According to Hermann Goering, minister without portfolio, one of the first acts of the new Reichstag will be to declare the old imperial black, white and red flag the national colors instead of the republican black, red and gold.

The new legislature's first session, to be held in the Potsdam Garrison Church, probably will be called within a few days, and it will be conducted solely to approve the change in the flag and to pass an enabling act giving dictatorial powers to the cabinet.

Nazi political circles also expect the Reichstag or the cabinet to set aside the laws governing the appointment of civil service officeholders for such time as is necessary to remove all who entered government service since 1918 on a partisan basis. This act is considered necessary to enable the government to remove from political office everyone except members of the Rightist parties without having to pay pensions. Under existing laws civil servants when removed must be pensioned in accordance with their length of service.

DOLLAR DIFFICULTY AIDS FOREIGN STAND

Prospect for Debt Concession by U.S. Seems Helped by Emergency.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Out of the temporary difficulties of the dollar, observers here professed to see hope for future agreement between the United States and Europe on several outstanding world problems. The firmness which had heretofore existed to any concessions by the United States either in the matter of debts or in the return to the gold standard may be so seriously weakened by the present domestic emergency that an understanding on either or both of these problems may be said to have been enhanced by the present temporary financial crisis here.

Hope of agreement on the intergovernmental debt situation also rose yesterday following the President's inaugural address in which he pointed out the necessity of accepting the plea of debtor nations. This is believed to have been the guiding thought in his reference to the "policy of the good neighbor." In this respect the President said:

"If I read the temper of our people correctly we now realize as we have never before realized our interdependence on each other; that we can not merely take but we must give as well."

Opinion of Foreign Observers.

Foreign observers were quick to interpret this as a reference to the war debt settlements which have been temporarily eclipsed by the acute distress in the domestic banking situation. The conferences in which Secretary of State Hull participated yesterday were confined principally to the sphere of domestic emergency measures to relieve the tenseness in financial circles. However, the invocation of any fiduciary make-shift arrangement to either restore confidence or discourage hoarding will result in bringing the United States into essentially the same position as France. France at the present time is on the gold standard but specie payments are hedged about with such restrictions that they discouraged all but the most ingenious and patient devices.

The conferences President Roosevelt began with the British Ambassador in Warm Springs before the latter's quick trip to London, and in New York upon his return, revolved chiefly upon the return to the gold standard as a necessary preliminary to agreement on the war debts settlements. The present financial emergency will undoubtedly aid in bringing the United States and Great Britain closer to agreement on the gold standard because of the relatively common nature of the problem for both nations. In even greater degree the tariff difficulty will benefit by the American financial emergency as Secretary Hull has long insisted upon the necessity of a revision of the tariff rates as one of the necessary inducements to prosperity.

Divergent Effects of Crisis.

The prospect for an early agreement on Anglo-American political problems has been increased by the present emergency and at the same time the difficulties which had existed to prevent a Franco-American debt settlement have been increased and aggravated by the financial emergency here. In the same measure as the President's emergency decrees imply a lapse from the gold standard, the possibility of Anglo-American agreements on debt are enhanced.

Reports that had been current in some financial centers that the present situation had been somewhat encouraged by the sudden selling orders from foreign bankers, chiefly French, and the gold withdrawals from the Federal Reserve banks for French accounts. This was authoritatively deprecated yesterday. The chief cause of the present financial uncertainty has been domestic fear, not foreign manipulation. The French central bank has been quietly earmarking gold for its account, but there have been no unusual withdrawals which might be interpreted as an adroit incentive to the present state.

The departure of Norman H. Davis, American delegate to the conference of disarmament and economic conditions, will be delayed by the present emergency, it was believed here last night. The allaying of the present disturbed state of the public mind will go far toward restoring the confidence of the people in the dollar and in the impregnable financial position of this country. The United States with its rigid requirements of 40 per cent gold coverage for all currency is almost twice the rate now in actual operation in France and is much higher in its gold coverage than Great Britain or Germany.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 5 (A.P.).—Harry Stead Bastian, 57, one of the pioneer developers of Miami Beach, was found dead in bed today by his wife. Mrs. Bastian said her husband apparently was in good health when he retired last night. Physicians ascribed his death to heart disease.

Mr. Bastian owned the Altonia Hotel and the Bastian Building here, and was one of the developers of Lincoln road in Miami Beach, which has become known as "the Fifth avenue of the South." He was a member of the Shrine in Miami and Indianapolis, Ind., of the Broadway Methodist Church, Indianapolis; the Surf Club and the Committee of One Hundred of Miami Beach.

GOV. POLLARD URGED TO CALL ASSEMBLY

Smith and English Desire Virginia Moratorium on All Debts.

Richmond, Va., March 5 (A.P.).—Two members of the Virginia assembly in a letter addressed to Gov. Pollard today urged the calling of a special session of the legislature to declare a moratorium on all forms and classes of indebtedness.

The letter, signed by State Senator W. Worth Smith, jr., of Louisa, and Delegate Edgar B. English, of Richmond, pointing out that the executive previously had declined to call a special session of the assembly, expressed the hope that subsequent developments had caused him to change his mind.

"It is hardly necessary for us to remind you," the letter said, "that you have just declared a moratorium for all the banks of Virginia, and no doubt if you had the power so to do you would make this moratorium apply to all and not to one particular class." The duration of the debt holiday would be determined by the general assembly.

Senator Smith, a leader in the movement for a special session of the General Assembly, is expected to announce at an early date his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Voroshilov Says Trotzky Was Poor Army Leader

Moscow, March 5 (U.P.).—Leon Trotzky's leadership of the Red army during the civil war period is bitterly attacked in a speech delivered by Klementi Voroshilov, present commissar of war, which was made public today.

Voroshilov denied the world-wide belief that Trotzky, now in exile, possesses great military genius. He claims that Josef Stalin "really saved the situation on all endangered fronts," and that the Red army was built up to an imposing strength in spite of Trotzky's inefficiency.

NEW BATTLE LOOMS ON VETERANS' FUND

Hoover's Pocket Veto Gives Harassing Problem to New President.

(Associated Press.)

The necessity of starting again, and soon, all the stir and strife that accompanies legislation about Federal expenditures on veterans presented itself yesterday to the new President.

The problem was placed before him by one of the last acts of Herbert Hoover as President. That was the pocket veto the last Executive gave to the independent offices appropriation bill because it was bigger than budget estimates.

In that bill was $945,988,000 which would be used to run the Veterans' Administration and to pay disability allowances and compensation to former soldiers for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Reductions Expected.

Unless a new independent offices appropriation bill is enacted by the special session before July 1, there will be no money for veterans or a dozen other agencies, such as the Shipping Board, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Trade Commission, the White House and the Farm Board.

Since that condition can not be allowed to arise, leaders in House and Senate are preparing to put through soon a new bill. But before it is drafted they will want some specific information from President Roosevelt and the new budget director, Lewis W. Douglas.

Some reductions in veterans expenditures are expected by congressional Democrats because of their platform pledge and their President's promises for a 25 per cent cut in Federal costs. Of the $5,000,000,000 annual budget, they remind, $1,000,000,000 is expended on veterans.

$400,000,000 Cut Asked.

The new President can, under the reorganization power he already has, take $150,000,000 or more off the budget. But that will not be enough. Consequently, some leaders expect Congress will be asked to approve the proposal of Vice President Garner in the last session—that of giving to the President the power to cut direct benefits to veterans.

Some hold that at the least the continuing yearly increase in veterans' costs should be halted. The independent offices bill's $945,988,000, for example, was $18,039,000 above what is being expended this year.

Numerous groups and individuals, including the National Economy League and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, meanwhile are continuing their demand for a $400,000,000 slash. Their arguments were taken by the joint congressional committee on veterans, which must report to Congress 60 days after the new session begins.

Miss Perkins Introduced To Political Women of City

Mrs. Gann Helps Mrs. Owen Make New Cabinet Member Known to Guests at Jolly Gathering of Party Foes and Friends.

(Associated Press.)

Frances Perkins was introduced to governmental and political women of Washington yesterday by Ruth Bryan Owen, assisted by Dolly Gann.

Having the jolliest kind of a time together were a whole roomful of notables, some of whom had been political foes, some of whom had been, in a way, rivals.

Mrs. Owen had been much mentioned for that "first woman in the Cabinet post" that Frances Perkins got, as Labor Secretary. And last October Mrs. Owen was almost a city-by-city campaign opponent to Dolly Gann.

Grace Abbott, Children's Bureau chief, boomed for a Cabinet post in the Republican regime, was there, smiling her keen satisfaction that Miss Perkins had been appointed.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, of "Little Cabinet" ranking in the Coolidge regime, chatted gaily with the Democratic girls, among them Mary Dewson, "right-hand woman" to Jim Farley; Jeane Springstead Whittemore, of Puerto Rico; Emily Newell Blair, Missouri, and Lavinia Engle, Maryland.

Looking on with smiling interest was Fannie Hurst, novelist, Mrs. Owen's house guest.

Puerto Rico Governor Declares 3-Day Holiday

San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 5 (A.P.).—In a proclamation today James R. Beverley, Governor of Puerto Rico, declared Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday legal banking holidays because all island banks are dependent on New York banks for cash and credit.

Before the holiday ends, Gov. Beverley said, he hopes to work out, with San Juan bankers, a system for scrip or certificate payments.

DRYS WILL CONFER ON ACTION FRIDAY

Independent Political Moves to Be Discussed at Meeting.

(Associated Press.)

Independent political action by the dry forces of the Nation will be the subject of discussion of a luncheon to be held at the Hotel Raleigh in Washington Friday.

Dr. Arthur J. Barton, of Wilmington, N. C., will present the subject and discussion will follow by leading denominational leaders of both North and South. Another speaker will be Dr. Ernest Cherrington. He will speak on the need of some independent political action among the drys. The luncheon is under the auspices of the woman's national committee for education against alcohol.

Mrs. William Tilton, in announcing the meeting in a statement, said:

"No nation has ever survived that shelved its middle classes. Today the moral forces of this Nation that have been the cleansing force in our politics are disfranchised by both parties. A recent trip through the South showed me that the idealistic South is looking for a new political outlook.

"This is also true of the West. The time has come to set up an opposition party to the combination upper world-underworld now controlling both major parties."

Texas Girl Is Held On Fugitive Charge

She Blames Former Beau Whose Car She Used for Arrest.

New York, March 5 (A.P.).—Miss Renee Conklin, 22, of Seymour, Tex., was arrested by police today on a warrant issued by Sheriff Arch Holmes, of Baylor County, Tex., charging her with being a fugitive from justice.

The warrant lodged a charge of embezzlement against her, to which Miss Conklin pleaded not guilty and was held without bail for hearing Thursday upon the arrival of the Texas sheriff.

Miss Conklin said a former sweetheart in Seymour brought the charges against her after she had used his automobile on a trip, abandoning it in Kansas City to come to New York.

FARMING MILLIONS' HOPES ARE REVIVED

(Associated Press.)

A new administration's new approach to the weary old farm problem—now aggravated and dominated by emergency financial crises—has revived the economic hopes of farming millions.

Lost momentarily as an individual issue in the intensity of President Roosevelt's banking conferences, agricultural difficulties remained still unconquered, scarcely nicked by spasmodic efforts of the lame-duck session.

But the very nature of these banking considerations, dealing as they do with troubles born of slow assets which include billions in farm indebtedness, prompted Capitol observers to select mortgage aid for the initial Roosevelt attack.

Morgenthau Named.

In support of their conclusion, they pointed to the speed with which the Chief Executive planned a consolidation of farm-lending agencies in the Farm Board and selected as the head of this organization his close adviser, Henry Morgenthau, Jr.

Just how Mr. Roosevelt would utilize the renovized board to accomplish mortgage aid still was undecided, but that it would receive speedy attention was the universal impression.

This phase of the general farm situation grew to preeminence in the session just closed and furnished the only two pieces of farm legislation to reach the statute books—the bankruptcy law and the Fletcher-Steagall Land Bank act.

The first of these supplied machinery for scaling down the debts, but depended for success on the willingness of creditors. Sponsors considered the bankruptcy bill only a step toward fulfilling the greater needs of the farmer.

Mortgage Extension.

The second was a limited mortgage extension plan. It was restricted doubly in its operation—first by reaching only the 12 per cent of farm mortgages held by Federal Land Banks and, secondly, by aiding these farmers only to the extent of a $50,000,000 fund.

The new President has promised "definite efforts to raise the values of agricultural products." Agricultural students in Congress pointed out that hand-in-hand with the values of products go the values of farm lands and the worth of farm debts.

A feeling persisted among many Democrats that raising prices will be a tedious process, depending, perhaps, upon ultimate improvement of international trade relations. While these processes are working, some congressional spokesmen considered it essential to force a more speedy reduction on farm indebtedness.

Prices Still Problem.

They contended that slashing debt charges while prices are seeking higher levels will restore more quickly a prosperity ratio between the two.

A direct assault on the ruinously low prices has not been forgotten. The domestic allotment plan of last session was such an effort, but it was opposed strongly in some farming areas and died in the Senate under a vigorous attack from President Hoover.

Members of the House Agriculture Committee, where it originated, frankly say they do not know whether it will be pressed anew in the special session, but if so, will more than likely be restricted to wheat and cotton.

are enemies with whom we never conclude an armistice.

"To the end that the efforts I am giving in these first days of my administration may be crowned with success and that we may achieve a lasting restoration of national well-being, I invite the support of the men of the legion and of all men and women who love their country, who know the meaning of sacrifice, and who, in every emergency, have given splendid and generous service to the Nation."

Legion's Plans Stressed By National Commander

Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, declared in a radio address, following that of President Roosevelt last night, that accomplishment of the legion's program "would make a tremendous contribution to the Nation's rehabilitation."

"We are independent and powerful," he said. "We are a string to no man's kite. We want to make true the words of Newton D. Baker. The legion is the greatest potential force for good in America.'"

Among points in the legion program Commander Johnson stressed its continuous concern for the disabled soldier; the importance of child welfare, particularly with regard to physical and mental development; the part of the legion in community life and the legion's insistence on nonrecognition of Soviet Russia.

ABOUT THE SHOW SHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

Warner Baxter.

THE Warner Brothers and Loew executives in Washington will tell you that happy days are here again, and no fooling, just as it says in the song that was heard so often during the parade Saturday. Old house records have been flying around like chips from a woodman's ax these past few days.

At the Earle on Friday and Saturday all-time house attendance records were shattered, both as to number of patrons and gross receipts.

The same thing happened at Loew's Fox.

Although at time of writing there are no statistics at hand pertaining to yesterday's business, it is a safe assumption that the Earle continued its gallop ahead of all previous records by reason of the constantly increasing momentum "42nd Street" is gaining as word-of-mouth advertising of its many superlative virtues gets abroad and by reason of the further fact that yesterday at 2 the stars aboard the "42nd Street Special," that pulled into Washington Saturday morning for the inauguration, appeared in person on the stage of the Earle as an added attraction on a bill that already included the presence in person of Vaughn De Leath, Jack McLallan, with "Sarah" and "Sassafras," Roy Smeck and others of vaudeville note.

There can be little doubt, I think, that "Forty-second Street" is the best screen musical to find its way before audiences to date. When the merits of a picture magnify, rather than diminish, themselves in retrospect, they are apt to be authentic. That is the way it is with "Forty-second Street."

Although its story is strictly musical comedy, certain of its characters stand out with that cleancut clarity that stamps them as worthy and memorable creations.

Particularly is this true of Warner Baxter's performance of the role of Julian Marsh, the great stage director—an obvious revival, by suggestion, of the career of Julian Mitchell—and Ruby Keeler's immensely effective portrayal of the little hick chorus girl, who steps into the breach and saves the show when all seems lost but honor!

Baxter's work in this role deserves a place up beside the best he has ever done and Miss Keeler, Mrs. Al Jolson in private life, you will remember, by her ingenuous charm and ability as a dancer and singer, takes immediate rank with the most richly endowed of the younger actresses.

Ed Selzer, Bill Sully, Mort Blumenstock and the other boys aboard the "Forty-second Street Special," who should know, tell me that the Warner boys' new production of "The Gold Diggers of 1933" will surpass even "Forty-second Street." That may be so, but if it is, the new "Gold Diggers" will be the best cinematic musical that has ever been that good!

All of which, of course, is getting far away from the topic of the moment.

A bulletin from Lou Brown, of the Loew offices, modestly chronicles that Amos 'n' Andy, Peter Higgins and the rest of the vaudeville bill, plus the screen presence of Lee Tracy in "Clear All Wires," at Loew's Fox, on Friday and Saturday smashed to smithereens, whatever they are, the previous records held by "The Cock-Eyed World" and "Sunny Side Up," established when the scale of admissions at the Fox was higher than it is now.

Does anybody make the motion to adopt "Happy Days Are Here Again" as the new National Anthem?

Anybody, that is, outside of banking circles!

Speaking of "42nd Street" and "Clear All Wires" reminds me that this might as well be known as Inauguration-Una Merkel Week as anything else. The tall and drawly blue grass comedienne is splendidly cast in both pictures and scores laughs the way you and I do alibis to the bill collectors. And you know that's laughing!

Incidentally, while we are on the subject, it might be well to keep an eye on those Film Time Tables throughout the current week. Most of the boys are scheduling extra performances, five de luxe performances being the rule, at least for the time being, at both the Earle and Loew's Fox, where excellent stage shows are wowing the customers.

As you will already be aware, provided you read your Sabbath papers carefully, an entirely new bill—both stage and screen—has been substituted for the one originally announced for the week beginning next Friday, March 10, at Loew's Fox. In case you do not read your Sunday papers carefully, the new screen feature will be "The Crime of the Century," with Wynne Gibson, Jean Hersholt, Stuart Erwin and Frances Dee. On the stage, Eddie Cantor, star of that mocha and java hour on the Sabbath evening radio, assisted by Bobby Bixley, eccentric dancer; the Four Abbotiers, in a musical presentation, and Benny Meroff's orchestra to provide spirited accompaniments and a few independent interludes.

Jack Connolly, former representative of the Will H. Hays organization in the Capital and more recently Pathe News' acutest nose for news, leaves Washington for New York this morning with Mrs. Connolly, after a week-end visit to take in the inauguration.

The way Mr. Connolly goes leaping about the landscape is a caution. For example, last summer he covered the political conventions and in August jumped out to the Coast to do the Olympics. From Los Angeles he proceeded to Holland to get an exclusive of the former Kaiser, exiled in Doorn. Thence he hastened to Scotland to land the first pictorial interview with the Hutchinson family after their calamitous attempt to hurdle the Arctic icebergs in their plane, thus thoughtlessly and needlessly jeopardizing the lives of their small children.

After this jaunt, Jack paid a flying visit to Berlin, then hurried on to Rome to film and record Pope Pius in his first appearance for the talking screen, dashing back to this country in time to reach here the morning of March 3.

It would be nice if Jack would pay us a longer visit some time. We could go out for a nice street car ride, or something!

Returning at midnight from the Actors' Fund Benefit at the Belasco, one learns that Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, First Lady, will occupy the presidential box at Constitution Hall when Arturo Toscanini, gifted Italian conductor, leads the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra in what is to be its farewell Washington concert Tuesday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock.

It seems especially fitting that she who, until so recently, was the Governor's Lady of New York State, should make her first appearance as First Lady of the Land at a musical event presented by the New York orchestra. This is the oldest orchestra in the country and one of the finest musical organizations in the world.

Toscanini, who conducts, though in his seventies, is still maestro at La Scala of Milan and is honored as a leading interpreter of Wagner's operas at Bayreuth's festivals. He is to conduct two of the German master's most famous works in the special festival there this summer.

Tomorrow afternoon Toscanini will play that heroic third symphony of Beethoven for the first half of his program and excerpts from two of Wagner's operas as eloquent finale to this farewell program.

Afterthoughts on the ride into Washington from Baltimore on the "42nd Street Special" Saturday morning . . . In an effort to make the 50-minute run last from 7 o'clock to 9, the train crew loafed along the road until the outskirts of the Capital were reached, only to run into a railroad "traffic jam" that delayed arrival until 10 . . . Which was a swell break for your reporter . . . When Joe E. Brown was asked why he didn't grab Walter Johnson as manager for his Kansas City ball club, he answered that they had already grabbed Tris Speaker, also a part owner of the club . . . When interviewed in his thickly bedded stall in the first coach up ahead, Tom Mix's horse, King, expressed his complete satisfaction with modern travel by rubbing a shiny nozzle against your shoulder and otherwise being an all-around good scout . . . Train travel never causes him to get off his feed, and Joe Bowers, his hostler, tells me he is an equally good sailor . . . Only can't quite understand what his sea legs are all about when he gets back on land . . . Joe keeps his coat so glossy you could almost shave in it . . . Everybody on the train seemed to know how to play the piano . . . Harry Seymour, Joe Brown, Tom Mix, Lyle Talbot and one or two of the other boys "put on a show" in the Malibu Beach car between breakfast and Fourteenth and Water streets that you couldn't have bought for money . . . Doris McMahon tosses a mean rhumba, too . . . At the Actors' Fund Benefit last night, Leo Carillo was one of the hits of the show . . . Same way on the train . . . Bette Davis sold programs at the benefit last night, instead of appearing on the stage . . . Took a bow from a box, however, following the intermission . . . Can't imagine anybody's doing plain cooking in anything as fancy as that General Electric kitchen . . . You have to be a graduate electrical engineer to know how to boil water in it!

Well, I'll be seeing you, sitting on the steps of the bank!

10 Students Flee Unhurt; Clothing Is Saved, but Furnishings Ruined.

Lexington, Va., March 5 (A.P.).—Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity house at Washington and Lee University was destroyed by an early morning fire today, but the ten student occupants escaped uninjured. They were able to save their clothing and most of their other personal property. The fire, which was believed to have been started by coals falling out of the living-room fireplace, spread rapidly through the frame structure. Only the walls were left standing despite efforts of firemen to quell the flames. All of the furnishings were ruined.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

BELASCO

ACTORS' FUND BENEFIT. Daniel Frohman presents an all-star program in behalf of the stage's most deserving charity, featuring past, present and future stars of the stage and screen. Under stage direction of Keene Waters.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Imagine Noel Coward and Beatrice Lillie, disporting themselves at a piano, individually and as a team—doing two songs each and two together; Cecilia Loftus, reviving her incomparable impersonations and applying her mimetic gifts to the idiosyncrasies of two musical comedy singers — any two — Gracie Allen, Pauline Lord, Ethel Barrymore and Mrs. Fiske; William Faversham delivering a tribute to the cause and a eulogy of Daniel Frohman, in the course of which he remarked that it was 47 years ago that the Frohmans first engaged him; Daniel Frohman, himself, coming down out of his stage box personally to introduce Fannie Hurst, distinguished novelist, in further remarks concerning the worthiness of the Actors' Fund as an object of support; Fannie Ward, one of the miracles of the theater in a miraculous ten minutes of song and story.

Then imagine the Duncan Sisters and two dressmaker's models doing a burlesque of the quartet from "Rigoletto," in costume; Frances Starr, the present Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson, of Washington, emerging from her chair in the orchestra to take an impromptu part in a bill that those fortunate enough to see it will be talking about for months, maybe years, to come; Montagu Love telling some of his inimitable anecdotes and doing a scene as Fagin, from Dickens' "Oliver Twist;" Bill Robinson, greatest of all the tap dancers, who came over from Baltimore under State police escort in 30 minutes flat, picking them up and laying them down as only he can; Leo Carillo, splendid actor of both stage and cinema, convulsing the audience with his jesting and dialect stories, finally introducing Harry Seymour, who in turn introduced some of the stars from the Warner Brothers' "42d Street Special"—Tom Mix, Lyle Talbot, Doris McMahon, Preston Foster, Laura La Plante and Eleanor Holm.

Then imagine Bob White, "The Old Philosopher" of The Washington Post, introducing the official introducer, Robert Emmett Keane, himself a raconteur of parts, who acted as master of ceremonies and presented, in addition to those mentioned, a Meyer Davis Orchestra, directed by Dave McWilliams; Harlan Tarbell, a blindfolded telepathist and mental magic worker; Roy Smeck, with his guitar, ukulele and harmonica, from the Earle; Violet Carlson, of "Show Boat," in a solo dance; Mme. Olga D'Allan, soprano and dancer, in a Roumanian gypsy number, and "Her Lovers," a short comedy skit by Mr. Frohman and Walter Damrosch, played by a cast of Washingtonians, including Louise Harrison Gwynne, Thomas Bell Sweeney, jr., Isham Keith, and George Calvert.

Imagine all that, with accompaniment from the pit orchestra directed by Paul Schwarz, if you can, on one bill!

If you were a member of the large and enthusiastic audience—the largest that ever turned out for an Actors' Fund Benefit in the National Capital—in the Belasco Theater last night, you will not have to imagine it. You saw it.

If you were not present, you probably will not be able to imagine it and need only reproach yourself for having missed one of the most remarkable programs and most delightful evenings in the theater ever presented in Washington.

GAYETY

"LIBERTY GIRLS." Empire burlesque attraction, featuring Gladys Smith, Marie Collins, Betty DuVal, Joy St. Clair, Bee Keller, Nora Murray, Kay Cassidy, Lola Bertram, Roberts sisters, Bimbo Davis, Joe Yule, Sid Gold, Bob Sandberg and others. Reviewed Sunday night by Bud Hyman.

Songs and dances, pepped up with good fun, characterizes "Liberty Girls," this week's attraction at the Gayety. The same clever principals that have for the past few weeks produced so many excellent shows have been held over for what will be the last week of stock burlesque for Washington, Manager Lake having announced a new policy beginning next Sunday.

Gladys Smith, Marie Collins and Betty DuVal, guest stars for the week, rendered dances that were especially pleasing to the audience, each receiving generous applause, as did Bee Keller, the buxom blonde, who has become one of Washington's favorite burlesque artistes.

Continuing to widen the circle of her admirers, Joy St. Clair, the pretty little dancer with the ever-present smile, demonstrated her ability in several divergent roles and her dance number fairly stopped the show.

The shapely Lola Bartram, a dancer of no mean ability, did several specialty numbers that were good, her best being a characterization of Pat Rooney. Several songs by Nora Murray and dances by the talented young Roberts Sisters went over big.

"Bimbo" Davis and Joe Yule, as usual, produced many laughs with their funny antics and clever jokes. Davis was best in his "Box Bit," which kept the audience in an uproar, while Yule's "Wise Guy From Chicago" was equally amusing.

LOANS TO GIVE JOBS FAVORED BY A. F. L.

Use of Government Funds to Start Production of Necessities Urged.

(United Press.)

Federal loans to provide jobs instead of charity for the unemployed was recommended in a broad economic rehabilitation program announced by the American Federation of Labor yesterday.

The federation in its monthly survey of business for February advocated the use of Government funds to start production of necessities such as food, shoes, textiles and clothing which would put men back to work thus halting the decline of prices and destruction of values.

Such a program, the federation believed, would make it possible for men to begin paying off their debts and taxes, create buying power and start the exchange of goods.

"Surveys of local needs could establish the extent of production necessary, production could be allotted and loans made on the basis of production and employment," the bulletin said.

"As men are taken back to work and buying power restored, business will gradually right itself and Federal support could be withdrawn."

The program advocated the balancing of the Federal budget for a period of years rather than for one year with a distinction drawn between current running expenses of the Government, expenditures for public works and emergency relief payments.

Speedy settlement of the war debts problem also was a part of the program.

"The war debts have continually been a retarding influence on trade, contributing to depression losses many times their value," the federation said. "We can not hope to restore prices until international trade is resumed."

Cleric Quits Pulpit To Direct Manhunt

Atlanta Suspect Caught in Chase to Be Quizzed in Two Murders.

Atlanta, March 5 (A.P.).—A minister today quietly dismissed his flock in the midst of the morning service, told the men to arm themselves, changed his frock coat for one bearing a deputy sheriff's badge and led a posse of several hundred in capturing a desperado suspect.

The Rev. A. C. Peacock was delivering his sermon in the Central Christian Church when Charlie Pourron entered and told him he had seen a Negro carrying a shotgun and acting suspiciously in the west end section of Atlanta, where two persons have been killed by burglars recently.

Mr. Peacock stopped his sermon, told the men to "go home and get your guns" and then, in his capacity as a deputy sheriff, led them and their neighbors in a chase that resulted in the wounding and capture of the man, identified by officers as Rader Davis. Sheriff L. D. Hightower, of nearby Henry County, said Davis had left at the home of another Negro clothing identified as belonging to W. E. Stanley, 75, a farmer whose body was found last week covered with bricks and straw in a shallow grave.

County Offers Land for Sale.

Klamath Falls, Oreg. (U.P.).—The Indians sold Manhattan Island to the white men for a few plugs of tobacco and some coins. Klamath County had no use for the tobacco, but will sell you almost any number of acres for 25 cents an acre. At a recent sheriff's sale, no buyers were found, even at that figure.

MAY GET POST

JO V. MORGAN.

JO MORGAN URGED FOR ROVER'S POST

May Be District Attorney; Race On for Jobs as Commissioner.

With indications pointing to quick action on appointments of new persons to District jobs, several candidates and their friends have launched active campaigns for this or that post.

Special interest has centered around the question of who shall be named United States district attorney to succeed Leo A. Rover. Mr. Rover is to be replaced by a Democrat, as will several of his assistants.

One of the prominent candidates for the job of district attorney is Jo V. Morgan, a member of the law firm of Douglas, Obear & Douglas. The firm is headed by Charles A. Douglas, active in the last campaign, legal adviser of the inaugural committee and head of the Democratic lawyers' organization in the District. Mr. Morgan was as active as his colleague and his friends are advancing his name for the Rover post.

Mr. Morgan is 45 years old and was born in Leonardtown, St. Marys County, Md. He studied at Holy Cross College at Worcester, Mass., and Georgetown University. He was admitted to the bar in 1910 and has been in active practice since. He became associated with the firm of Douglas, Obear & Douglas in 1912 and a few years later was made a member.

He has been engaged in some of the interesting and important legal cases in the District, including the contempt proceeding against Sinclair and Burns. He resides in Montgomery County, Md., is a member of the Edgemoor Citizens' Association and is a delegate to the county civic federation. He is a member of the tercentenary commission appointed by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, is the historian of the Maryland State Society and has written several historical accounts and has lectured on Maryland history throughout the State. He was secretary of the Lawyers Roosevelt and Garner Club and was a member of the antiorganization Democratic campaign committee in Montgomery County in the last national campaign. He is married and has three children.

The campaign for appointment as District Commissioner is getting warm. Maj. Gen. Herbert C. Crosby, incumbent, already has announced his purpose to tender his resignation to President Roosevelt and indications are that it will be accepted. Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, incumbent, wants to keep his job and friends are waging an active campaign to enlist support for him.

John W. Childress, former chairman of the District Public Utilities Commission, also is an active candidate and has besought the aid of support of several Democratic leaders. J. Leo Kolb, real estate operator, also is waging an active campaign, as is John Korman, who formerly was connected with the prohibition enforcement bureau and subsequently went into the oil business. Mr. Korman is said to have the support of Representative Ross Collins (Democrat) Mississippi.

Youngest Ferrell Found Wounded

Brother of Wesley Goes to Hospital With Bullet in Head.

Greensboro, N. C., March 5 (A.P.).—Ewell Ferrell, 20-year-old brother of Wesley and Rick Ferrell, major league baseball players, was brought to Clinic Hospital here tonight suffering from a bullet wound in the head.

Marvin Ferrell, a brother, said he heard a shot in his home and found Ewell on the floor wounded in an adjoining room. The shot was fired from a .22 caliber revolver.

The Ferrells live near Guilford College and Ewell plays on the Guilford High School baseball team. Wesley is a pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, Rick a catcher for the St. Louis Browns, Marvin a pitcher with the Baltimore International League Club and George, another brother, an outfielder with Buffalo of the International League.

He Got In

John Roosevelt, in Rickety Car, Gets Past White House Guardian.

(Associated Press.)

A dilapidated touring car drew up at the front door of the White House yesterday and stopped.

"Drive on, drive on!" said a police sergeant of long experience at that spot.

"But I'm stopping here," said the young driver.

"Who are you?" queried the policeman.

"John Roosevelt," was the answer.

"Member of the family?" asked the officer who had met with many remotely connected Roosevelts during the strenuous day before.

"Son," explained the youngest Roosevelt boy from Groton.

ROOSEVELT LAUDED BY ELDER MICHAUX

Radio Evangelist Is Greeted by Crowd of 7,000 at Auditorium.

Blocked out of his own meeting a half hour before opening time last night at the Washington Auditorium, Elder Michaux, famous radio evangelist, escaped the throng lined up at every entrance and came to the floor of the auditorium through a stage door. A score of firemen inside were busily engaged in clearing the aisles, finally admitting approximately 7,000 persons, white and colored.

A choir of 100 voices, augmented from Baltimore, broadcast "Happy Am I" as the Elder came to the platform, and opened the services with "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." The radio program, including such numbers as "Back to the Faith of Our Fathers" and "When We Get to Heaven," was enlivened by the entrance on the platform of the elder's famous locomotive, and heightened by the lowering from the loft of a crucifix 40 feet high.

This crucifix, surmounted by the legend, "Willingly Jesus Suffered for Victory," was the signal for the radio WJSV cheer by 7,000 voices. Elder Michaux then prayed that President Roosevelt be given full dictatorship and that he be given the guidance of God, to use it to best advantage. The fervent prayer was followed by singing of "Happy Am I," while a sea of handkerchiefs waved in unison from all parts of the audience.

No Political Tinge.

Elder Michaux then explained that the meeting was in no sense political, and that advertisements by groups of colored Democrats, that political addresses would be made, was a mistake, the church having no affiliation with politics. "Roosevelt is not a Democratic President," he said, "but President of the United States." A Baltimore choir responded with the song, "I Wonder What the Devil Is Grumbling About."

The American War Mothers Band came in vociferously with drum and clapping of hands throughout the meeting, but more especially when four diminutive colored "street singers" were introduced, the three Johnson brothers, and Magruder White, clothed in khaki and bandanna, to sing "Dry Bones" and "That New Jerusalem" to a tremendous ovation.

Tune Starts Stampede.

When they sang "What Are They Doing in Heaven Today," the excitement was too great for hundreds in the audience, who began to jump up, joined by the choir members. Half the audience stood up to call them back for the encore "We Want to Be a Lover of the Lord." Once started, the shouting proved contagious, spreading to the balconies when a Baltimore choir sang "Read the Bible" and "Jesus Has Full Control."

Elder Michaux preached a sermon on "Family Life" and explained the purpose of the meeting, to welcome a smiling President Roosevelt to Washington. "The one thing we like about the President," he said, "is his happy smile. A man who can smile away the cares and burdens of life is a man who can help another."

The proceeds of the evangelistic services will be used to take care of evicted families.

Pershing Resigns Economy Council

Explains Prolonged Absences Will Prevent Him Helping Work.

(Associated Press.)

Gen. John J. Pershing resigned yesterday from the advisory council of the National Economy League, but expressed approval of the organization's efforts to reduce the cost of Government.

Prolonged absences from the United States as chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission, he said, would prevent him from taking an active part in the league's work.

"A successful awakening of our people to the present dangerous situation," Gen. Pershing said in his resignation, "is in my opinion a prerequisite to the restoration of equilibrium to our economic system."

Maj. Henry H. Curran, a director, in a reply to the resignation, predicted success for the league's drive.

Juan Gualberto Gomez, Cuban Patriot, Is Dead

Havana, Cuba, March 5 (U.P.).—Juan Gualberto Gomez, famed Cuban patriot and idol of Cuban Negroes, died here today of heart and kidney trouble at the age of 79. He figured prominently in the revolution against Spain in 1895, and after Cuba gained her freedom he was prominent as journalist, orator and parliamentarian.

He served in both chambers of the national Congress. Last week Congress voted Gomez a gift of $10,000.

Long Plans Steep Big Fortunes Tax

Three Main Provisions in Bill He'll Submit "First Minute."

(Associated Press.)

Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), Alabama, announced last night he was drafting a bill which would have the Federal Government levy a capital tax on fortunes or more than $10,000,000. In a formal statement, the fiery Louisiana senator said he proposed to submit the measure "the minute Congress meets." It would provide:

(1) The capital levy "graduated so that when a fortune of $100,000,000 is reached, the capital tax levy will take all the balance above that sum."

(2) An increased inheritance tax, which would prevent any one person from inheriting more than $5,000,000, and give the balance of the estate to the Government.

(3) An increase of income tax in the higher brackets, with Federal confiscation of all individual incomes of more than $1,000,000 a year.

Official Named in Bank Quiz Not Allowed to Quit

New York, March 5 (U.P.).—John E. Ramsey, general manager of the Port of New York Authority, who was mentioned in the Senate Banking and Currency Committee's investigation at Washington last week in connection with a loan of $10,020, from an official of the National City Bank, has offered his resignation and it has been refused pending an investigation, it was announced tonight.

Steps Down

Mayor of Colorado Town Which Women Rule Resigns Office.

Grover, Colo., March 5 (A.P.).—This tiny town, where the women govern while the men work, this week faces a change in administration.

Mrs. A. G. Lower has resigned as mayor, giving ill health as her reason, and the board of trustees, all women, will meet to select a successor. Meanwhile, Mrs. D. B. Dyer, a trustee, is serving.

Since its election more than a year ago, the all-woman party government has retired more than $1,000 of the town's bonded indebtedness and installed a drinking fountain in Main street.

"We're getting along nicely," Mrs. Dyer said. "The men are busy planting or preparing for spring trade, and the women are conducting the town's business as conscientiously as they can."

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

THIRTY-SIX years ago today, James Wilson, born in Scotland and later an adopted son of Iowa, swore that he would support the Constitution of the United States as Secretary of Agriculture.

For sixteen years, under three Presidents, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, and Taft, he fearlessly championed the interests of the American farmer and left the portfolio a highly distinguished official. Up to that time he was the fourth Cabinet representative to fill this important post. Norman J. Coleman, Jeremiah M. Rusk, and J. Sterling Morton were his immediate predecessors, Coleman having served to date the shortest office term, one month.

March 4 another son of Iowa took the oath of office—Henry A. Wallace—as the eleventh occupant of the chair of national agriculture. Being 44 years of age, he is one of the two youngest Cabinet members to fill this position. Secretary Wallace is the fourth son of the great Commonwealth to grace this key position. This fact strengthens the claim that Iowa is the mother of Secretaries of Agriculture. Others from this State, in addition to James Wilson, have been Edwin T. Meredith and Henry C. Wallace, the latter being father of the incumbent.

Strangely, Scotchmen or those of Scotch ancestry have held this exalted office successively. This sequence applies to Wilson, Houston, Wallace and Jardine. "Scotch" means, according to the dictionary source, "to prevent slipping or rolling," and these Federal officials each have had a master task in literally supporting the definition. In the South, it is a localism to say "scotch a wheel," meaning to place a rock under a wagon wheel to safeguard its movement. Considering that a man of Scotch ancestry is at the helm of agriculture presages that the right man is in the right place at the right time.

Mother's love and joy:
If you could only understand
That life means something more
Than the newest creation in evening gowns
Or the latest in beauty facials.
Maybe then some fine young man
Might give you his heart—
Nize Baby!

If you could only realize
As sweetly as you sing "Hold Me,"
Or as smartly as you dance to the tune "Paradise"
That a feller must work durned hard to make ends meet.
Maybe then some fine young man

SO much has been said, pro and con, on the economic phases of the "marriage clause" of the economy act that the vital principle involved, i. e., as to the right of the Congress of the United Sates to legislate away the right to work of any particular group of citizens, has been entirely lost sight of.

Marriage in the United States does not remove from a woman her responsibility to society as a citizen, a voter or a taxpayer. I am sure it never was in the minds of the men who drafted and passed this piece of legislation that marriage should become a means that would absolutely prevent a certain class of citizenry from living their lives in the way in which they think will best serve their own and their country's interests. I am sure, also, that it never occurred to them at the time of the drafting and passage of this law that they were setting up an intolerable dictatorship over the personal affairs of certain individuals. This type of legislation is only to be tolerated when the individuals concerned are a menace to the public safety, and surely a working woman, married or single, does not constitute such a menace.

However, faced with a financial crisis, we as a people have become panic stricken and grab here and there at any straws, tossed us without giving thought to their weakness. In the midst of this turmoil, you and I, the little fellows, are scrambling and fighting for just the chance to live. Somebody tosses us the straw idea that wherever a married woman is gainfully employed one of us might be employed, if she could be forced out. So the hue and cry is taken up with never a thought that by so doing we are depriving a certain portion of the law-abiding citizens of the United States of the right to paid employment, a right that we have been taught was inalienable under our form of government.

AS A RESULT, what have we? The Congress of the United States, the highest law-making body of the most powerful nation in the world and the one nation founded on the principle that every citizen should be allowed the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, stampeded into passing as one of the measures to right the economic ills of this great nation, a law which says that from now on marriage shall disqualify one member of the marriage contract from the right to paid employment.

Senator Borah recently stated that our nation is really in a state of war. If the emergency is that great, let the Congress so declare, and then have the President issue a call for volunteer enlistments in the "Army of the Unemployed"; let the call be issued to those who can live without paid employment, men and women alike—married or single—to give their jobs. In this way those giving up their positions will be doing it voluntarily, with their country's good at heart, and with the knowledge that it is only a temporary thing. Idealistic? Yes, but how much better than what we now have, —a law that forces only one class of the people to give up their employment permanently, no matter how much they need it.

THE next inaugural parade stand you occupy probably will be of different construction. The roof will be suspended and you will have clear vision in three directions, all because of the modern connectors for lumber construction, just announced by the National Committee for Wood Utilization, of Commerce.

Today President Roosevelt calls into conference governors from many States. One of the topics undoubtedly will be conservation. Through these connectors wood joints, the weakest part of any structure, are increased in strength some four to eight times, thereby giving tremendous impetus to building and construction through effected saving. These connectors are the greatest progress in wood construction in a hundred years.

The N. C. W. U. is putting the finishing touches on testing of a system of wood bending through a mechanical process enabling tying of a strip of oak into a double knot without breaking. This process opens a wide field for our woods in auto body, furniture, boats and other lines.

We also hear of epoch-making discoveries in chemical utilization of wood. Synthetic glass is on the market, made from wood chemicals. Rayon, from wood pulp, long ago revolutionized the textile trade.

I WANT to congratulate you and The Washington Post on the fine manner in which the Federal Diary Spelling Bee was conducted on February 28.

I was especially interested in the enthusiasm and seriousness shown by the contestants and the good fellowship spirit displayed by the losers.

The unusually large audience of spectators speaks well for your work, indicating that the Federal Diary is read by many and that Government employes appreciate the column and the various functions you are promoting to bring them together each month for some sort of entertainment or contest in which all can take part and have a common interest.

I think your column is appreciated by Federal employes and I feel sure it is valuable in promoting a wider acquaintance among the employes and giving them a better understanding of the duties performed by their associates in bureaus and departments other than their own.

ALEXANDRIA BANKS FEEL SLUMP LITTLE

Merchants Expected to Hold Checks in Limited Sum Until Holiday End.

In compliance with a proclamation of the Governor of Virginia, received Saturday night, making mandatory the closing of all banks in Virginia for two days, and the President's proclamation, the banks in Alexandria, Va., will be closed until Friday.

The banks of Alexandria have probably been less affected by the depression than any in this section of the country, and have, in fact, prospered more in the last year than in any previous years in their history, according to the bank officials. There has never been the slightest question as to their stability, and, were it not for the mandatory provision of the President's and governor's proclamations they would remain open for business as usual.

There is considerable speculation as to the effect the bank closing will have upon business in Alexandria, as the majority of the residents have not anticipated the move, but it is considered probable that the merchants will not hesitate to cash checks in limited amounts for their customers, to be held until the close of the bank holiday.

Mrs. Acosta, 40, Ball Player's Wife, Dies

Husband at Bedside When She Succumbs in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., March 5 (A.P.).—Mrs. Merito Acosta, 40, wife of Merito Acosta, former big league and American Association baseball player, died today in a hospital here following a week's illness of peritonitis. Her husband, who came here last Friday from Havana, was at her bedside when she died.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Monday at Crescent Hill Methodist Episcopal Church here, with burial in Cave Hill Cemetery. Mrs. Acosta became ill last week while visiting a sister, Mrs. H. G. Hartman. She died at 2:25 a. m. Among her survivors are three children, ranging from 1 to 7 years of age; her mother, Mrs. Adeline Bennett; two brothers and three sisters.

Acosta was a member of the Louisville Baseball Team for more than ten years, leaving here in 1930, and prior to that played with Washington of the American League. His wife formerly was secretary of the Louisville Club. Acosta's father was mayor of Marianao for twelve years and once ran for the presidency of Cuba.

Oklahoma Legislator Would Close Colleges

Oklahoma City, March 5 (A.P.).—A one-year moratorium on higher education would be declared in Oklahoma under a resolution State Senator H. P. Daugherty, of Chelsea, proposes to introduce in the Legislature tomorrow.

He said the funds saved by closing the University of Oklahoma, Oklahoma A. and M. College and half the State teachers' colleges and junior colleges would be diverted to the common schools.

OKLAHOMA OIL ZONE IS SHUT DOWN AGAIN

New Agreeement Planned to Increase Crude Price in Two States.

Oklahoma City, March 5 (A.P.).—With the Oklahoma City flush oil field of a thousand wells silent under martial law for the second time in its brief history, operators heard a promise of a crude oil price advance April 1 in return for legislative enactment of effective proration laws applying equitably to both Texas and Oklahoma.

National guardsmen patrolled the field in rain and snow today under a shutdown order of Gov. William H. Murray.

Gov. Murray asserted overproduction by several operators caused him to issue the order yesterday.

Only wells producing salt water with the oil and in danger of ruin if shutdown were exempted from the order, cutting output to about 24,000 barrels a day. The field has been producing considerably in excess of 100,000 barrels recently.

Tomorrow a new and more stringent proration law, backed by both the larger oil interests and the administration, will be reported favorably to the Oklahoma House of Representatives.

R. C. Holmes, president of the Texas Corporation, was quoted here as authority for a statement that the crude oil price would be increased to 75 cents and 85 cents a barrel in Texas and Oklahoma, conditional upon several factors, chief being appointment of special committees to fix allowables as between the two States. The top price now is 52 cents.

One of the tricks of cigarette advertising is to pretend that "Heat Treatment" is an exclusive process, making one cigarette better than any other.

EXPLANATION: All cigarette manufacturers use heat treatment. It is a routine process of manufacture. The first Camel cigarette ever made was manufactured under the heat-treating process. Every one of the billions of Camels produced since has received the necessary heat treatment.

Harsh, raw tobaccos require intensive processing under high temperatures. The more expensive tobaccos, which are naturally mild, call for only a moderate application of heat. Heat treatment never can make cheap, inferior tobacco good.

STAND TOGETHER!

After a day of repeated conferences, President Roosevelt yesterday called Congress to meet March 9, and last night issued his proclamation declaring a bank holiday until March 9. This order has the effect of prohibiting the export of gold, or the hoarding of gold or currency by individuals drawing funds from banks. The proclamation reminds the public of the heavy penalties that may be inflicted upon violators of the President's order.

The Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, may permit banks to perform their usual functions during the holiday, or require the use of clearing-house certificates, or authorize the creation of trust accounts for the receipt of new deposits, to be withdrawn on demand without any restriction.

Under this proclamation it is expected that banks in large cities will issue clearing-house certificates and thus enable business to function. Many banks will set up special trust accounts for the receipt of new deposits which can be withdrawn without restriction.

Congress is expected to enact emergency legislation without delay. President Roosevelt is preparing a plan of legislation to be submitted to Congress on Thursday. The export of gold doubtless will be regulated. The United States has an abundance of gold and can remain on the gold standard, keeping all its currency redeemable in gold, by taking prompt action.

The law facilitating adjustments between creditors and debtors is now in operation. Bankruptcies and receiverships can be averted by co-operation, to the mutual advantage of all concerned. President Roosevelt in his inaugural address exhorts all citizens to co-operate. Let the people ponder his words:

> We now realize as we have never realized before our interdependence on each other; that we can not merely take but must give as well; that if we are to go forward we must move as a trained and loyal army willing to sacrifice for the good of a common discipline, because without that discipline no progress is made, no leadership becomes effective.

The Nation is now under the guidance of its chosen leader. He is aided by his trusted counselors. He is supported by Congress, which is ready to act forthwith. No partisan obstacles are in the way. The people rely upon President Roosevelt to bring this monetary blockade to an end without delay, and then to put through the emergency legislation that will enable the country to go forward.

United and whole-hearted support of the President by every citizen will concentrate the irresistible power of the United States for the ending of this national misfortune. If the President needs greater powers, Congress should grant them. Since the crisis is great, let the weapon forged by the Nation be greater still. No seen or unseen danger or calamity can overcome the people of the United States when they stand together.

"AN ENEMY STATE".

Bainbridge Colby, who as Secretary of State in President Wilson's Cabinet was instrumental in forming the policy of the United States with respect to Soviet Russia, has done his party a service by reiterating his views on that subject. The last Democratic administration reached the conclusion that "it is not possible for the United States to recognize the present rulers of Russia as a government with which the relations common to friendly governments can be maintained". Since the "theory and practice of the Soviet regime remain unchanged", Mr. Colby contends that the attitude of the United States Government should remain unchanged also.

Advocates of Soviet recognition have resorted to all sorts of misrepresentation to confuse the public mind on this subject. They pretend that the United States is passing judgment upon the form of government in Russia. But Mr. Colby gives assurance that there was no desire to influence the internal affairs of the Soviet in the attitude taken by the United States. What the Soviet does in Russia is a question with which Americans have no concern.

"It was on an entirely different ground," says Mr. Colby, "that American recognition was denied. Our refusal was predicated upon the fact that Russia was an enemy state." The Soviet declares itself the enemy of the world. It claims the right to bring about revolutions in every non-Communist country and to destroy all "capitalistic" governments. The Third International stubbornly refuses to renounce this aim and it bends its creature, the Soviet government, to its will.

The argument that trade with the Soviet would be extended by recognition is not valid. Mr. Colby notes that "our present policy has afforded ample opportunity for all the trade with Russia that is economically possible". Only a few large machinery manufacturers have any prospects of obtaining a market in Kassia. Workingmen are bitterly opposed to commercial relations with the Soviet, because they dread the competition of slave labor. Economic considerations alone should preclude the new administration from recognizing the Soviet, but they are of secondary importance. An understanding of Communist designs against the American Government should forbid any President to admit Soviet agents into this country.

TO REDUCE SURPLUS CROPS.

So far as the farmer is concerned, the new deal will consist of "an orderly retreat from production of farm lands now devoted to surplus crops." The quoted words constitute the slogan of Henry A. Wallace, of Iowa, the new Secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Wallace is not deluded by any chimerical hopes of disposing of agricultural surpluses abroad. He is convinced that for the most part American agriculture must trim down its output to the needs of the domestic market.

A glance at a commodity price index suggests the chief difficulties of the farmer. In a period of diminishing demand he has been unable to reduce his production. Hence surpluses have piled up and become a crushing weight upon farm prices. The latest calculation of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics shows that agricultural prices on February 15 were only 49 per cent of the 1909-14 average. This is the lowest point reached in 23 years.

Other prices have declined, but not to such a devastating extent as farm prices. When the demand for manufactured goods became weak industrial output was curtailed. A reasonable balance between production and market demand was maintained, with the result that prices have fallen only moderately. It is reasonable to suppose that the agricultural price structure might have been similarly upheld if farmers had been organized to control their output to any reasonable extent. In a few branches of agriculture where the producers are organized to control the market, they have been able to keep their prices far above the general level. The dairy industry is a good example.

Too much sentiment has been wasted on the loss of foreign markets by the farmer. As a matter of fact, only a few American farmers can afford to sell their products outside of the United States, because world prices are so low. Furthermore, the nations of Europe insist upon encouraging their own agriculture with subsidies as a means of national defense and for the preservation of wholesome farm life. When the demand for farm produce does increase abroad, Canada, Argentina and Australia are in a position to supply the demand more economically than can American farmers.

Most students of agriculture will agree with Secretary Wallace that his objective is right. Previous administrations have also sought to eliminate surplus production. It remains to be seen whether Mr. Wallace can devise a sound method of accomplishing his purpose.

THE SECRETARY OF LABOR.

To many observers it appeared unfortunate that on the eve of taking office in the Cabinet as Secretary of Labor the appointment of Miss Frances Perkins should be openly opposed by the American Federation of Labor. President William Green announced that his organization could never be reconciled to the appointment. Far from being dismayed by this pronouncement, Miss Perkins said the federation was entirely within its rights in taking that position and expressed her appreciation of the fact that the discussion was open and aboveboard.

The new Secretary of Labor does not in the least consider that a failure to be reconciled to her appointment will prevent the federation's cooperation with her department; Mr. Green is an old friend and she says that if he does not come to see the Secretary of Labor she will go to see the President of the A. F. L. Miss Perkins is no novice in official life. Her service as Industrial Commissioner of New York has given her practical experience, not only in the State, but many contacts throughout the Nation which will be of value in her new position.

The new secretary says that her first aim will be to aid in providing effective relief for unemployment. She will make a thorough statistical study of employment needs, and pledges herself to give "prompt, regular, frank, candid and uncolored" reports of conditions. And that "there will be no manipulation of statistics." This seems to carry an intimation that Miss Perkins is somewhat skeptical of present official reports. However, she will probably find the Labor Department statistics complete and up-to-date.

Secretary Perkins has made it clear that her aim will be to coordinate and harmonize the unemployment relief measures of the Federal Government and the States in conformity with the conception of the President that the government of the country is a combination of the Federal Government and the governments of all the States.

In this work she is heartened by personal offers from the chief labor officials of no less than thirty-five States of their cooperation and services. Miss Perkins will work for such social legislative measures as shorter hours of work, minimum wage, unemployment insurance and better working regulations. The new Secretary of Labor comes to the Cabinet as an experienced official with well-established ideas for the improvement of labor conditions and every determination to use her influence in having them put into effect.

CHEAPER MEDICAL CARE.

The final reports from the Committee on the Costs of Medical Care, which spent five years in a survey of the subject, show that much interest has been aroused throughout the nation by the committee recommendations. Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, chairman of the organization, finds that over 400 conferences and meetings have been held at which the recommendations have been considered. Many of these meetings were community conferences called by health officers and medical societies to determine whether the advice of the committee could be applied locally.

The recommendations favoring group medical service is one that has received more general discussion, not only in medical journals, but in the press generally, than any proposal ever offered for public consideration in this line. The high character of the large number of investigating physicians and the recognized need of providing less costly medical service for a large proportion of the population, are sufficient to insure serious consideration of the practical findings of the committee. Not all the comments have been favorable, but the sponsors of the group plan are the last to claim that it is universally applicable.

The principal conclusions reached as a result of the survey are to the effect that medical service should be more largely furnished by groups of physicians, that the costs should be distributed over groups of people and over periods of time, that methods of preventing disease should be more extensively applied and that facilities for medical care should be coordinated by appropriate agencies on a community basis.

As a practical example of the saving to be made in efficient medical care, the last report from the investigating committee tells how medical service that would cost $500,000 at customary private fees is provided by the Ross-Loos medical group of Los Angeles for $216,000. This is a clinic which made agreements with fourteen associations of employes to supply complete medical care at a cost of $2 per month per employe. The subscriber is entitled to service in the office, at home or in the hospital, X-ray and laboratory service and physical therapy, together with all needed drugs and dressings. The only things not included are dentistry and nursing. The subscriber's wife and children are included in complete medical care. During the year studied the clinic had an average of 6,747 subscribers with a total of nearly 19,000 eligible for service. The yearly cost amounted to $11.65 per capita. This clinic is believed to be worthy of study and emulation by employe groups in other cities.

Mr. Hoover, by pocketing the bill allowing millions to men who never received a scratch in the war, gives the Seventy-third Congress a chance to save $400,000,000. Use the knife, gentlemen!

A DISTINGUISHED LINE.

From the Boston Transcript.

When Franklin Roosevelt's original American ancestor, Claes Martenszen Van Rosenvelt, came to America about 1649, the other hundred and twenty-seven of his progenitors in that generation who were then treading this globe were scattered far and wide on both sides of the ocean. Mostly they were as ignorant of one another's existence, both men and women, as you and I are of the Bulgarian peasant toiling in his native village today who, for all we know, may be with us ancestor in common of some President of the United States to take office in the year 2533.

These forbears of Franklin Roosevelt, as Alvin Page Johnson has traced them in his book on "Franklin D. Roosevelt's Colonial Ancestors," were of many racial stocks—Dutch, French, Finnish, Scotch and English. Some were already numbered among the settlers in the great wilderness of the American Continent; others had not yet broken the ties that bound them to the old home.

But it is curious to note how the trait of distinction is continually cropping up in individuals all along the Roosevelt line. The strain of the Plymouth Colony is strong in him, for he traces back to Richard Warren, John Howland, Isaac Allerton and John Tilley of the Mayflower company, and to Thomas Southworth, stepson of Gov. Bradford. Among his ancestors in the Massachusetts Bay Colony were Peter Aspinwall, one of the first settlers of the Muddy River district, now better known as Brookline, and Anne Hutchinson. Another, of about the same remove, was the great French physician, Mathieu Lobel, personal physician to King James II after he was driven into exile.

The family line is starred with the names of magistrates, soldiers, merchants, colonels of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company—men and women who made goodly contributions to the seething American melting pot but wholly unaware that destiny was having a finger in the business to draw out of it a President for the great republic of the West.

POST HASTE

The new Senate concurred in the new Cabinet as naturally as the old Senate was confirmed in its dissent.

The large amount of currency outside the banks greatly facilitates the efforts of the lowbrow gents in caps who are assisting in the redistribution of wealth.

American checks and balances have a new meaning today—you can't check, no matter what your balance.

Detroit started this bank holiday business and it just naturally ran into quantity production.

Forty billions of deposits temporarily tied up and no panic; it is a testimonial to the imperturbability of the people.

It may promote a feeling of universal brotherhood for the banks to join the unemployed for a few days.

If Republican remnants in Congress no longer offer formidable opposition, neither do they provide convenient alibis.

The Comptroller General may yet have to settle the rivalry between the spinsters and the matrons as to whether we have a Miss Perkins or a Mrs. Wilson in the Cabinet.

Trying to sympathize with the Chinese is sometimes hard. Having abandoned Jehol without resistance they probably will begin fighting among themselves.

The people are banking on quick action by the new Congress, which is about the only operation of the kind going on today.

OLD CLOCK VAGARIES.

An aged clock down in McDonough, Ga., gets into the metropolitan news by its mysterious stopping with the death of an owner, who had wound it just before his last breath, and its equally mysterious starting after years of idleness, says the Brooklyn Eagle. It recalls of course by association of ideas the song so popular 50 years ago:

My grandfather's clock was too large for the shelf,
So it stood ninety years on the floor;
It was taller by half than the old man himself,
Though it weighed not a penny-weight more.
It was bought on the morn of the day that he was born,
And was always his treasure and pride;
But it stopped short—never to go again—
When the old man died.

However, the vagaries of clocks have compelled the attention of pretty nearly all of us, at one time or another. Some one has said that a clock is always striking when it is working steadily, which labor leaders can not but regard as anomalous.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE POOR MAN.

Not poor is he, who lacking gold
Still has the courage to press on
Even against the winter's cold
And never cries that hope is gone.

Not poor that man though penniless
Who stands up to the odds of fate
And sees in danger and distress
The struggle that may make him great.

Not poor that spirit which can find
The strength to cope with doubt and care
And never give his heart and mind
To failure and to bleak despair.

Only that man is poor who sees
His fortune swept away, and then
Greets failure like some dread disease
And has no heart to fight again.

If He Works for Praise, to Deny It Is to Keep Back Part of His Wages.
By ROBERT QUILLEN

LAST year a certain buyer brought back from Paris a number of hats made to his order. They were quite obviously masculine hats, but they were made for women.

The buyer's firm displayed the hats and offered to make others at $25. A new fashion was ready for launching.

But soon the hats appeared in cheaper stores, at $7.50, at $3.95, at $1. And then, though the fad flourished and spread far and wide, the kind of people who could pay $25 for a hat wore the things no more.

Man's first concern is to fill his stomach; his second to obtain shelter and comfort. These are his necessities, and with these the primitive was content.

But the builders of civilization required more. Having obtained security, they began to cultivate their vanity. They yearned to surpass their fellows and win the respect of the neighbors.

In America, where all are born free and equal, this ambition to be somebody is achieved by making money.

But as more and more people make money, as they have in the past and will again, those who have worked for hire rub elbows with those who work only for exercise, and wealth is no longer a synonym for exclusiveness.

A million is no distinction if everybody has one.

America needs a new measure and mark of superiority—not to encourage snobbishness, but to harness the peculiarities of human nature and give the gifted something to shoot at.

Napoleon won the loyalty of superior men by permitting them to wear a bit of red ribbon on their coat lapels. His understanding of psychology is demonstrated by the fact that American citizens have served France at the expense of their own country to win the right thus to decorate themselves.

Stalin, shrewd as Napoleon, goes further and appeals to cupidity as well as vanity. The man who serves the state uncommonly well is not only admitted to the order of something or other, but is also given a life exemption from all taxation.

There is an example America might follow to her infinite advantage.

Men crave distinction and love money. They will move mountains to win one and save the other.

Equality is a pretty theory, but foot races would be slow affairs if all entries won equal praise and equal prizes.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Inflation Schemes.
Morris (Minn.) Tribune.

A flood of inflationary schemes will afflict this country as soon as the new Democratic Congress meets in special session. They are already past due, and every depression has them, but the flood has been held back by the certain veto which awaited at the White House. According to their platform, the Democrats are not inflationists, even though they harbor a substantial number of inflationists within their ranks. A clash is inevitable, and what will come of it, no one can say except that there is good reason to believe that President Roosevelt will set his face as firmly against inflation as every other President has done. The country is not going to make rapid strides toward recovery while the President and his supporters are fighting it out with the inflationists, but curative forces will be quietly and constantly working just the same, and we'll pull through.

Two Good Rules.
Topeka Capital.

There are two fundamental statements of two of his predecessors that we hope the new President will keep well in mind. One is Hayes' apothegm that "he serves his party best who serves his country best." The other was Grover Cleveland's monumental statement that "public office is a public trust." No President can go far wrong following that road.

Things Could Be Worse.

Yes, you have a lot to be thankful for. You are not living in Manchukuo or Jehol.

If Ever.
Philadelphia Inquirer.

The world is not so much interested in what Japan hopes to get out of China as when it gets out.

They're Off!
Buffalo Courier Express.

The rush of States to ratify the repeal amendment has all the interest and excitement of a horse race.

Music in the Air.
Brooklyn Eagle.

A man capable of writing children's songs and symphonies has never before been chosen to head the Treasury Department or the United States Government. Under Mr. Woodin a harmonious fiscal policy ought to be achieved.

Commonplace.
St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is not so long ago that the world shivered at the very word ultimatum, but Japan is handing them out just now as if it belonged in that list of ten pleasantest words in dictionary vocabularies.

Lame Duck President, Too.
San Francisco Chronicle.

The possibility of a Vice President becoming a lame duck was overlooked by the drafters of the twentieth amendment. They had their eyes peeled so closely to bag the lame ducks of the House and Senate that they forgot all about the presiding officer of the Senate, who is the Vice President.

This is what escaped their attention. The new amendment states that the Congress shall assemble at least once a year on the 3d day of January. Another section, however, states that the term of the Vice President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January. There are then seventeen days after Congress meets before the terms of the President and Vice President end.

This means that a retiring Vice President can not escape being a lame duck. For those seventeen days in which he holds the gavel over the Senate he will rule as a lame duck.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Something About Locks, Which Originated in Egypt 4,000 Years Ago.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The safe which was opened in a large New York office one night last week, for the purpose of stealing the money and securities it contained, was not the job of a safe cracker, according to expert locksmiths. The public has long been of the opinion that crooks like the romantic Jimmy Valentine are an actual possibility. Many persons visualize bank robbers sandpapering their fingers to the sensitive point where they could feel the safe's tumblers drop, as did Jimmy in the famous story where he saved the girl inside the safe. Such a feat is out of the question, however, for no one could solve the combination of such a safe, and furthermore the tumblers do not drop. When such a safe is opened it is done by a person who has the combination. Regular crooks still "crack" safes.

Modern locks are based on the foundation of the old Egyptian wooden locks of 4,000 years ago. The principle, which is still used today, consisted of a long wooden key, at one end of which were placed a number of iron pegs, these pegs corresponding to the loose pins inside the lock. On entering the lock, the pegs lifted the pins, which then allowed the bolt to be moved. Though improvements in the manufacture were made during succeeding centuries, the principle has not been altered.

An improvement made during the last century by Linus Yale, jr., was adapted to the old Egyptian pin-tumbler system the modern flat key, which is far more convenient than the heavy round variety formerly used. The complicated modern locks which work without keys, through combinations, have their foundation in the discovery of a man named Barron in 1778. Barron combined the warded lock with the tumbler. The warded lock, which contains a plate with wards or projections in it, requires a key which will clear the wards in turning. The tumbler lock consists of a notch in a bolt, into which a leve, has to drop before the bolt can be drawn back by a key. Succeeding refinements of this combination have developed the intricate locks of today, which can be opened only by persons knowing the exact combination. F. C.

Beekeeping Recommended for People in Maryland; Work of the Dadant Family.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Little work and much idle land should lead people to take up beekeeping as a means of cheap food and, better still, to give them occupation for the mind, which is so sorely needed by millions of men and women. Maryland does not produce a tenth part of the honey which is used here, as it is not in the clover belt and little study is given to the subject, but almost any section, outside the sandy soil, can be made to produce a surplus of honey and, in my opinion, our Maryland mixed honey is better than the Western white honey.

The Dadant family (three generations in Illinois) have made a number of discoveries and improvements in beekeeping and better hives.

Charles Dadant moved from France to Illinois in 1863, and took up the work and ideas of Moses Quimby and James Doolittle, who had already adapted the moveable frame hive, invented by L. L. Langstroth, an Episcopal minister. Charles Dadant made two contributions to the scientific side of apiculture.

First, he decided by experiment that the standard Langstroth frame, to carry the combs for the brood, was too small for the laying capacity of a good Italian queen bee, and he made a larger sized hive to fit his improved queens, with a stronger wax foundation.

Second, he found that selecting the best queens and breeding from them was slow and uncertain, so long as he could not select and control the drones. His children, to the fourth generation, have been working on the drone problem for many years and not yet can they show definite results, except that they get the honey.

I do not want to mislead any one into thinking that a living can be made in Maryland from bees, but you can get delicious honey and much pleasure and satisfaction.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA.
Born November 6, 1856—Died March 6, 1932.

By FRANCES TAYLOR RATHER.

John Philip Sousa, our "March King," has passed
To the great world beyond; but we know
That his splendid, inspiring music will last,
And lead men as years come and go.

With ancestry foreign, he stood ever true
To his loved American land.
Our native-born son, yet all nations knew
The wonderful King of the Band.

His marches have melody, timbre and fire;
His leadership brought boundless fame.
His magical skill never failed to inspire,

His "Washington Post" and his "Liberty Bell"
Are cherished in every clime;
His great "Stars and Stripes" is without parallel—
Alluring, exultant, sublime.

John Philip Sousa, the Pulse of the land,
Has served the world well, and has won;
And when the "last call" came to him to disband,
The world answered "Sousa, well done!"

DANIELS STRESSES IDEALS OF WILSON

Declares Selfishness and Not War Is to Blame for Present Conditions.

"Today for all America and for all the world hope lies in the ideals of Woodrow Wilson, which were never more alive nor more needed than today," declared Josephus Daniels, wartime Secretary of Navy, at a special memorial service at the Wilson tomb in the National Cathedral yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Daniels said in part:

"Under this stone lies all that is mortal of Woodrow Wilson. It is dust. But there is more than dust here. There is the eternal life of an ideal. Not the man but the spirit that the man was has brought us here. We have come up to this hilltop and to this quiet chamber to capture again if we can, something of his teaching, something of his courage and faith to guide us in a period of uncertain drifting and certain doubt. We come here hungry for some portion of the high vision of Woodrow Wilson.

Always Had Proposal.

"Here in this room of shadow and quietness we may stand for a little while apart from the crisis that faces the world at the foot of this hill, and at the same time take new strength from the spirit of the man who in every crisis, and he met the greatest which shook the world, never hesitated to propose the way of solution nor in every period of distress to offer the remedy essential to restoration.

"Does America stand today looking for the safe path to follow to regain the heights of the days of Woodrow Wilson? Do its people grope in darkness for a light for their feet? Do they yearn for confidence and a return to security? Do they look through a glass darkly for light? Do they come distracted from distracted councils? If so, here, at the tomb of the greatest prophet of our times and the supreme optimist of our history, they can find the way by following in the footsteps of the noble war President, himself the greatest casualty of that conflict.

Failure to Keep Faith.

"First of all, we must rid ourselves of the notion that all the calamities that have befallen us have grown from the war in which he led us. Certainly it was a struggle, entered with consideration of its consequences, which took its toll of our best manhood and levied money burdens grievous to bear. But war had little to do with the debacle which has since broken our hopes and destroyed our prosperity. It was not America's consecrated use of the sword that brought us to the ills we bear today. It was the failure after the war to keep faith with the 'indomitable spirit and ungrudging sacrifice of our incomparable soldiers' which lies at the bottom of our troubles.

"When Mr. Wilson returned from Paris with the Covenant of Peace, the Nation was weary of war and ready not only to put down the sword but also to be lulled into laying aside the high conscience with which the sword had been lifted. It was more pleasant to listen to the promises that if this country would refrain from alliance or association with other nations we could stand apart and reap unheard-of material gain. The Midas touch to the American heart made us for a time oblivious to the proud recollection that it was our precept and example which had in those early days of the never-to-be-forgotten November lifted the nations of the world to the lofty levels of vision and achievement upon which the great war for democracy and right was fought and won."

Saw Defeat of Ideals.

"In the growth of this material spirit, he saw not only the immediate defeat of his own ideals. He looked forward like a prophet to the catastrophe it must certainly bring even upon the material-minded world. Ten years ago he wrote and pointed 'The Road Away From Revolution,' the road away from the economic collapse which now engulfs us. The world, he said, had been made safe from the assault upon democracy of an insolent and ignorant Hohenzollern, but democracy remained to be made safe from the insolent and ignorant capitalists who 'seemed to regard the men whom they used as mere instruments of profit.'

"The nature of men and of organized society, he said, ten years ago, dictates the maintenance in every field of action of justice and of right dealing; and it is essential to efficacious thinking in this critical matter that we should not entertain a narrow or technical conception of justice. By justice the lawyer generally means the prompt, fair, and open application of impartial rules; but we call ours a Christian civilization, and a Christian conception of justice must be much higher. It must include sympathy and helpfulness and a willingness to forego self-interest in order to promote the welfare, happiness and contentment of others and of the community as a whole. This is what our age is blindly feeling in its reaction against what it deems the too great selfishness of the capitalistic system.

"We can look back today and see that here was prophecy, and we can look back and see, too, that it was received by a world bent upon material gain with no more consideration than is usually accorded to prophets. The blind, the insolent and ignorant selfishness which had succeeded the idealism of the war rushed on without hesitation to its own ruin."

Tack Kills Wilhelm's Photographer.

Pou Becomes House Dean With Retirement of Haugen

Iowan Is Last Member to Have Served Before Twentieth Century.

(Associated Press.)

With the retirement of Representative Gilbert N. Haugen, of Iowa, Representative Edward W. Pou, of North Carolina, is now dean of the House.

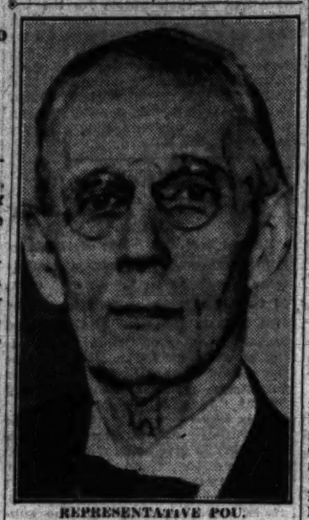
Haugen, author of many farm relief proposals when he was chairman of the Agriculture Committee under Republican control, yesterday said he was "going back to Northwood, to help try to straighten things out."

The silver-haired Iowan is the last member to have served in the House in the nineteenth century. He was elected from the Fourth Iowa District as a compromise candidate for the Fifty-sixth Congress and entered the House March 4, 1899. He was defeated in the Democratic landslide last November.

"I enjoyed my service of 34 years," Haugen said. "The Democrats taking over Congress have a big job to do. I'm afraid they won't be able to do much to help, the job is so big."

Pou has represented the Fourth District of North Carolina since March 4, 1901. He came two years before John N. Garner, who Saturday became Vice President.

Twice Pou stepped aside in his seniority right to the Speakership because of his health. When Garner was elected Speaker of the Seventy-second Congress, he was supported by Pou, who even offered to relinquish the chairmanship of his powerful Rules Committee to aid the Texan.



REPRESENTATIVE POU.

Although having served four more years than Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic choice as successor to Garner, Pou did not enter the race. However, he supported Representative McDuffie, of Alabama, against the Illinois veteran.

Pou was on President Roosevelt's inaugural arrangements committee set up by Congress, and rode with Mr. Roosevelt to the inaugural ceremony.

CATHEDRAL COMMEMORATES INAUGURATION OF ROOSEVELT

dom and statesmanship of national leaders, the bishop declared. In speaking directly of President Roosevelt he said:

"To him who is to lead us we pledge our loyalty and whole-hearted support, praying that God may give him wisdom and courage for his great tasks."

The bishop pointed out that the first and immediate concern was "the easing of the strain that has brought misery and a consistent discontent to millions of our people." "This is largely an economic problem," the bishop said, "and to its solution every loyal citizen must make glad and willing contribution. In our united endeavors to restore normal conditions and to secure to our people a surcease from anxiety, let us not assume that the stabilization of industry is in itself a sovereign remedy for all our ills." "But," he warned, "moral and spiritual qualities are basic and there can be no revival that gives promise of reasonable national prosperity until the people of this Nation turn again with humility and quickened devotion to Him in whose hands are the issues and destinies of men and of nations."

Clergy representing various Christian communions marched in the procession with diocesan and cathedral clergy and special music was given by the cathedral choir under the direction of Edgar Priest. The Rev. Frank Wilson, of Hyde Park, N. Y., rector of the church of which President Roosevelt is a senior warden, was in the chancel.

The Right Rev. G. Ashton Oldham, Bishop of the Diocese of Albany, was present and marched in the procession, later occupying one of the stalls in the great choir. The inaugural committee for the churches and on religious services includes the Rev. Dr. James Shea Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives. Another bishop present was the Right Rev. Peter Rowe, Bishop of Alaska.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Raymond L. Wolven, canon of Washington Cathedral and chaplain to Bishop Freeman, and other members of the Cathedral staff of clergy.

Among the members of the Diplomatic Corps at the service were the French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, the German Ambassador, F. W. von Prittwitz und Gaffron; the Belgian Ambassador and Mme. May, the Charge d'Affaires of Switzerland, Louis H. Michell; the Minister of Finland, L. Astrom; the Minister of Greece, Charalambos Simopoulos; the minister of Bulgaria and Mme. Radeff, the Minister of Sweden, W. Bostrum; the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. van Royen, the Minister of Norway and Mme. Bachke, the Minister of Guatemala and Mrs. Racinos, the Lithuanian Minister, Bronius Balutis; the Minister of the Irish Free State, Michael MacWhite; the Minister of Jugoslavia, Dr. Leonide Pitamic; the Danish Minister and Mme. Wadsted, the Minister of Colombia, Dr. Fabio Lozano; the Charge d'Affaires of Egypt, Nicolas Khalil Bey; the Minister of Siam, Subarn Sompati; the Minister of Panama and Mme. Alfaro, the Charge d'Affaires of Nicaragua, Senor Luis Manuel Debayle; the Charge d'Affaires of Costa Rica, Senor Manuel Gonzalez.

Striking Sermon Quotations.

Many striking points were made by Bishop Freeman in his address. Among those especially noted by the congregation were the following:

"Our severest trials as a people have repeatedly proved to be undisguised blessings."

"Nothing so develops our individual or corporate strength as a crisis."

"No finer demonstration of our capacity to endure has been furnished than what we have witnessed during these eventful and trying years."

"Each new administration furnishes an opportunity for a fresh advance, stimulates initiative, and opens the way for newer and larger experiments."

"The misfortunes we have experienced have been largely the inevitable penalties of forgotten or disregarded precepts. Increasing wealth and power, selfishly and unlawfully used, have ushered in conditions that have checked our progress and impaired our heritage."

"We have in our folly thought that legislation is the panacea for all our ills."

"It is a singularly appealing and critical situation that confronts us—one that calls for courage, wisdom and patience. It compels us to avoid the quackeries of charletanism, on the one hand and the counsel of insular, selfish and self-seeking individuals on the other."

None Can Live to Self.

"We believe there is sufficient wisdom here within our confines, once it is mobilized and enlisted in the service of the Nation's rehabilitation, to return us to ways of happiness, prosperity and peace."

"One thing is imperatively demanded—that we so construct our house that it shall be for the benefit and enrichment of the Nation as a whole. There can be nothing of sectional or class interest in our undertaking."

"No nation or individual can live to itself; this is more demonstrably true today than at any time in the world's history."

"The legend on our coins, 'In God We Trust,' is not a meaningless phrase. It is the affirmation of our people that 'except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that built it.'"

"Conduct is determined by deep and unchanging religious convictions. We have separated wisely the things of church and State. But we may not separate the profession of our faith from our accepted duties as citizens."

"No man may consistently claim the protection of a government where cheap and voluble professions of loyalty are not sustained by a ready obedience to its laws or who refuses to recognize the principles and traditions upon which it is founded."

"There is an insistent demand for more of real patriotism in our life."

Prominent Democrats.

Many members of the Democratic National Committee and Democratic State committees were in the congregation, including Mrs. Edgar Alexander, of Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Emile Bienvenu, of New Orleans, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Bodziak, of Wilmington, Del., and James M. Tunnell, of Georgetown, Del.; Mrs. J. C. Burchinal, of Fairmont, W. Va.; Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, of Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Charles L. Donohoe, of Oakland, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Duffy, of Rutland, Vt.; Mr. Richard F. Mitchell, of Fort Dodge, and Mrs. Flora Cotton Etter, of Sicourney, Iowa; Mrs. Florence G. Helvering, Topeka, Kans.; Mrs. Harrison Parkman, Emporia, Kans.; Hugh Howell, Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Stella Akin, Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. Maury Hughes, Dallas, Tex.; Charles D. # Labor Paper Lauds Roosevelt Address

Daily Herald Says Policy Sounds Death Knell of Individualist.

London, March 5 (A.P.).—The Daily Herald, a British labor organ, praised President Roosevelt's inaugural address today, saying it has evidence of "a spirit which makes victory possible."

The President's policy, as outlined in the speech, the paper said, is "remarkably similar" to the British Labor party's policy.

"He sees plainly that it is the government itself which must do things or get them done," the Daily Herald added. "The speech sounds the death knell of the American individualist."

Four Grandchildren White House Guests

(United Press.)

A little flaxen-haired girl, nearly 6 years old, stood at a window on the second floor of the White House yesterday and had a grand time waving and smiling at the hundreds of tourists walking through the grounds.

It was "Sistie," whose real name is Anna Eleanor Dall, granddaughter of the President of the United States, daughter of his only daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall.

She enjoyed the crowds. Those who saw her waved back.

All the Roosevelt grandchildren, four of them, are staying at the White House this week. "Sistie" is the oldest, and the youngest is just 5 months old.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE DELIVERED

"The Religion of Spiritual Vision" Is Subject of William E. Brown.

A lecture on "Christian Science: The Religion of Spiritual Vision," was delivered yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall by William E. Brown, C. S. B., of Los Angeles, Calif. Mr. Brown is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Lewis P. Andresen. This lecture was given under the auspices of First, Second, Third and Fourth Churches of Christ, Scientist, of this city. The lecturer said in part:

Perhaps it would be difficult to frame a more important or comprehensive message to mortals than that given by Paul when he wrote to the Corinthians. "For the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." From this it will be seen that the highest possible attainment is to gain the ability to know the unseen things of Spirit.

Ringing down the centuries comes the question of Christ Jesus, the master Scientist, clearly indicating the cause of all human discord—"Having eyes, see ye not?" Paralleling this fundamental question, there arises from those who in a measure comprehend the meaning of the Wayshower, the age-long cry, "Lord, that our eyes may be opened." In response to this cry, Christian Science comes to you showing how this age-long yearning may be answered in a practical manner.

Thus, we are to discuss tonight a truly scientific religion which exists for the ultimate purpose of providing spiritual perception to mankind, to the end that all may perceive the things described by Paul: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

Stressed by Solomon.

The importance of gaining spiritual vision is stressed by Solomon, who declares, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." A careful study of the Bible in the light of Christian Science shows that a lack of spiritual vision is the cause of sin, sickness and death and that the only permanent and universal remedy for these evils is to acquire spiritual vision, and finally to instruct others how to gain this vision.

What of the woman, Mrs. Eddy, who brought to this age the fundamental necessity of gaining spiritual vision? From whom did she receive this ability; this impelling spiritual urge to seek the things of God, to the end that she might show them unto the creature? She was led step by step, and proof by proof, to discover what she intuitively believed to be true. Of this she writes in her book "Retrospection and Introspection" (p. 24.): "The discovery came to pass in this way. During twenty years prior to my discovery I had been trying to trace all physical effects to a mental cause; and in the latter part of 1866 I gained the scientific certainty that all causation was Mind, and every effect a mental phenomenon."

It is interesting and significant to note that Mrs. Eddy's discovery of Christian Science in 1866 is now being substantiated in considerable degree by leading physicists of today.

Pure Morals Vital.

The ability to see the universe as God sees it is the ultimate goal of Christianity. This ability is not dependent upon intellect nor a wealth of empirical knowledge, but sound morals are an absolute necessity; in other words, only the pure in heart can see God.

In stressing these points, do you not see what a great moral force Christian Science is? Do you not see how its method of salvation—the gaining of spiritual vision—begins immediately to improve all conditions? Do you not see that Christian Science is encouraging and helping individuals, and is bringing to the world real, permanent salvation?

Once convince an individual, through proof, that spiritual thinking confers upon him improved morals, health and prosperity and you have created an important factor in the work of redeeming the world, a factor which immediately begins to shape his life activity in accordance with the Sermon on the Mount and to cause him to put into practical operation the Golden Rule. Such a one is as much interested in giving as he is in receiving, and thus he encourages others to acquire spiritual vision, the only real remedy for the woes of mortality.

(Associated Press.)

Harold L. Ickes, of Chicago, in assuming secretaryship of the Department of Interior in the Roosevelt administration, becomes guardian of about the same number of Indians as are thought to have roamed the plains at the time Christopher Columbus discovered this country.

Calculation that the Indian population of 340,000 under Secretary Ickes' supervision is approximately that of 441 years ago is based on historical research of the Indian Bureau. There are 200 tribes settled on the many different reservations, all wards of the Government.

Venizelos Leading In Greek Election

Veteran Premier Is Ahead, but Result Still Is Doubtful.

Athens, March 5 (A.P.).—A few early returns tonight in the Greek parliamentary elections indicated a trend toward Premier Elutherios Venizelos' coalition party, but it was too early to forecast the final result. Election day passed quietly.

Opposing the followers of Premier Venizelos, who is 69 years old and has been premier seven times, was the coalition of Panagiotes Tsaldares, which includes three parties having 105 members in the previous chamber.

Government finance and economies were the major issues in the election.

German Voting Causes Disturbances in Spain

Barcelona, Spain, March 5 (A.P.).—Communists shouting "Down Hitler!" became embroiled with the police at the docks today when members of the German colony were taken in small boats to a German liner for the purpose of voting in the German election. Police quelled the disturbance.

PRESIDENT'S OATH TOPIC OF MINISTER

Dr. Porter Is First Baptist Preacher; Special Rites at Other Churches.

President Roosevelt's "inaugural oath on the platform of love," based on the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians in the old Roosevelt family Bible as he was inducted into office, was the theme of the Rev. Dr. Samuel Judson Porter at the First Baptist Church yesterday morning. The speaker called attention to the antiquity and the significance of the oath of office, declaring that it "represented the apex of devotion to cause."

Dr. Porter, after pointing out that the President-elect went to the house of prayer just before going to the Capitol and to the fact that the President closed his inaugural address with a prayer for the blessing and guidance of God, asserted: "We are going to find our way out of our present difficulties only as we take heed to the words of the Apostle Paul in the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians: 'And yet show I unto you a more excellent way.' If we take this chapter into all our political life, into all our plans for rehabilitation, I venture to say that we will find the clew to all our problems."

Other Church Services.

Under the leadership of the inaugural committee of welcome to Washington churches nearly every church in the city held special services, thousands of visitors as well as the regular congregations attending.

Members of the committee, headed by the Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, included the Rev. John K. Cartwright Dr. Abram Simon, the Rev. James H. Taylor, the Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo and the Rev. Charles T. Warner.

"The Inauguration of Saul" was Dr. McCartney's topic at the Covenant First Presbyterian Church at 11 a. m. The Rev. Godfrey Chobot spoke at the Sixth Presbyterian Church on "Our Influence." "Coronation Hours" was the subject of a talk by the Rev. J. Harvey Dunham at the Western Presbyterian Church. "God and the Nation" and "To Whom Does the Nation Belong?" were the subjects of the sermons at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. The services at this church were under the direction of Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo and Dr. Albert Evans.

The Rev. F. J. Bohanan conducted a special service at the old Rock Creek Church, founded in 1719, one of the oldest points of historical interest in the Capital and to which a great number of visitors were attracted.

Special inaugural services also were held at the Church of the Transfiguration, under direction of the Rev. J. J. Queally, at St. Andrew's under the supervision of the rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder, at Ascension Church by the Rev. F. A. Parsons and at St. Margaret's by the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith.

The Rev. Edward Gabler, rector of Old Christ Church, 620 G street southeast, held another special inaugural service and Communion at 11 a. m. Other Episcopal services were held at St. Agnes' Church, St. John's Church and the Church of the Epiphany.

A special solemn high mass was held at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University at 9 a. m. Other masses were held at 7:30, 8, 10 and 11 a. m.

"The Foolish Obsession" was the topic of a sermon given at the All Souls' Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets, by Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce.

Call of God Topic.

"The Call of God to the Nation" was Dr. Perkins' sermon yesterday at the Universalist National Memorial Church. The Rev. James H. McBroom, of the Church of Christ, spoke on "The King's New Deal" yesterday at 7:45 p. m.

"The Government Shall Be Upon His Shoulders" was the subject of the Rev. Carl C. Rasmussen's talk at the Luther Place Memorial Church. Thomas Circle. Gerhard E. Lenski, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, conducted a special service.

The Rev. John Compton Ball preached on "Our Greatest Inauguration" at the Metropolitan Baptist Church last night. "Coronation Day" was the topic of the Rev. W. S. Abernethy's sermon at the Calvary Baptist Church.

"The President's Oath" was the subject of Dr. Allen A. Stockdale's sermon at the First Congregational Church. Other special inaugural services with sermons touching on current topics were held at many other of the Washington churches of all faiths.

Man Who Vowed Not to Go to Barber Does So as Hoover Steps Down.

Clarkston, Wash., March 5 (A.P.).—Untrimmed since Herbert Hoover was inaugurated President four years ago, G. R. Stauffer walked the streets beardless today.

From the moment President Hoover took oath of office until another Democrat occupied the White House, Stauffer vowed, no barber's shears would touch either his beard or hair.

When informed Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes was administering the oath of office to Franklin D. Roosevelt, Stauffer stepped into a barber's chair. Soon his iron gray beard and gray locks were scattered over the floor.

"Happy days are here again," he remarked, "we've got a new President—a Democrat—and a new deal. Besides, I've saved a lot of 25-cent pieces."

ROOSEVELT PRAISED BY FATHER HURNEY

Priest Says Prayer Before Taking Oath of Office Was Significant.

Invocation for the success of the new administration and its leader—President Roosevelt—was made by the Rev. Francis J. Hurney at a solemn high mass yesterday at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

The mass was attended by the delegation of Tammany which marched in the inaugural parade. Father Hurney was assisted by the Friars of the Atonement.

"It is a happy augury," Father Hurney declared in his address at the service, "that Mr. Roosevelt, before going to the Capitol, retired to his church and there laid open his heart to his God and sought His Help. And again at the end of his inauguration speech, he besought the Lord God in heaven to aid him in his plans for the welfare of the people.

Souls Ignored Recently.

"God and even his name has been more or less outlawed in the councils of the nations in the last few decades," Father Hurney said. "The fact that man is a composite being of soul and body has been ignored by the pseudo-scientists and godless politicians. The material, the mechanical, has been made to take the place of God and the soul.

"The chaos that has resulted from this ignoring of man's soul in education, in politics, in social science, has brought us to the present terrible condition in which we find ourselves. Thanks be to God that our new President, on his very first day, gives as the real keynote of his plans, the return to God and the knowledge of the first end of man."

Howard Directs Music.

The special musical program arranged for the service was under the direction of Harry Wheaton Howard and sung by the Immaculate Conception senior choir, with Miss Kathryn Bowers, contralto, and Miss Florence Yocum, soprano, as soloists. The boys' sanctuary choir sang the processional and recessional.

The 5 o'clock service broadcast from the church through Station WOL, included the special prayer for authorities by Archbishop Carroll. Father Thomas Ryder, Paulist preacher, gave the address. The blessing of the sick and other devotionals took place at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the church. Frederick Nolan, baritone, was guest soloist.

Mt. Everest Expedition Proceeds to Base Camp

Darjeeling, India, March 5 (U.P.).—Members of the British Mount Everest expedition today received the benediction of Tibetan lamas before proceeding to their base camp.

Machine Embarrasses Students Who Are Tardy

Vancouver, B. C., March 5 (A.P.). A "punctuality machine," which flashes a cheerful "welcome" to prompt students and a sarcastic "late again" to those who are tardy, has been invented by Dr. C. M. Shrum, of the physics department at the University of British Columbia.

A jangle of bells adds to the discomfiture of the late scholar. The apparatus is set in motion by an invisible beam of ultra violet, which is cut by each student as he enters the room.

Mrs. Hoover Gay En Route to Coast

Former First Lady Says Travel Does Not Tire Because of Practice.

St. Louis, March 5 (A.P.).—Apparently light-hearted and happy, Mrs. Herbert Clark Hoover, wife of the retired President, passed through St. Louis today en route to the home of her son, Herbert, jr., near Pasadena, Calif.

Mrs. Hoover, who boarded a Pennsylvania train with her husband directly after the inaugural exercises at the Capitol yesterday, left the train at North Philadelphia with Herbert, jr., while the former President went on to New York with their other son, Allan.

"I have had a pleasant trip and every one has been nice to me," she said, as she got off the train here. Despite the busy days she has experienced as the First Lady of the Land, Mrs. Hoover looked well and remarked that traveling did not tire her, since "I have been doing it all my life."

Anita Stewart Facing Los Angeles Operation

Los Angeles, March 5 (A.P.).—Anita Stewart, star actress of the silent film days, is to undergo a major abdominal operation tomorrow morning in a Los Angeles hospital.

Miss Stewart has been under observation a week at the hospital and her physicians decided today to operate. In attendance with her has been her husband, George Peabody Converse, son of E. C. Converse, former United States Steel Corporation executive.

Nottingham Lord Mayor Warns U. S. to Quit Jazz

Netherfield, England, March 5 (U.P.).—Commenting on the financial situation in the United States, Seely Whitby, Lord Mayor of Nottingham, said in a speech here today:

"If America wishes to emerge from the crisis, she must turn her back on jazz and return to Anglo-Saxon grit and determination.

The Meanderer

Wanders Among the New-Old Kitchen Kettles of Copper — and Other Wares, Both Useful and Ornamental.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Shining rows of copper kettles may brighten the kitchen of the modern housewife, as they did the kitchens of her grandmother, for a Connecticut avenue store which supplies many of Washington's cooking utensils is sponsoring copper once more.

Pots and pans and teakettles in the cheery copperware are lined with chromium, which is nontarnishable and proof against hard wear. The efficiency of copper for cookery because of quick penetration and even distribution of heat is well known to housewives of today as it must have been to their domestic ancestors.

For 79 cents this store offers as an introductory value a 2-quart saucepan, which would cost $1.30 ordinarily.

Mixing bowls in sets of five in soft green, blue or other colors, will associate well with the copper utensils, both from color and utility considerations. These bowls are made by the makers of a famous kind of teapot known for its durability. Both the bowls and teapots are selling in the housewares department of an F street store.

A glassware known for many years as practicable for oven use may be artistically monogrammed at low cost in the housewares department of the big store just mentioned. The monogram in plain etching on the glass or in colors offsets the utilitarian aspect of this plain oven glass. And of course the colored monogramming is washproof.

A slow-speed orange juice extractor that is sure of a welcome has arrived in the housewares department of an important big store. Its improved extracting method and its lower price of $3.95 are distinct advantages which this new device offers.

Artistic little Dresden figurines for homes decorated in colonial effect have nothing of the utilitarian about them, but nevertheless have many buyers in a busy housewares department. They cost as little as 50 cents each.

Other fragile bits for decoration only are bubble balls of glass, very closely resembling soap bubbles, which float on water in bowls for table use.

When a patented friller, which the Meanderer has found, gets to work on prosaic vegetables, such an onions, carrots, beets and turnips, there is little of the ordinary left about them. This friller makes long thin strips of vegetables to be used either raw or cooked, and in combination the vegetables so cut are effective for use with steaks or roasts. This new device costs just $1 in a Connecticut avenue shop.

Mrs. Dern Will Start House-Hunting at Once

(Associated Press.)

The wife of the incoming Secretary of War, George H. Dern, of Salt Lake City, is not losing any time in getting located in Washington. The first thing this morning when the former Governor of Utah goes to his War Department office, Mrs. Dern will start the first of her house-hunting expeditions.

"We want a house not so much for ourselves," Secretary Dern said yesterday, "but for our children, so that they may be with us as much as possible, and," he added with a proud chuckle, "a house with a yard, especially for our grandchildren."

Paraguayan Deputies To Study War Decree

Asuncion, Paraguay, March 5 (A.P.). The Chamber of Deputies will meet tomorrow to consider a formal declaration of war against Bolivia, with whom Paraguay has been engaged in warfare over the Gran Chaco border area.

The Senate has indorsed the declaration.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

We aren't so puffed up about sleeves this new season, are we? And for a good reason—the old, old reason of overproduction. Too many big sleeves spoiled the chic, and this season scarcely a balloon sleeve is in smart sight.

The straight and tight sleeve is not so popular either. For the fact is that it takes a perfect arm to wear it—neither too thin nor too fat, and proportioned above and below the elbow—it has been said by artists who paint thousands of beauties that not one in said thousand has perfect arms! Well, since the long, tight sleeve is merciless in exposing the arm for the exact shape it is—Dame Fashion withdraws the balloon sleeves with one hand and with the other gives us a modified, better decorated, more subtle, and more intricate sleeves.

Subdued puffs and incrustations, many, many fine tucks, some subtle pleats, all appear on the sleeve—which still retains its importance. The long, tight sleeve with a jacket or bolero, or a simply added bell-shaped sleeve effect in the same or contrasting color is chic, too. And the short sleeve varying in length displays positive charm in its ingenuity.

Modify your balloon sleeves then to fit the new mode. A dressmaker can do it for you with a little imagination. This hint is just to save you a heartache if you bought a good dress with those sleeves last spring. The chances are that with a little thinking on your part and the help of your maid or dressmaker, you can make it look like this season's model.

• • • •

Just the right touch—and the same old design seems a new one. With the tried and true attractiveness of the old one—important, these days, not to make a mistake in one's spring dress, isn't it? So if we take on an old favorite with a new idea, like the spring dress I sketched for you today, well, we are smart, both mentally and sartorially.

This dress is new in the way it suggests the new straight silhouette, without being too obvious about it. And in color, it is gray, trimmed with blue—a popular spring combination. The waistline can be anything you care to call it—either a double waistline, or a wide-girdled one. And the jacket just changes the outfit that much—to make it look like a second one!

Even if you haven't time to make all the lovely handkerchiefs you would like, you can take this week's illustrated leaflet and turn it over to your maid or even your dressmaker and tell whoever it is to make you a whole new handkerchief box full of handkerchiefs. Have her give you a price per handmade handkerchief—and you will find that with bits of lovely materials left over from different frocks, this leaflet, and her finger work, you will have all the lovely handkerchiefs you could ever want. Of course, if you make them yourself in your spare finger time, it will be even more fun and cheaper, and, whichever way you get them done, at least you will have them! Send for this week's illustrated leaflet of handkerchief designs and see for yourself. Be sure to address your letter to Dare, The Washington Post, and inclose an envelope which is stamped and addressed to yourself.

What Today Means to You

"PISCES."

IF MARCH 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:50 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m., and from 8:15 p. m. to 9:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m.

You may encounter difficulties of a family nature on this day, difficulties arising through the misconduct of some one in your immediate family or possibly that of a near relative. Nothing of a serious nature, but temporarily it will be quite disturbing. Business will be dull.

The child born on this March 6 will quite possibly give his parents a good many moments of anxiety. Full of fun and mischievous to a degree, the child will seem to fall from one escapade into another. A tendency to be deceitful will be apparent, and a nature that likes to "put one over" will make adequate parental supervision difficult of accomplishment.

If March 6 is the date of your birth, you are in all probability a very religious person, one who sees evidences of divine guidance in practically all that goes on about him. You are a spiritual person and there is something of the mystic about you. Take care not to lose yourself too completely in metaphysical contemplations; one must maintain a good balance. You are the type of person who is tempted to interest himself in some one field to the exclusion of all else. You are inclined to overspecialize.

Born on March 6, you are a lovable person; there is nothing petty in your make up. You are very tolerant and understanding, always eager to help any one who seems to have gotten off the beaten path. There is something of the reformer about you and at times you are a bit overzealous in advancing you idealistic views. You are not at all an impractical person. You have broad mental vision, you are honest and sincere, and you are able to cooperate and to get others to cooperate with you. You have a head for figures and you seem quick to grasp a business situation. You are a family man or woman in every sense of the word. You are most happy when in the company of your family, you adore your husband or wife and worship your children. You are a strict parent.

Successful people born March 6:

Suez Canal Directors To Study Profit Loss

Paris, March 5 (U.P.).—The council of the Suez Canal Co., comprising 32 shipping magnates from various countries, will meet here tomorrow to consider means of stemming the huge decrease in canal receipts.

In two years the canal's takings have dropped approximately $10,000,000, partly because shippers are diverting vessels by way of the cape to avoid the heavy canal dues, while American vessels plying to the Far East are increasingly using the Panama passage.

SO THIS IS RENO

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Dearest Mother: I am so impressed by the number and length of the long distance calls the Reno prisoners put in. The telephone company must make more money from Reno than any place else. I was sitting with a girl this afternoon by her bed, and in what seemed like a comparatively few minutes she talked $80 to New York. "Well there goes $80," she said when she hung up. She wasn't sure she could reach her beau after he left the office, so she couldn't wait until 8:30. Another talks to her mother in Palm Beach every night (some of these Florida calls are $200), and Clare talks with her beau every night and sometimes during the day. She figures that her end of the calls have amounted to over $2,000 during the three months. That doesn't count the times he has called her, which are just as often. They have the same kind of long and leisurely conversations that one has in the same town. Now that her nurse and child have left I eat almost every meal with her in her apartment. I told you how worried she was about her papers on account of the children. I thought her husband did a very nice thing, especially when you think he knows she is going to remarry at once. He sent her a telegram saying, "Don't worry about papers not arriving. Have signed and sent to lawyer. Changes negligible."

She telephoned him that night and thanked him. The only change he had made was that if either party wanted to get within the twenty miles stipulated, while the children were in the custody of the other, he or she could see them every other Sunday. Clare's mother has written her from Florida asking her not to marry in Chicago and not to marry too soon after she gets back, so she has decided to wait until March 15. You would really think she was giving her mother the moon by doing that for her. I am sick about her leaving a week from Monday, as she is right here on my floor, and yet not the type to bother me at all. She is the understanding kind that I can say I'm busy if I don't feel like seeing her when she comes in my room, and she can do the same with me, and we don't get on each other's nerves. I can't believe my time will ever be up. It seems endless. I feel that I have been in this room for two years. The town being so small, one gets to feel like a fixture on the main street.

Anne Clay's husband is in town, and she is lunching and dining with him. He is on his way to Honolulu and stopped off to see her for four days. They seem perfectly friendly. She is divorcing him because he never supported her—never made any money in fact. But otherwise she is fond enough of him. They have three children.

I went to the movies this afternoon for the second time since I have been here. Why, I don't know when the Drew case is going on in the courthouse next door. So much more dramatic than any movie. That is another funny thing. They are running into each other in the street all the time. After all, they both have to get air. I saw them meet. He tipped his hat and she seemed to nod her head a little. I couldn't see her expression, as I was walking behind her.

I want to go home now. I am terribly restless, if not a little "coo-coo" like many of the prisoners. I have two calendars, hoping it will make the days go quicker.

With much love for you and sister and I hope soon to hear you are feeling much better in the warm climate.

Devotedly, ELIZABETH.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

RED FLANNEL UNDERWEAR.

SOME years ago, when we were sitting on top of the world, most of us abandoned red flannel underwear. These garments had long befriended our forebears as well as ourselves. They had earned the right to be called the friend of our race. But there was some talk that such garments were not pretty and were not worn by the four hundred, whereupon, with callousness characteristic of the time, we threw these established friends into the rubbish box.

When called upon for a defense the attorneys for red flannel underwear had no reports of research laboratories to offer as evidence and there was nothing to do but to let the culprit pass out. And now it appears that we were hasty.

For a quarter of a century we have been solving health problems one by one. The worst of the lot that remains is rheumatism and arthritis. Heart disease is rooted in rheumatism and arthritis. The delving into rheumatism and arthritis has just begun and only a few details are known. One group of facts relates to temperature. Heat is good for rheumatism and cold makes it worse.

It is accepted that the disease is far more prevalent in cold climates than in warm ones. People who are prone to attacks do better if they go South for the winter. The climate cure is being pushed. A dry, warm climate is thought to be better than one where there is much fog and rain and the air is saturated with moisture much of the time.

Examinations of the skin in different parts of the body made with very delicate thermometers devised to register surface temperatures show that arthritic people are as cold as they feel. They do not resist cold well. They have cold feet and legs. They suffer from exposure to weather and those of them who work in the open become stiff in the joints, they creak, and their fingers are crooked as well as stiff. They are said to be worn out with work and age, but the chances are that exposure to weather is responsible.

"After the Ball Is Over"

The "Charity Ball" is over. Hundreds and possibly thousands of people bought tickets thinking they were helping a worthy cause. They had been solicited over the telephone by someone who said he was an official of the charity or philanthropic enterprise.

Where did the money go? In many cases, little, if any, of the money went to any charitable use. Professional promoters of "benefits" ply a profitable racket in Washington. They not only mislead many persons who want to be helpful, but, at the same time, divert money sorely needed by legitimate charitable institutions.

When you are solicited, particularly by telephone, determine who is calling you, for oftentimes fictitious names are used. Find out where the money goes. If twenty cents goes to the telephone solicitor and ten cents goes to the messenger collecting your money; how much out of your charity dollar will be left after "other" expenses of the benefit are paid?

"After the Ball is Over" means far too often that the only benefit of the occasion is the financial gain of parasites who prey upon the public in the name of Charity.

The appearance of this advertisement in these columns, is evidence that this newspaper cooperates with and supports the Better Business Bureau for your protection.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

SKIN CLEAREST WHEN HEALTH IS AT HEIGHT.

THE tawny, gypsy type, the South African damsel, the red-skinned Indians, will never be pink and white complexioned. Not, at least, until science discovers some magic lotion that will, with a hokus-pokus prayer, change the pigment in the skin which determines its natural color. In the meantime, you olive-skinned beauties can go right on making the most of your particular type, and the china doll type should continue to be fair and delicately lovely.

You have probably noticed, however, that your own skin, whether it be fair or dark, changes its hue at times. Even the fairest skin loses its freshness and looks cloudy and sallow when general health is impaired. When the digestive tract is not kept open and functioning properly, not only is the skin subject to eruptions, but to a heavy, sallow, discolored look.

Have you ever awakened with a morning grouch, feeling heavy and blue and not knowing entirely why, and then noticed that your skin was several shades darker, as though some one drew a dull yellow or brown curtain across it?

When your skin takes on that leaden look, the first thing to do is to make sure that elimination is not impaired or constipation causing the trouble. Next, stimulate the circulation not only locally but throughout your system. Take a warm shower, scrubbing with a coarse cloth and a good soap, or a body brush, then let the water get gradually colder and colder. An occasional salt rub is excellent. Have a cupful of ordinary table salt handy, and while the body is moist rub well over skin of body. Then rinse grains away quite thoroughly.

Get into the habit of doing a few setting-up exercises before an open window in the morning.

And treat your face to a creaming with cleansing cream, followed by a slap-slapping, briskly, with a pad of cotton wrung out of iced water and dipped into skin tonic. Just sponging the skin with the tonic won't do the trick. It's the brisk, quick, staccato slaps upward and outward that will bring the blood tingling to the surface. The skin should look shades lighter with just this pep rally alone.

If exposure to sun and wind has coarsened the skin and made it look darker, bleaching treatments will help. Bleaching treatments are also necessary for most women past 25, because as we get older the skin has a tendency to darken somewhat.

My bulletins on freckles and masques contain very complete home recipes for preparations and packs to bleach the skin. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for these. Also ask for Health Rules Bulletin.

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask here. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MEN ~ not Machines

"It is men, rather than factories or machinery, who inspire confidence."

(From the book "Standards of Business" by Elwood E. Rice, LL.D.)

IN this mechanical age, we see on every side machines of wondrous precision, delicacy and skill. Indeed modern industry owes its large-scale production, and the ability to standardize its products, to the economy and efficiency of labor-saving machines.

Nevertheless your best assurance of the character of a manufacturing concern is not its huge batteries of machines, nor its factory buildings, but the personality of those who control its standards. It is the men, rather than the buildings or machines, who have a responsibility to you who purchase their products.

The Rice Leaders of the World Association represents men—not machines. Its membership is composed of manufacturing concerns whose executives are worthy your confidence—men of character, whose factories give employment to thousands of skilled workers, and whose modern machines are the instruments through which millions of people are supplied with dependable merchandise and service. After years of rightly applied effort, these men have established nation-wide reputations for adherence to the standards defined in the following

Qualifications for Membership:

HONOR: A recognized reputation for fair and honorable business dealings.

QUALITY: An honest product, of quality truthfully represented.

STRENGTH: A responsible and substantial financial standing.

SERVICE: A recognized reputation for conducting business in prompt and efficient manner.

The Emblem of Business Character of the Rice Leaders of the World Association portrays the principles of its members by word and symbol, and furnishes a sure index to their character and personality. It appears in members' catalogs, literature and advertisements—on their stationery, salesmen's cards and products.

Without reflecting upon worthy manufacturers not enjoying membership, the Association has this message for all who buy, sell or use merchandise: You can place your confidence in the members listed below, knowing that fair treatment, honest value and efficient service are assured. The business methods of these concerns, and the quality of their products, are controlled by men of character—not machines.

CRONIN ANNOUNCES BATTING ORDER OF 1933 NATS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

DOWN in Biloxi, Cecil Travis is agitating the third base situation of the Washington Ball Club on the basis of his Chattanooga reputation, marking the first time since 1925 that the correspondents have become excited about the possibility that anybody could remove Ossie Bluege from the duties he has upheld through two presidential administrations.

It seems that for the past eight years, the powers that be and the powers that have been on the Washington Club have simply omitted any thought of tampering with third base in deference to the presence and continued good health of Bluege, whose name has been synonymous with third-base protection that not only has been adequate but downright brilliant.

But this spring the name of Travis is heard too frequently to discount and it seems that Bluege, after eight years of exclusive rights to the job, is due to meet some competition of a keen sort. Or perhaps the newness of the fact that there will be some third-base competition on the Nats is merely lending importance to Travis' bid.

Travis' .362 Average Stands Out.

The .362 batting average that Travis is bringing up to the majors from the Southern Association is certainly deserving of recognition, especially when compared to Bluege's .258 mark of last year. The Southern has been known for the past decade as primarily a pitchers' league, flooded by a host of former big league mound heroes, and among baseball men batting averages in that circuit easily rank on a plane with AA league figures.

But Travis' fielding average may be something else again. His mark in the field for 1932 was a mere .920, which would hardly get him by in the majors. With the natural shrink in his batting average against big league pitching, Travis must show speedy and sensational improvement in his fielding to threaten seriously Bluege's monopoly on the job.

The Travis kid, however, is a mere youth of 20, and natural improvement may be expected in his fielding. He certainly is the ideal physical type of third baseman, with a 6-foot figure that gives him wide range and an arm that is naturally powerful. His development is being keenly watched by Cronin and Griffith, needless to say.

Travis Has Man-Sized Job on Hands.

Travis could have asked, however, for no more difficult job than the one he is attempting. Bluege, in the opinion of this department, has been the league's outstanding third baseman since Willie Kamm started slipping five years ago.

Compared to Travis' fielding average of .920, Bluege sported a .970 mark last year and concealed in that fielding average were scores of semi-impossible stops and throws that counted no more to his credit than a perfunctory catch of an easy pop fly.

The man who ousts Bluege must certainly be a star, and Travis' sparkle is surely dimmed by his fielding figure. But Griffith and Cronin are learned men in the ways of baseball and they have spoken highly of the Chattanooga youngster. As the man who was informed he had just inherited fifty millions said, it remains to be seen.

London, March 5 (U.P.).—Al Brown, of Panama, world's featherweight champion, tonight won an easy non-title fifteen-round decision over Johnny Peters, of England, at the Black Friars Club.

HAMAS BOUT DELAYED.

Los Angeles, March 5 (U.P.).—The bank holiday caused postponement tonight of the Steve Hamas-Lee Ramage heavyweight bout, scheduled for Tuesday, to March 14. Both fighters were winding up training for their third meeting when the delay was announced.

GOODWIN DEFEATS CHASE.

Miami, Fla., March 5 (U.P.).—Tommy Goodwin, of Monroe, N. Y., the defending champion, today defeated Lee Chase, of Buffalo, in the 36-hole final of the annual Dixie amateur golf championship at the Miami Country Club by 1 up.

Fair Grounds And Agua Closing

New Orleans Races Off Today; Mexico Tomorrow.

Hialeah Will Remain Open Despite Banking Situation.

NEW ORLEANS, March 5 (A.P.).—The Crescent City Jockey Club announced today that it had called off its racing program at the Fair Grounds tomorrow because of the "closing of the banks and the subsequent paralysis of all business."

A statement issued by John C. Schank, president, and Joseph A. Murphy, general manager, follows:

"With the closing the banks and the subsequent paralysis of all business, the Crescent City Jockey Club considers it inadvisable to race on Monday and has declared the card off for that day.

"This is only a temporary condition and the track will reopen immediately upon the clearing of the banking situation. In the meantime, the association is taking care of its horsemen by cashing their checks for needed supplies out of money held at the track for the conduct of the mutuels."

Agua Caliente Bets Fall Off.

Agua Caliente, Mexico, March 5 (A.P.).—The Agua Caliente Jockey Club suspended indefinitely its 80-day race meeting after completion of racing today as a result of money shortage, reflecting the banking situation in the United States.

Joseph M. Schenck, Hollywood motion picture producer and president of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club, said he hoped to resume the meeting the latter part of this week.

If it is possible to reopen the track on Friday, as Schenck said he hoped it would be, none of the major stake races will be affected.

Despite a fairly large crowd of approximately 10,000, the pari-mutuel machines handled under $30,000 today.

Hialeah Has Six Days To Run.

Miami, Fla., March 5 (A.P.).—Despite the reported closing of the horse race tracks at Fair Grounds and Agua Caliente due to the banking situation, officials of the Miami Jockey Club announced tonight that the remaining six days of the Hialeah Park meeting would be completed, including the $10,000 Florida Derby Saturday.

With the meeting's receipts approximately 20 per cent over a year ago, a total of nearly $220,000 Saturday and local bank officials expressing confidence in their ability to care for the thousands of winter visitors, optimism reigned here among the followers of the turf. J. E. Widener, president of the jockey club, said "there is plenty of money here in circulation."

Frank J. Bruen, managing director of the Coral Gables Racing Association, also announced that the scheduled 17-day meeting at Tropical Park would be held, opening March 13. More than 1,000 applications have been filed for stable space from Hialeah Park, Havana and New Orleans.

Havana Not to Be Affected.

Havana, March 5 (A.P.).—The banking situation in the United States will not affect the racing program at Havana, Oriental Park officials said tonight. No change is planned in the schedule for the remainder of the meeting, which ends next Sunday.

Barge on Which Corbett Fought Still in Water

Benecia, Calif., March 5 (A.P.).—Part of the barge on which the late James J. Corbett and Joe Choynski, heavyweight boxers, staged a surreptitious "grudge" fight in 1889 still remains afloat in Southampton Bay near here.

Ping-Pongers Battle 20 Minutes on Single Point

New York, March 5 (A.P.).—Two participants in the opening round of the Eastern ping-pong championships here are believed to have set some sort of an endurance record.

Abraham Kidorf, of Philadelphia, required an hour to win two games from Albert Goldman, of New York, by scores of 21-12, 21-17, and they battled away for 20 minutes on a single point.

TULSANS "GOING HOME."

Tulsa, Okla. (A.P.).—Orace Powers, catcher; Leo Najo, outfielder, and Andrew Bednar, pitcher, on the Tulsa baseball team, will have "homecomings" when the club joins the Texas League this season. All three formerly performed in the Lone Star circuit, Najo as a popular hero of San Antonio fans.

ENLARGE BASEBALL GRANDSTAND.

Antlers, Okla., March 5 (A.P.).—Rivalry for the district semipro baseball championship has resulted in expansion of the grandstand here at a time when many towns are finding it difficult to fill their old ones.

SARANACS SEEKING GAME.

Games with strong unlimited teams having gyms are sought by the Saranac A. C. Call Manager Askins at Columbia 8727.

DIAMONDERS MEET TONIGHT.

The Cabin John Baseball Team will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the firehouse. All players of last year and new candidates are asked to attend.

$1,500 Golf Purse Donated by Hagen

Celebrates 20 Years as Big League Golfer in Jacksonville Tourney.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 5 (A.P.).—Walter Hagen will celebrate his 20 years in big league golf competition by donating a $1,500 purse for the Walter Hagen open tournament to be played at the Florida Country Club here March 11 and 12.

The event will be sponsored by the Jacksonville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Hagen, recently appointed captain of the '933 Ryder Cup Team from the United States, made his first important start in an open championship in 1913—The United States open at Brookline, Mass.—and he finished well up among the leaders.

Since then he has won two United States opens, four British opens, four P. G. A. titles and about fifty others in less important competition.

Asked by Junior Chamber of Commerce officials what size cups would be used in the Hagen open, he replied:

"Use the regulation cups. What is the use of having a putting touch if a larger cup is used?"

VIRGINIA AVE. SOCCERISTS WIN UPSET

Defeat Brunswicks, 2-1, in Southeastern Tourney.

VIRGINIA AVENUE'S young soccerists upset the dope considerably yesterday when they copped the first round of the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association Cup tie tourney by downing Brunswick, 2 to 1. The local Recreation League champs did not figure to do better than hold the Marylanders to 3 or 4 goals, according to pre-game dope.

The victory surprised even the coach of the winning eleven, Louis Mitchell. However, the former playground kickers played like veterans and are ready to give the remaining nine teams in the tourney plenty of trouble.

The Brunswick Firemen started with the wind to their backs but despite this aid they only managed to score once. The Virginia Avenue lads found after the first fifteen minutes of play that they had a chance with their highly touted foes and put up a stubborn defense.

Burch Scores on Pass.

About midway the half, Burch, of the visiting team, received a pass from Walker and drove the leather through the Virginia Avenue uprights. For the remainder of the half play was about even, with Mahone, Burgee and Tucker carrying the bulk of the burden for the Firemen, and Fitzpatrick, Stock and Shelton flashing for Virginia avenue.

Shortly after the start of the second half the Virginia Avenue eleven was awarded a penalty kick and Fitzpatrick converted with a vicious boot past Strathern, Brunswick goalie. This gave the winners just the confidence that was needed and for the remainder of the game the ball was kept in Brunswick territroy. The winning goal resulted from a corner kick well placed by C. Smith, of Virginia Avenue. Stock headed the sphere through.

Columbia Heights Grays stopped Rockville, 3 to 1, and Concord defeated Brandywine, 2 to 1, in Capital City League games.

Hurst to Base Salary Demand on Law Vote

Winter Haven, Fla., March 5 (U.P.).—Don Hurst, infielder of the Philadelphia Phillies, is waiting for the outcome of the blue law fight in Pennsylvania this Tuesday to settle his holdout problem. If the Phillies are granted the right to play Sunday ball, his salary demands will increase; if not, he will reduce his present demands.

The big first baseman is probably the first player to have his salary determined by State legislation.

Intraclub Games Start Today at Bucs' Camp

Paso Robles, Calif., March 5 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates concluded their preliminary spring training camp workouts here today and took time off to rest for the first Yannigan-regular game tomorrow.

Most of the day's workout was spent in the sliding pit, with Coach Honus Wagner in charge. The afternoon was a half-holiday and the players and coaching staff enjoyed fishing trips or visits to nearby towns.

MAKES HOLE IN ONE.

Edwin Teague, of the Manor Club, scored an ace on the 146-yard eighth hole of his home course yesterday. He used a mashie in making the shot. C. H. Gerner, G. C. Billard and E. J. Nerrick, jr., witnessed the lucky feat.

$5,000 Open To Runyan With 266

N. Y. Star Is 18 Under Par, for Lowest 72 Holes on Record.

Guest Second, Hagen Figures in 4-Way Tie for Third.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 5 (U.P.).—Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., today won the annual Year-Round Club's $5,000 open golf tournament at the Miami-Biltmore Country Club, carding a 68 for the final 18 holes to give him a total of 266 for the 72-hole competition.

His score for the four rounds was 69—64—65—68—266, giving him 18 strokes under par, the lowest 72-hole total ever recorded. Perhaps this accomplishment was aided by the use of 6-inch cups for the first time in formal competition.

During the entire 72 holes, he hit into only two traps and was never actually in trouble. His chipping and deadly putting featured his play.

Charles Guest, of Deal, N. J., finished second, with 276.

Walter Hagen, Western and St. Louis open champion, lost ground on the last four holes and went into a four-way tie for third place, with Al Espinosa, Olin Dutra and Joe Kirkwood at 278.

Runyan took $1,000 for first prize; Guest received $750, and Espinosa, Hagen, Dutra and Kirkwood received $506.25 each.

Other well-known players down the line were Henry Ciudi, 288; Wiffy Cox, 291; Phil Perkins, Bill Mehlhorn and Harry Cooper, 292.

DODGERS SIGN PHELPS.

Miami, Fla., March 5 (U.P.).—Manager Max Carey, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, announced tonight that Pitcher Ray Phelps has accepted terms. This leaves Hack Wilson, Joe Stripp, Dan Taylor, Jack Quinn and Al Lopez to enter the fold. Unsigned players are allowed to train with the others, but they must pay their own expenses until they have filled out their contracts.

RUTH SIGNS SOON, SAYS RUPPERT

Babe to Take $50,000 Offer; Will Confer on Thursday.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, March 5 (U.P.).—Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, today said he felt certain that Babe Ruth will sign his 1933 player-contract for $50,000, "in view of the banking situation."

Speaking with crisp, rapid-fire diction over the telephone from his country home at Garrison, N. Y., the genial colonel said he was convinced that the Yankees' famous right fielder would readily accept the proffered $50,000.

"Sure! Sure! I'm certain the Babe ought to sign up soon without any trouble now, and I think any other holdouts will join him."

Conference Is Due This Week.

Col. Ruppert had planned leaving for St. Petersburg, Fla., about Thursday to inspect the Yanks' training camp and to go into a huddle with the Babe over his $25,000 salary slash. But the colonel today was not certain he would go down. Business matters might interfere with his plans, he said.

He said he didn't know what effect the banking situation would have on baseball—if any.

If Babe Ruth accepts the $50,000 salary offered for 1933, and baseball circles now believe he will be mighty glad to take it, he will be working for the lowest pay since 1921 when the Yanks paid him $30,000. In 1922 his salary was boosted to $52,000 and it rose rapidly until 1930 and 1931 when he was receiving baseball's highest salary of $80,000 annually. In 1932 it dropped to $75,000, and $50,000 was offered for 1933.

Ruth is down at St. Petersburg, playing golf while the batterymen of the Yankees are training there. He has threatened to remain on the sidelines during the spring exhibition games unless the Yanks accept his offer to compromise on the reduction and give him a 15 per cent slash instead of a 33 1-3 per cent. The exhibition games start March 14.

Meanwhile, Manager Joe McCarthy had Outfielder Sammy Byrd report at camp early. This was regarded as a precautionary measure in case differences with the Babe continue after the exhibition games start, because Byrd is regarded as the understudy for Ruth's right field position.

Washington Man Wins Pinehurst Foot Race

Pinehurst, N. C., March 5 (A.P.).—Settling a challenge match, Robert Gilmore, of Washington, and Gordon Kinnear, of Montreal, ran a footrace from Southern Pines to Pinehurst today, with Gilmore winning.

Gilmore, a former Washington and Lee cross-country man, covered the 5 miles in 26 minutes 54 seconds.

Hack Wilson, Unsigned, Takes His Family South

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 5.—His contract with the Brooklyn Dodgers for the coming season still unsigned, Hack Wilson, hard-hitting outfielder, left his home here today for Miami, Fla., the Dodgers' spring training camp. He said there had been no development since he declined two weeks ago an offer of a $550 increase over the original $9,000 offered him for the season. He said he was standing pat on his own figure, which he would not name, but indicated he thought an agreement could be reached easily at Miami through oral negotiation. Mrs. Wilson and their son, Bobby, accompanied him South. They made the trip by motor.

GARDEN TO CARRY ON.

New York, March 5 (U.P.).—Madison Square Garden will carry on its regular program of sports despite the banking situation, President William F. Carey told the United Press tonight.

"There's nothing to worry about."

WIN 84 STRAIGHT GAMES.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, March 5 (A.P.).—Eighty-four consecutive basket ball games have been won by the local high school at the middle of the current season. The winning streak of the quintet has stretched more than five years.

A. A. U. FIVES IN 4 GAMES TONIGHT

D. and H. Club Faces St. Martin's; Games at Tech High.

BACK in session tonight at Tech High School, the A. A. U. tournament, sponsored by The Post, resumes its schedule which ultimately will lead to the crowning of city basket ball champions in seven classes. Four games are scheduled tonight, involving teams contending for titles in the 130-pound, 145-pound and unlimited classes.

No tournament games are listed tomorrow night, but Wednesday brings a renewal of action. After that day at least four games will be played every night until 1933 champs have been crowned.

Jimmy's, a team composed of neighborhood kids with a flair for the game, stacks up against the smooth Western Flashes in the opening game on tonight's schedule, which gets under way promptly at 7 o'clock. The teams are in the lower brackets of the 130-pound division.

Company F to Meet Mercurys.

At 8 o'clock Company F, of Hyattsville, engages the Mercury A. C. in a 145-pound class game. Company F recently concluded a winning season which witnessed its triumph over numerous District and Maryland teams. It will clash with a formidable opponent in Mercury. The Southwest quintet has enjoyed only mediocre success, but, undaunted, hopes to score an upset.

A glimpse of the brand of action expected in the night's finale should be produced when Calvary M. E. pits its skill against Howitzers in an unlimited division fray at 9 o'clock. Little is known of the latter, but Calvary always has been a strong contender for tournament laurels.

The liveliest game of the evening is expected when St. Martin's bumps up against the powerful and favorite Delaware and Hudson tossers at 10 o'clock. St. Martin's is a strictly a club team, a little rough in spots, but ardent students of the game and a formidable opponent.

Buck Buckley has scoured the highways and byways of amateurism seeking talent for the D. and H. roster. He has succeeded in rounding up a good club, perhaps not a world beater, but it will make its presence in the tournament felt.

D. and H., Sholl's in Different Halves.

D. and H. is in the lower bracket, while the champion Sholl's five, whom the coal dealers are anxious to meet, are in the upper. Such teams as Rockville A. C., D. C. Fire Department, U. S. Bureau of Investigation and Fort Washington stand in its path. Even before these is St. Martin's.

"Sox" Harrington, veteran of every tournament up to the present, will be a spectator instead of player for the first time tonight. Harrington will direct the team from the bench.

SATRE WINS SKI JUMP.

Lucerne-in-Quebec, March 5 (U.P.).—Otter Satre, of Salisbury, Conn., today won the Lucerne International ski-jumping competition by leaping 207 and 187 feet, making 151.6 points for style.

H. Sorenson, of the Norseman Ski Club, New York, came second with 202 and 188 feet for 142.2 points. His clubmate, N. Aarsen, clinched the first three places for the United States by finishing third.

THE DUKE'S IN BUSINESS.

Honolulu (A.P.).—Duke Kahanamoku, internationally famous swimmer and former Olympic champion, has opened an oil and gas service station here.

Bluege Shifts To Second Position

Pilot to Use Manush Third, Goslin Fourth Himself Fifth.

Myer Will Lead Off; Manager Determined to Keep Order.

By BOB CONSIDINE
(Post Staff Correspondent).

BILOXI, Miss., March 5.—Some idea of the fact that young Joe Cronin realizes that he has been handed a ready-made team on a silver platter was evinced here tonight when the blue-eyed Frisco Kid announced his batting order—pretty much of an unprecedented decision at this stage of the training game.

The Happiness Boys, also known as the Harmony Boys, will bat in this rotation during the miasmic year of '33: Buddy Myer, Ossie Bluege, Heinie Manush, Goose Goslin, Joe Cronin, Fred Schulte, Joe Kuhel, catcher and pitcher.

Only two of Cronin's decisions might cause comment (1) placing the anemic-hitting Bluege up in second place instead of his chronic and unlucky seventh and (2) dropping himself down out of his much-preferred clean-up position.

Cronin Expects Bluege To Produce.

When interrogated on the sitchashun Cronin said that he had given a good deal of thought to getting the most offensive power possible out of Bluege. Cronin recalled that the veteran mushroom batter had shown a keen bunting ability upon occasions and also has long been known to be able to run the bases well—when he got on. Up in second place he should have many more occasions to bunt and, provided he does get on base, his running will blend nicely with Manush's recognized ability as a hit-and-run specialist.

Cronin demoted himself to fifth because Goslin's entire career in baseball has seen him batting either third or fourth. Cronin has great faith in the importance of where a man hits in the batting order, and the individual duties which attend each batting position, which comes as a mighty surprise to one who always thought the idea was simply to hit the ball, no matter where or when you batted.

Joe feels that he can fill in the No. 5 position well enough, for he is a slightly more consistent batter-in of colleagues otherwise stranded on bases, which it seems, is one of the minor duties of a No. 5 batter.

One more thing: Cronin has gotten very keen about this hitting order. As he has arranged it, the visiting pitchers will be faced with, first, a left-hander, followed by a right-hander, then two left-handers and two right-handers, followed by a left-hander and, if Sewell or Berg is catching, a right-hander. Cronin believes that if a left-handed pitcher is facing Washington this year he will not walk Manush, for Goslin is coming next, and if a right-handed flinger is in the box he won't walk Cronin in order to get at the next man, for Schulte is also right. (I'm confused, too.)

Manager Expects to Stick to Order.

How permanent this line-up is seems to be a matter that doesn't call for much speculation. This is THE 1933 line-up so far as Cronin is concerned, and nothing short of a small earthquake probably could shake his confidence in it. It is the rotation which the gents will take their slugs at the ball tomorrow, when a busy week of training endeavor opens at 10 a. m.

A distinguished schnozzle was added to the camp population today when Goose Goslin piloted his forthright proboscis into the lobby, where it held a reunion with the nasal acreages of Johnny Kerr and Al Schacht. The writer was out at the time. Other arrivals were Fred Schulte. He said it was a great relief to get away from the Browns: Bluege, Joe Kuhel, Bob Boken and Buddy Myer. Manush and Harris are due in the morning. Myer, by the way, drove down here, leaving his home nearly a week ago and only arrived tonight, leading the refugees here to believe that he must have come across the country in first gear.

Contest Facts In Brief

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, will select in The Washington Post of March 19 his all-time, all-star team from among the clubs that represented Washington during the years from 1912 to 1932 inclusive.

The fan who submits the selection that matches or most nearly matches Griffith's selection will be adjudged the winner of the contest.

One man is to be selected for each of the infield and outfield positions with four pitchers and two catchers.

To the winner The Washington Post will award eight box seats to the 1933 opening game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Second place will net four box seats, with third place earning two box seats.

Entrants may use the accompanying coupon for their selections, although the use of the coupon is not necessary for entrance in the contest.

The contest will close March 11.

SARRON TACKLES SCHWARTZ AT PORTNER'S TOMORROW

Baltimorean Will Test Dixie Boy

Southerner's Rushing Tactics Seen Aid to Benney's Chances.

PETE SARRON, the Birmingham ring master, should be convinced by this that he is matched with a tough customer in the feature eight-round go tomorrow night at Portner's. Benny Schwartz is the lad Sarron will have to contend with.

For the past several days nothing Schwartz can do has been overlooked, and the Baltimorean has been expanded until he resembles an oversized model of Jack Dempsey. He can sock with either hand, and catches as well as he pitches. He is blessed with a good left jab and has the equivalent of a college education in boxing science.

Schwartz Likes Sarron's Style.

Observers point out that Schwartz is at his best when the opponent comes to him, as Sarron is expected to do. Schwartz is even conceded an advantage in weight, as Sarron will have to come in at 124 pounds or lose his forfeit Monday. Benny's press agent hasn't overlooked a single item where he can claim an advantage for his man, but as far as Sarron is concerned his efforts are going for naught. Pete refuses to worry.

Sarron has come a long way up the fistic trail since 1924, when he fought in Paris with the United States Olympic Team. Today he is a sizable fish in the featherweight pond. Schwartz is all right in company befitting his ability, but tomorrow night it looks as though he is going out of his way in search of trouble.

Sarron is worried about fights with Kid Chocolate, Seaman Watson or Fidel LaBarba at Madison Square Garden, more than his prospects of winning tomorrow. But didn't we hear something of the same line from the Barry group?

After losing only two decisions and held to draws four times in 127 bouts Sarron retired from active duty for almost a year. Until then he had been rated among the first six in both the bantam and featherweight divisions. His victory over Frankie De Angelo a couple of weeks back was the second straight since his return.

Sarron Sought for Big Time.

Jimmy Erwin has announced that Sarron has been offered a match with Baby Arizemendi at Los Angeles, but is holding off pending a decision by Madison Square Garden officials concerning a bout in New York.

Sarron expects to beat Schwartz with a body attack. The Southerner cuts loose with left hooks and follows through with a right that seems to come from over the hill. Schwartz is palpably weak against a real body fighter.

If Schwartz does not get on his bike, and to his credit it must be said he stands up against opponents, the bout should be a whirlwind.

Used to Be Giants, But They've Shrunk

Los Angeles, March 5 (A.P.).—There was a time when the New York Giants fully lived up to their name, both in size and playing ability, but no more.

The only regular in the team's spring training camp here who measures over 6 feet is Manager Bill Terry, and he just barely makes it.

Ferrell-Indians Promise Long-Drawn Salary Bout

Wes Ferrell, Cleveland's outspoken pitching ace, who is balking at the 30 per cent salary cut propounded by Indian officials. Some fans believe the drastic slice is a direct outgrowth of last season's clashes between Ferrell and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, who is laughing out loud.

By C. C. CRANMER.

CLEVELAND, March 5 (A.P.).—"Holdout"—a word almost unknown heretofore in the optimistic lexicon of General Manager Billy Evans and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh—may play a big part in the fate of the Cleveland Indians this baseball season.

The reason is that Wesley Ferrell, the big right-hander from North Carolina, wh has pitched 20 or more winning games for the Indians for four consecutive years, is unable to see eye to eye with his bosses on salary matters.

The Indians' ace won 28 games last year, despite some erratic spots and a 10-day suspension, and on the strength of that indicated he would expect a raise.

Instead, he got a 30 per cent cut when his contract was mailed out, calling for a reduction from $18,000 to $12,000, the most drastic slicing believed given any player on the Indian roster.

Ferrell's contract came hopping back and since then there has been no indication that either side will give in.

"I think I am worth every cent of the $18,000 I'm asking," said Ferrell. "In normal times a pitcher who had completed his fourth straight season of 20 or more victories would get a raise. Naturally I resented the contract sent me."

"It's up to Ferrell whether he shows up at spring training camp with the rest of the boys," was the indicated attitude of Evans and Peckinpaugh as the advance guard started for New Orleans.

They said Ferrell would be suspended unless he appeared at the officially designated time.

Both Evans and Peckinpaugh scoff at hints that Ferrell might be traded—maybe to the new buyers of the Boston Red Sox. Rather, there is prospect for a long drawn argument that may last into the playing season.

A balky Ferrell may upset plans of Evans and Peckinpaugh to put their team in gear, a team that they believe should make competition hotter at the top of the American League this season. But they are banking on the belief that Ferrell wants to play ball.

Manager Peckinpaugh and Pitcher Ferrell had a dramatic clash last season when the pitcher was suspended with loss of salary as a result of a burst of temperament when Peck ordered him out of the box.

There are some fans who see in Ferrell's drastic cut an outgrowth of that disciplinary action.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, MARCH 5.

Unless the customers here do a complete about face, there seems little likelihood that Hialeah Park will join the Fair Grounds and Agua Caliente by declaring a racing holiday. While this has not been a boom winter here, both the crowds and the betting have shown a decided increase over 1932. Mr. Widener is still smiling and says the track will stay open the remaining six days of the meeting which ends Saturday with the $10,000 Florida Derby. Bill didn't do so bad last Saturday, having three winners. If you have loose cash that needs action tomorrow, you might try some of these. BILL.

FIRST RACE—The veteran CLEAN PLAY retains a lot of class and ran a bang-up second the other day to Affirmative. Seems ideally placed in this field. THE BREAK will draw Gilbert as a rider and should make the top one do his best. LUCKY CARTER is a money possibility.

SECOND RACE—HER HERO ran a pretty fair sort of race for me in the mud last week, although beaten by Wise Ways. This might be the spot. FIRE NECK has nothing to recommend him in the charts, but has worked well. TUMBLER to take care of the show.

THIRD RACE—This might be the race that SUPERCHARGE has been waiting for. I have it from reliable sources that we will cash a bet soon on this one. BOY CRAZY and LIQUEUR to take care of the others.

FOURTH RACE—SUPREME SWEET appears to be the best placed in this test. Has had a rest and clockers report the works to be of a sound nature. MY PURCHASE has impressed the last two times and will be out there battling all along the line. BROADWAY LIGHTS drops weight and may be the third one.

FIFTH RACE—SCOUT MASTER is on the improve and may bring me a set of brackets in this. Showed an excellent effort in that second to Semaphore. BIG BEAU'S last race was not the real one and he has put in a fast work since. JUBILATE to take care of third money.

SIXTH RACE—SKY HAVEN appears the best of this field. Drops weight and has been stepping lively lately. WISE ANNE is better than last effort and may set the pace here. LEVAAL for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—BRASS MONKEY'S recent fine form should allow this one to turn in a victory here. CHOKOLOSKEE finally won the last time out and will be dangerous. SPUD appears the logical third horse.

BASQUE SAYS U. S. POISON BEAT HIM

MADRID, March 5 (A.P.).—Paulino Uzcudun is firmly convinced that nasty work at the crossroads prevented his reaching the heavyweight honors he aspired to during his sojourn in the United States.

Trekking fretfully up and down his native land, the Basque builder of wood piles is doing his best to make the critics believe he was administered drugs before two of his major encounters in America.

Using the word "poison" with strong emphasis and without reserve, Senor Uzcundun declares that, somehow, something was administered him during his training for the bout with Mickey Walker.

Again, just before he climbed into the ring with the late Ernie Schaaf, he felt the toxic effects of a strong drug which kept him from displaying his wares to best advantage.

SOUTHEAST TOSSERS IN TOURNEY

Community Teams to Clash at Hine Gym; Start Thursday.

THE second annual basket ball tournament for the championship of the Southeast Community Center operating in the gymnasium at Hine Junior High School, Seventh and C streets southeast, will be staged starting Wednesday night.

The tournament is open to those teams that have been using the "gyms" at Hine as their home court during the season. Thirteen teams have signified their intention of competing as follows: Marines, Corps Institute, Navy Yard; Congress Heights, Marion A. C., Buckeye A. C., Anacostia Business Men, Sigma Phi Lambda, Senators, Naval Reserves, Miller Furniture Co., Whirlwind A. C., Terry Service Station, Easton A. C., and Friendship House.

Each team will play the others once with the provision that when a team loses three games it is automatically dropped from further competition. The entrance fee will be $1.00, the amount to be used for the purchase of a loving cup to be presented the winning team. Players to be eligible must have participated in at least two games before Wednesday.

The schedule for this week is as follows: Wednesday, Marions vs. Anacostia Business Men, 8:15 p. m., and Congress Heights vs. Sigma Phi Lamba, 9:15 p. m.; Thursday, Buckeyes vs. Miller Furniture Co., 9:15; Friday, Whirlwinds vs. Naval Reserve, 8 p. m., and Terry Service Station vs. Marines, 9 p. m.

ROSENBLOOM PUTS TITLE AT STAKE

Meets Heuser Friday in Feature Fight of Week's Card.

NEW YORK, March 5 (A.P.).—Maxie Rosenbloom, who has been wandering around the hinterlands wearing the light-heavyweight crown, or at least a part interest in it, cocked jauntily over his brow as he engaged in frequent non-title bouts, comes back to New York for a championship bout this week and brings the center of fistic interest back with him.

Rosenbloom, Fighter as Well as Clown.

Rosenbloom is quite a fighter despite his clownish tactics and his playboy reputation, which probably have won him more public notice than his ring work, and he probably will be the favorite when he steps into the ring.

Heuser, who came to this country a little over a year ago, has won 11 fights without a defeat. He outpointed George Nichols, the National Boxing Association 175-pound champion, and won his title shot a short time ago by beating Harry Ebbets.

Freddie Miller, the Cincinnati southpaw, who recently confirmed his right to an important share of the featherweight championship, takes second place on the national fight program for the week when he engages Little Dempsey, Filipino scrapper, over the 10-round route at Sacramento, Calif., Thursday. Miller's N. B. A. title will not be at stake.

Bouts on the week's national schedule include:

MONDAY—At Buffalo, N. Y., Lou Scozza vs. George Nichols, light heavyweights, ten. At Newark, N. J., Ray Rossi, Newark, vs. Jack Rosenberg, New York, middleweights, ten. At Atlantic City, Vince Dundee, Belleville, N. J., vs. Jimmy Rhodes, Atlantic City, middleweights, eight. At Holyoke, Mass., Jack (Kid) Berger, Preston, Idaho, vs. Tony D'Alessandro, New York, ten; Jack Redman, New York, vs. Tiger Henderson, Hartford, Conn., ten; Pancho Villa, New Bedford, Mass., vs. Jimmy Leto, Florida, ten.

TUESDAY—At Seattle, Baby Sal Sorio, Los Angeles, vs. Henry Woods, Tacoma, Wash., Negro, lightweights, six. At Portland, Oreg., Doc Snell, Seattle, vs. Al Rossberg, Butte, Mont., lightweights, six. At Philadelphia, Harry Dublinsky, Chicago, vs. Young Firpo, Pennsgrove, N. J., eight. At West Palm Beach, Fla., Pete Nebo, Key West, Fla., vs. Lou Terry, St. Louis, lightweights, ten; Dave Adelman, Philadelphia, vs. Mario Santana, Key West, featherweights, eight.

WEDNESDAY—At St. Louis, Benny Bass, Philadelphia, vs. Joe Chnouly, St. Louis, lightweights, ten; Jack McVey, New York, vs. Allen Matthews, St. Louis, Negro, middleweights, 10; Chick Rains, St. Louis, vs. Rosy Baker, Indianapolis, middleweights, eight.

FRIDAY—At New York, Maxie Rosenbloom, New York State's light-heavyweight champion, vs. Adolph Heuser, Germany, 15 (title); at Hollywood, Calif., Speedy Dado, Philippine bantamweight, vs. Baby Palmore, Ventura, Calif., 10; at Chicago, Varias Milling, Philippine featherweight, vs. Johnny Penn, New York, 10; at Pittsburgh, Frankie Goosby, Pittsburgh, middleweight, vs. Cowboy Phelps, Arizona, 10.

Bolling Five Meets Fire Dept. Tonight

With three straight victories under their belts, Lieut. C. F. Cousland's Bolling Field Aviators are set to victimize Morris Clarke's Fire Department tossers tonight in a second-half Government League contest. The game begins at 8 and Bolling Field will rely much on Ken Quigley, who has averaged more than ten points per game in recent action.

G. P. O. is also booked to meet the Federal Aces at 9, but a forfeit to Investigation by the latter recently makes actual competition somewhat in doubt.

New Orleans Feature To Le Ministre at 8-1

New Orleans, March 5 (A.P.).—A fair-sized crowd attended the fourth Sunday program of charity racing at the Fair Grounds track today as Le Ministre captured the feature race.

Le Ministre paid $18.40 to win, $11.80 to place and $5.20 to show. Red Vamp was second and Bagataway third. Upon the favorite, finished far back.

W. R. Sallee's Telamon, purchased recently from the Shandon Farm Stable, stumbled in the feature race and suffered a broken neck.

"Mind-Reader" Submits Post Contest Team and Says, "Mail the Tickets"

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE Washington Post's Baseball Contest is just the same as ended—that is, if E. Budd, of Hampton, Va., is as good a mind-reader as he says he is. Here's what he writes to The Post:

"Here is the real dope on the All-Star Washington Baseball Club. I know that thousands have sent in their selections of players to match with Clark Griffith in picking the winning team. Now, Mr. Editor, I have a deep dark secret to tell you. I have unusual powers. I am a mind-reader. I can read Clark Griffith's mind on the All-Star team before he has even made up his mind as to the players of the said team.

"I can prove it, too. If you don't believe me, ask Nick Altrock, Buster Keaton or Will Rogers. Griffith has the Pennant Bee buzzing and will win the 1933 flag. Here is my list of All-Star players: Judge, first; Harris, second; Bluege, third; Cronin, shortstop; Goslin, left; Milan, center; Rice right; Ruel and Ainsmith, catchers, and Johnson, Crowder, Zachary and Marberry, pitchers."

In closing, Mr. Budd writes: "Kindly send me those box seats to my Hampton address. I am a Washington man."

It is the writer's advice, however, that prospective entrants do not let Mr. Budd's mind-reading powers scare them off, this suggestion being made for two reasons. In the first place, the writer is quite a mind-reader, too, yet in snooping around for exclusive stories over a period of years he found that Mr. Griffith's mind was most difficult to read in that he so frequently changed it without advance notice that he was going to.

And Griffith's happy faculty of changing his mind so fast and often is the second reason why Mr. Budd's slate may be wrong. Undoubtedly, it was correct when Mr. Budd read Griffith's mind several days ago, but entrants are allowed but one guess, so Mr. Budd will have to stand on his present list while those who have not yet entered can do a little mind-reading themselves and thus get later and better dope.

Fans, by the way, are reminded that the time is getting short and they have but nine more days in which to try to win the fourteen box-seats to the 1933 opener with the Athletics, which will go to the three matching or most closely matching Griffith's list of outstanding players in his opinion, who have performed in Nat livery since 1912.

BILOXI BUNTS

Special to The Washington Post.

BILOXI, Miss., March 5.—In case you have nothing in the world to be sorry about this morning, you might consider the luckless gents down here slaving and sweating nearly an hour a day for a company known to the trade as the Washington Baseball Club, Inc.

The hapless fellows have a pretty hard time of it. Take for instance right at this moment. It is high noon. Looking out of this hotel window, your eye bounces across a putting-green front lawn 100 yards wide that runs to the edge of the Gulf of Mexico, which stretches out to the horizon, shimmering with life, like the sparkling effervescence of a dancer's jewelled skirt. The hotel is one of those synthetic old Southern mansions, with tall cool white columns. On the sun-washed portico lolls half the team.

Altrock Has New Address.

Walter Stewart, his wife and young Bobby Stewart, aged 5, recline in steamer chairs on the lawn. Al Schacht, dressed like the thin-headed guy on page 44 of Vanity Fair, stands nearby talking to a group of players. Nick Altrock practices putts on the lawn, and turns to ejaculate, "Say, a guy from the Elks' Club gimme an address last night that's a pip. Imagine, only 15 cents a bottle and ice cold. And no sediment."

Yes, it is noon, but work is over. Soon the luncheon chimes ring out and the boys, immaculate after their showers, saunter into the dining room trying to decide what to eat and what to do for the rest of the day. They generally agree to eat everything they can hold—and play golf.

They all get up at 8 o'clock in the morning, shave and have a leisurely breakfast until about 9:30. Then the hotel bus rumbles up to the door and waits there until the boys get good and ready to toss away the morning papers and get in. They are whisked to the park, a mile away, and work out from about 10:30 to 11:30. Although their workouts are considered arduous, so far as baseball workouts go, they do not expend half as much energy as $1,320 Government typists.

It's a Hard Life, Say The Players.

These, kiddies, are your hard-working heroes, drawing salaries commensurate with Cabinet posts. But if you so much as mention to them that they have a comfortable sort of life they jump all over you. They talk of the "awful grind" of working from April to September and having all living expenses paid. They speak of what a knock-'em-down-and-drag-'em-out game baseball is and a thousand and one other counter-arguments that never quite ring the bell, somehow.

LONDOS DUE BATTLE BY JUDSON

Ex-Harvard Coach to Have Big Following Thursday.

THAT the Frank Judson bubble isn't a bubble after all is a growing belief expressed by Washington's rassling followers.

Shows Class Against Grobmier.

Whatever was needed to prove Judson's caliber was supplied in his upset of Fred Grobmier, "Japanese Frog" scissors and all, this past week. Entering the ring a pronounced short-ender, fearless Frank proceeded to toss Iowa's beanpole in a fashion decidedly more impressive than that evidenced by Londos in turning the same trick some months ago.

Armed only with a punishing wrist-lock while pushing Londos to the utmost in a previous appearance here, Judson will boast a much larger repertoire of holds in this return engagement.

John Pesek, also a championship claimant, semifinals against mighty Jim Olinstock, mountainous Indian. They are scheduled 45 minutes.

Good Supporting Card Listed.

Impressive 90-minute grapples ably support probably the finest indoor card ever offered here.

Hans Steinke, one of the world's best, substitutes ability and power for showmanship in his go with John Maxos; Rudy Dusek continues an old feud with Abe Coleman, and Ernie Dusek tests Paul Jones' paralyzing specialty, a deadly hook scissors.

Half price only will be asked of ladies, children under 16 being admitted for 25 cents.

Fort Washington Five Wins Over Carlisles

Fort Washington, who hopes to be a winning dark horse in the coming Third Corps Area court tournament, won a hard-fought game from the Carlisle Barrack five at Fort Washington last night, 57-49. As the Carlisle team twice downed the Quantico Marines this season, the Soldiers feel that their stunt was quite a feather in their caps.

It was a close game until the waning minutes when the home team staged a rally. The two were battling neck and neck at the half, with Fort Washington in the lead by a whisker, 27-25. Marker, of the home guards, and Roth, of the visitors, were outstanding, each scoring no less than 21 points.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THERE seemed to be a difference of opinion with regard to relaying the broadcast to the waiting crowds at the Capitol, along the line of march of the inaugural parade, and in the grandstands. Some seemed to think there was too much talk—ears weren't given any rest from the din from morning until night.

Though the Marine Band was stationed at the Capitol, ready to play at an instant's notice while awaiting the President, it was heard in only two short selections in two hours. During the rest of the time the loud speakers gave out one continuous stream of talk.

It is not meant to disparage the rebroadcasting through the public address system. Unquestiontionably the broadcasts were of great service, keeping the waiting crowds advised of the progress of the President and the President-elect from the White House to the Capitol, but otherwise there was too much "canned" descriptive talk—that is, talk evidently written far in advance—even to the alleged "roar of the cheering crowds" at the Capitol when not a cheer could be heard at that particular time by those actually on the spot. Also such mistakes cropped up as "the flags are at half-mast in honor of Calvin Coolidge," when, as a matter of fact, they were at half-mast for Senator Walsh.

In so far as the Capitol inauguration stand broadcast was concerned, it would have been far better, in the opinion of some, to have had more music and less talk, especially when an announcer was stalling and obviously killing time as was the case when there was a stage wait while President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt made their way from the Senate to the outside stand.

A complaint made by one person with regard to the broadcast heard in the reviewing stands en route and in the Court of Honor was:

"They told us everything except the thing we wanted to know most and that was where the parade was, how far up the Avenue it had progressed and how long we would have to wait until it reached the Court of Honor."

AS elsewhere, the high spot over the radio was Gov. Al Smith's passing the Presidential reviewing stand with the Tammany delegation. Here was heard the New York Police Band, which looked as if it might have had 100 pieces and which surely was a humdinger. The famous Seventh Regiment Band played "Tammany."

A music novelty in the broadcast, and one which was a relief to tired ears, was the appearance of the string bands from Philadelphia. These were evidently products of the famous "Mummers" parade there. There were three units, but the finest was the Firka String Band, ahead of the John O'Donnell Marching Club.

They were dressed as Indians, but gorgeously so; in fact, about like the late Flo Ziegfeld used to dress his Indians in the Follies. There were about 75 musicians in number, but instead of having the conventional band instruments, they had violins, oboes, saxophones, mandolins, banjos and guitars.

It was an odd combination and might have been a noisy one had they played jazz, but instead the selections were of a soft, dreamy character, yet with enough swing for marching purposes.

Incidentally, Herluf Provensen, who followed the President and President-elect from the Senate chamber to the outside platform with a portable radio set strapped to him, looked like an old Alaskan miner with a pack strapped to his back. However, Provensen was minus the beard.

One of Chicago's outstanding brain specialists, who under the strict ethical code of the medical profession will not allow his name to be used, has edited the "Fu Manchu Mystery Stories" script for tonight, WJSV, 8:30 o'clock. More than that, he is supplying Director Fred Ibbett with a skull and the necessary surgical instruments with which to perform an "operation" before the microphone.

In the script Dr. Petrie and a brain specialist captured and held under threat of death are commanded to operate on Fu Manchu, whose fictional brain stopped a fictional bullet in the episode of three weeks' ago. The conversation of the "doctors" as they penetrate the skull and the sounds of the instruments will be the real thing.

BOB WHITE, the old philosopher and pioneer sage of the air will be heard over WJSV beginning this morning from 7:45 to 8:45 o'clock, as conductor of the station's Sun Dial program. He will be heard six days a week at the same hour. As general manager of WMBC, Detroit, where Jerry Buckley was shot and killed, White moved to WJR, in the same city, where he became educational director for the famous Goodwill Station. At various times he has served at WTAM, Cleveland; WOR, Newark; WBEN, Buffalo, and many other major stations of the East.

Pity the radio sound effects man! Many times he has to take it on the chin, sometimes literally. Consider the case of Zale Dillon. Instead of the chin, however, Dillon had to take it on the ankle and lying down! It happened during one of the Townsend Murder Mystery rehearsals.

The Octavus Roy Cohen script called for the thud of a falling body. There was no other way out reasoned Frank McCormack, veteran stage director. A body had to fall, so Dillon was pressed into service.

Dillon did a great job. Indeed he did the job so thoroughly in rehearsals that after a dozen falls he sprained his ankle, had to be helped from the studio and is now walking with the aid of a cane.

SENATOR JOSEPH T. ROBINSON, of Arkansas, majority leader in the next Senate, will discuss "Problems Confronting the New Administration" when he faces a microphone in the WRC studios tonight.

Senator Robinson will speak during the National Radio Forum.

Nevin's ever-popular ballad, "The Rosary," will be sung by Richard Crooks, Metropolitan opera tenor, as his initial solo on the Voice of Firestone program over WRC at 8:30 o'clock. Crooks also will sing "The Trumpeter," by Dix; Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "My Sunshine Is You," by Stolz, and "Lohengrin's Farewell," from Wagner's opera "Lohengrin."

The story of how a saloonkeeper's license happened to be issued to Abraham Lincoln on March 6, 100 years ago, will be told by Alexander McQueen during his Nothing But the Truth program, WMAL at 9:45 a. m. Musical interludes will be furnished by a string ensemble directed by Walter Blaufuss.

How an ordinary fiddle can become "the giant violin" and produce a volume of sound sufficient to be heard over the music of a 40-piece brass band will be shown by Orestes H. Caldwell, former Federal radio commissioner, during the Manhattan Guardsmen program over WMAL at 11:30 p. m.

Helen Oelheim, young American contralto, will be guest artist with the A. & P. Gypsies (WRC, 9 p. m.).

Miss Oelheim, a comparatively new voice to radio audiences, will sing "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," "Blue Moments" and "Only," by George D. Clews.

OWEN DAVIS, JR., son of the American dramatist, has made his debut as a radio actor, playing the role of Carl Erskine in the NBC daily feature, the Goldbergs.

Isaac Gans to Address Columbia Heights Body

Isaac Gans, chairman of the parole board of the District, will address the Columbia Heights Citizens Association on the work of the parole board tomorrow night at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Thirteenth and Fairmont streets. Capt. C. H. Chapman, of the District Fire Department, will explain the work of the department.

Important committee reports will be presented, including one by the committee on taxation on the adoption of the graded tax plan of Pittsburgh, Pa., by which the homes are relieved of a part of the heavy burden of taxation.

Post Model Home Still Center of Attraction

Rivaling some inaugural events in popularity, the new Washington Post model home continued a center of attraction yesterday. This newest Washington Post model home at 3641 Forty-ninth street northwest is one of the city's interesting places. Hundreds of visitors have been delighted with its charming individuality, its pleasing arrangement and substantial construction.

Designed and built by W. C. & A. N. Miller, creators of the beautiful residential subdivisions of Spring Valley and Wesley Heights, the display residence has been opened to the public as a demonstration of the finer art in home building and interior decoration. The latter is by Charles Gallery, Inc. The home boasts of an ultramodern General Electric kitchen, made possible by the cooperation of the National Electric Supply and Potomac Electric Power Cos. with the exhibitors. The home will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

NOW, MIN—THERE MUST BE SOME WAY OUT OF THIS—MRS. DE STROSS ABSOLUTELY SWEARS ON HER HONOR THAT HER MOTHER GAVE HER THAT BROOCH ON HER WEDDING DAY—
I'LL PROVE THAT BROOCH BELONGS TO ME—AND WHAT I PAID FOR IT AND WHERE I GOT IT—
TILDA—DIDN'T I BUY THAT BROOCH THROUGH YOU? DIDN'T I PAY YOU $300.00 FOR IT?
SHE'S RIGHT—I GOT IT AT THE ICE MEN'S BALL—FROM A GENTLEMAN FRIEND OF MINE—IT BELONGED TO HIS AUNT—
BUT POOR MRS. DE STROSS SWEARS IT BELONGS TO HER—THERE'S A MISTAKE SOMEWHERE—AND IF SHE CAN'T PROVE IT IS HERS—THEY'LL SEND HER TO THE PENITENTIARY FOR A LONG TIME—NOW—YOU DON'T WANT TO SEE HER GO TO JAIL—DO YOU?
NO—I DON'T WANT TO SEE HER GO TO JAIL FOR THE REST OF HER LIFE—ALL I WANT HER TO DO IS TO ADMIT IT'S MY BROOCH—
BUT THERE YOU ARE—IF SHE ADMITS THAT—THEN SHE WILL GO TO JAIL!

Bob White
The Old Philosopher
SAYS:

Question—My husband is cynical. He says that there is more bad in the world than good. I differ. Do you?

Answer—I do. Your husband is wrong. There is so much more of good in the world than bad. There are more fine days than foul, more sunshine than rain, more warm weather than bleak. There is more laughter than tears; more hands that grasp in friendly greeting than grip the sword's sheath. There are more hearts that breathe a silent prayer than those that plan a people's ruin. More loyalty than treason—more hope than fear. There is more of fun and frolic than direful dirge, more children who play than those who cry upon the beds of pain. More birds that pipe a tuneful lay than those that fall along the road. There are more tin trumpets blasted than bugles blown. More peace than war. More of all the good than bad. Add to these your own list of good things, and you will find they far outnumber the heated hate of life.

PEACE PLAN PARTLY ACCEPTED BY PERU

Nation's Note Manifests No Objection to League Intervention.

Geneva, March 5 (A.P.).—Garcia Calderon, Peruvian delegate to the League of Nations, said today that a reply received from Peru accepts partly a proposal from the league looking to a peaceful settlement of the dispute between Peru and Colombia over the upper Amazon border village of Leticia.

(A League of Nations proposal for the settlement of the Leticia dispute provided, among other things, for the withdrawal of Peruvian troops, with the Colombian forces remaining in the territory under league direction.)

The note declares, Senor Calderon said, that Peru is unable to agree to continued presence of Colombian troops in the disturbed territory while the Peruvians withdraw. It proposed that Colombia also withdraw, saying the Colombians might engage in reprisals against the Peruvians.

Otherwise, Peru approves the league council's plan and does not object to intervention by the league.

The note makes some suggestions regarding reciprocal troop withdrawal which the Peruvian delegate expects to lead to further negotiations.

The reply will reach the Leticia committee of the league tomorrow.

New Leticia Clash Reported by Brazil

Frontier Says Peru Force Expected to Push On to Puerto Marturo.

Manaos, Brazil, March 5 (A.P.).—Dispatches from the frontier today told of a new clash at Puerto Marturo, in the Leticia border area, over which Colombia and Peru are fighting.

It was expected, the reports said, that the Peruvian army officer, Col. Oscar Ordonez, and a force of 500, would proceed to Puerto Marturo. Other details of the reported clash were not immediately available.

Puerto Marturo is on the Upper Putomayo River, on which also is Tarapaca, scene of an open clash last month between Peruvian and Colombian forces.

A New Yorker AT LARGE

By MARK BARRON.

New York, March 5.—Looking upon the tall buildings and speeding subways, one finds it difficult to realize that Manhattan was once a wilderness, that here the Dutch and English and Indians made history.

But a stroll around the lower tip of the island offers some striking reminders of those years when old Gov. Peter Stuyvesant built a wall 12 feet high with a sloping breastwork inside to protect the colony from the Indians.

Country Churchyard.

Trinity, said to be the wealthiest church in the world, was built at the head of the street in 1697, and it wasn't until two years later that the wall was torn down. Until 1779 the street was still cluttered with tall trees, but they were cut down for fuel that year when a blizzard came out of the North.

Trinity has changed little over the centuries. It still retains that aura of Queen Anne, who set off the tract for a church farm. Even before the church was built there was a burying ground there. The oldest grave in it is that of a 5-year-old child who died in 1681.

Nearby is the grave of a British army officer, Sydney Breese, who wrote this epitaph for his tombstone: "Ha, Sydney, Sydney! Lyest thou here? I here lye. 'Tis time is flown to its extremity." A tall Gothic shaft commemorates the unknown dead of the Revolution.

Here, too, is the tomb of Alexander Hamilton, killed in the historic duel with Aaaron Burr. An ironic coincidence is that nearby is the grave of Matthew Davis, "the last friend that Aaron Burr possessed on earth." He it was who seconded Burr in his duel with Hamilton.

Clothesline, Deadline.

A few blocks away is Maiden lane where women of the colony went to wash their clothes in a creek. Today Maiden lane is a police deadline for criminals. It is the uptown boundary of a district filled with banking and jewelry establishments. Any one with a police record is automatically arrested if caught wandering below Maiden lane.

Here also is the site of the old Park Theater where John Howard Payne, author of "Home Sweet Home," made his stage debut and where a ball in honor of Charles Dickens was once given. Nearby once stood the old John street theater where "Hamlet" in modern (then) clothes was played for the first time.

The old New York Sun Building on Park Row was the first permanent home of Tammany Hall. Besides the hall it contained the second leading hotel in the city where room and board cost $7 a week. Tammany was organized in 1789 by William Mooney, an upholsterer.

Two Motorcycle Riders Suffer Fractured Legs

Two men suffered leg fractures when their motorcycles overturned yesterday.

Park Policeman Robert Montgomery, 35, 223 G street northwest, was pinned beneath his vehicle as he was mounting near the park police headquarters in the Navy Building. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital. Eugene Fish, 21, 6379 Eastern avenue, Takoma Park, Md., was injured when his motorcycle went off the road at Thirty-first and Massachusetts avenue northwest and crashed into a tree. At Emergency Hospital his condition was said to be not serious.

Capital Society Speculates Over White House Changes

Curiosity Is Aroused About What New Procedures and Customs Will Be Introduced; Mansion Has Been Scene of Mutable Forms.

By VYLLA POE WILSON.

Speculation is rife about the innovations which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt may inaugurate in the procedures and customs of the White House. Since Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt suggested building executive offices and other improvements of the old mansion, to leave the White House proper for living quarters and state functions, there have been changes, not only in the arrangement of the White House, but in the manner in which the social and personal affairs have been conducted and the forms and procedures for entertainment.

It was the custom for many years, from the Theodore Roosevelt administration, especially, for the President and his wife to be assisted in receiving at state affairs by the members of the official family circle. The receiving line in those days reached from one door of the blue room to the other with the Vice President's wife and the Cabinet ladies all standing in line with their husbands "behind the line" in the blue room. Mrs. Roosevelt did not shake hands but carried flowers instead. This long row of official ladies in the receiving line was a feature also of the Wilson administration. President and Mrs. Harding also had an assisting receiving line.

President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge received alone although at the evening receptions in honor of the officials of the various branches of the Government they had the ranking official and his wife assist them.

Hardings' Drastic Changes.

President and Mrs. Harding made great changes in the entertaining proceedings of the White House, one of the most drastic being the elimination of the serving of the buffet supper at the formal state receptions, a custom which had endured for many administrations. They used the state dining room for special guests to be marshaled into line in order to pass through the red room to the blue room to be received. Soon all the lines of guests were directed through the state dining room, and the very special guests passing through the red room to get into line.

All the recent Presidents and their wives have made it a custom to shake hands at both large and small formal entertainments at the White House although President and Mrs. Hoover did not always follow this custom when large delegations and organizations were received in the day time. One New Year's Day, Mrs. Harding's white gloves became very soiled and open at the seams from shaking hands with so many of the American public. The gloves worn by handshaking first ladies at large receptions are usually useless when the reception is over, being beyond cleaning or mending. President and Mrs. Hoover have made it a habit, with a few exceptions, to receive without any assistants.

Group Seating of Guests.

One of the important innovations of the Hoover administration was the custom inaugurated by Mrs. Hoover of having her guests seated in groups about the room of the White House grounds after they had been formally received so that she could move from one to another to have a little chat with them. This system met with wide approval among those who have been used to being received at the White House and rather regretted that the most they could see of the Lady of the White House was a cordial handclasp and smile when they must pass on down the line, stand about and chat with the guests, have a cup of tea or other refreshments and then leave with just another backward glance to see their hostess once more. Mrs. Hoover also entertained more "upstairs" in the White House than any other recent First Ladies, giving those interested in such matters a chance to see the second floor of the White House.

The establishment of a State Department official in charge of ceremonials at the White House was an innovation of Mrs. Coolidge and has been continued through the Hoover administration. This was really more of a revival than an innovation, for Mrs. James Madison had something of this type of official in Jean Pierre Sioussant, who had escaped the French revolution and first came to Washington as an employe of the British Minister, Mr. Merry, and who was engaged to be master of ceremonies at the "President's House."

Dancing and Cards Banned.

When Mrs. James Polk came to the White House she made many sweeping changes in the order of things. She banned dancing and the serving of refreshments at White House functions, declaring, "The Executive Mansion is no place for balls." But she had the air of a court about many of these functions. She was an imposing looking woman and when she changed from the simple dresses she wore for her duties as her husband's private secretary she wore very elegant clothes. She received her guests in true regal manner, remaining seated all the time. She never went to public functions and frowned on card playing. But she had a magnetic personality and a never failing gift of repartee which contributed to the interest of the frequenters of the White House.

Of course, Mrs. Polk raised many a storm of protests with her edicts against dancing and cards, for cards were a popular pastime and the people of Washington were used to dancing at the White House levees. But, like Mrs. Rutherford Hayes, who came after her and perhaps garnered some of her courage from Mrs. Polk, she firmly stood her ground.

When Mrs. Hayes came to Washington as mistress of the White House she had been reared a strong temperance woman, but wines had been in use in her family although not served on her table. During the war she always carried liquor to the sick. But Mrs. Hayes maintained that in her own home whether it be the White House or just a private home a woman was absolute mistress and could dictate its policy.

Rebuke for Dry Pleader.

She reserved the right to decline to serve wines or liquor at the White House. But she did not conceal her surprise when the wife of a minister headed a delegation urging her to forbid the use of liquor and wines in the mansion during her regime. She could not and would not dictate the actions of her husband.

"Madame," she is quoted as saying to this minister's wife, "it is my husband and not myself, who is President. I think a man who is capable of filling so important a position, as I believe my husband to be, is quite competent to establish such rules as will obtain in his house without calling on members of other households. I would not offend you, and I would not offend Mr. Hayes, who knows what is due his position, his family and himself without an interference of others directly or through his wife."

But President Hayes agreed to the absolute embargo on the use of wine and lined himself up with his wife as an advocate of total abstinence. This raised quite a storm and even members of his Cabinet begged him to change the ruling for "the honor of the country." Of course, there were lots of cartoons, the best known being that of "Lemonade Lucy."

With so much interest settling about the state of furniture in the oval room on the second floor of the White House just now the innovations Mrs. Millard Fillmore made in the White House are particularly timely. When Mrs. Fillmore came to the White House this room was covered with a straw matting, under which was a most attractive Brussels carpet. This carpet was cleaned and the entire room renovated and in it was established the first White House library, the nucleus of which was $5,000 worth of books, appropriated by Congress and the selection of them left entirely to Mrs. Fillmore's judgment. Mrs. Fillmore also introduced a coal range in the kitchen in place of hooks and cranes in the big fireplace.

Mrs. Patterson's Diary.

One of the most interesting pictures in the White House is the one which bears the inscription "Mrs. Major Van Buren" for Angelica Van Buren, daughter-in-law of President Van Buren, was something of a storm center in the days she reigned as hostess for her father-in-law. The innovations this beautiful young woman installed in the White House were greatly criticized as being the airs and customs of a foreign court. Maj. Van Buren and his wife had been received on intimate terms by the household of Louis Phillippe at St. Cloud and she was received by Queen Victoria with pleasing honors and at other European courts. All invited to the White House went to see Angelica Van Buren seated in an armchair on a raised platform in her long-trained purple velvet gown and three large feathers in her hair.

The dragon of disapproval also bobbed up in that bugaboo of early administrations of having the guests announced as they arrived, a custom inaugurated by Mrs. Madison and smiled or frowned upon ever since. Of course, some form of announcement or introduction is a fixed rule in White House procedure in this era.

Abigail Adams, the wife of the second President, may have used the east room for a place for her servants to hang out the family wash, and there have been a long procession of unique pets and useful animals like cows and sheep in the White House grounds, but one of the unique innovations was the dairy established by Mrs. David Patterson, wife of the United States senator from Tennessee and daughter and hostess for Andrew Johnson.

Mrs. Patterson took as much if not more delight in this dairy than Dolly Madison did in her rose bushes or Mrs. William Howard Taft in the cherry trees or Mrs. Hoover in her out-of-door living room under the magnolia trees.

All the butter used at the White House came from this dairy. Early in the morning Mrs. Patterson, who had elegance enough at formal entertainments, supervised the milk pans. Her modish dress would be covered by a large print apron. Sometimes she showed special friends through her dairy as she would a conservatory, pointing out her shining pans and spotless crocks and letting them taste the flavor of her butter. Just as the White House ladies of today send flowers from the White House conservatory, so did Mrs. Patterson send pans of butter to friends as a White House compliment.

1,500 SCHOOLS HELD IN PERIL OF CLOSING

Association Head Pleads for Federal Aid and 500,000 Jobs.

Chicago, March 5 (A.P.).—Joseph G. Branch, head of the National Association of Schools, in a bulletin to association members, warned today that unless Federal aid were forthcoming that most of the Nation's 15,000 privately-owned schools would be forced to close.

"If the privately-owned schools close," he said, "a half million instructors will join the jobless army which burdened taxpayers are struggling to feed and house.

"Not only will the schools lose their investment in buildings and equipment, but the Government will lose millions of dollars a year, now paid by these institutions in taxes."

Branch said Federal aid would enable the schools to continue their work as a part of the educational system and to work their way out of their difficulties.

A national campaign, he said, was being carried on to enlist the aid of Congress.

Pinchot, With 95 Cents, Caught by Bank Holiday

(Associated Press.)

At least one governor was caught by his own bank holiday proclamation. Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, said last night that when he proclaimed the Saturday-through-Monday holiday in his State he had exactly 95 cents in cash to his name.

The governor, however, still had that amount last night. And his car has enough gasoline to get him back to Harrisburg.

Shoe Shine Proprietor Will Accept I. O. U.'s

Chicago, March 5 (U.P.).—Soon after the banking holiday was declared, Sam Lupin hung up the following sign in the window of his shoe-shining parlor on North Clark street:

"You must still look well groomed. I will accept your I. O. U. for a shoe shine until the banks reopen."

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Much too large to have any use in the ordinary herd, the gigantic cow bells of Bali, in the Dutch East Indies, nevertheless serve their purpose at least once a year when they ring out the old year and ring in the new.

The bells are worn exclusively by the sacred cattle of Bali, of which there are many, and one of the features of the New Year festival is the race between these animals. Each one wears a fancy headdress and each has the disadvantage of wearing an enormous bell tied around its neck.

It is a common experience to find that an iron or steel surface will rust if it is exposed to moisture, and it is also well known that rust is an oxide of iron—but strange as it seems, it takes more than water and oxygen to rust iron. Pure iron, wet with pure water, even in the presence of oxygen, can not rust.

The chemical process of rusting needs some other agent, commonly called an "impurity." This impurity may be the carbon-dioxide in the air, or any of several other minerals found in commercial varieties of iron.

Dr. A. Magruder Macdonald, acting coroner, yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death in the case of Miss Helen Smith, 18-year-old daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Romney Smith, who died Thursday night from injuries suffered December 27 when she fell from a third story window of her apartment at Eighteenth street and Ontario road.

The coroner said the girl had lost her balance when she opened a window after complaining that the room was too hot. She was removed to Walter Reed Hospital, where she was said to have suffered internal injuries and a broken leg.

To the United States Flag Association, incorporated under Federal law nine years ago, belongs the distinction of being the only patriotic society headed by the President of the United States as honorary president general.

$14,000 IN JEWELRY TAKEN FROM CAR OF INAUGURAL VISITORS

Abandoned Auto Is Found Later; $30,000 Reported Lost in Theft Series.

Of the robberies and larcenies, which in cash and loot amounts to nearly $30,000, reported to police yesterday and Saturday, the most outstanding was that of $14,000 worth of jewelry stolen from the car of an inaugural visitor from Philadelphia while it was parked in front of the Capital Park Hotel Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Defoe, from whose car the jewelry was stolen, were on their way to Florida and had timed their trip so that they would be here for the inauguration.

Defoe told police he parked his car, locked it and went to a hotel for dinner. When he came out again the car with the jewelry and a quantity of clothing was gone.

The car was found yesterday afternoon abandoned at Tenth and Pennsylvania avenue northwest by members of the headquarters auto squad, but the jewelry was not recovered.

$1,500 Jewerly Stolen.

Iren Hanranban, of New York City, reported the theft of jewelry valued at $1,500 from her room at a downtown hotel while she was out yesterday.

Other major thefts reported yesterday included that of Frank L. Handley, of Providence, R. I., who explained that his pocket had been picked of $400 while he was in the downtown section.

Jewelry and cash totaling nearly $500 was reported stolen from the rooms of Julius Helford, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Terisa V. Ball, of Rye, N. Y.; Judge Albert C. Hunt, of Oklahoma City; Louis Parisi, of Brooklyn; David Peakoe, of Long Branch, N. J.; Roy Girardan, of Greenville, S. C.; John H. Girbin, of Brooklyn, and William T. Hunt, of Oklahoma City, all of whom were registered at a downtown hotel.

Home Is Entered.

Judge Oscar E. Bland reported that his home at 2950 Macomb street northwest had been entered and loot amounting to $150 stolen.

William J. Roach, of Staten Island, N. Y., told police his pocket had been picked of $40 at a downtown hotel. Police last night were holding Betty E. Cook, 23, of 606 First street northwest, and Ruth G. Bennett, also 23, for investigation in connection with the case.

Frank Chase, a special agent for the United States Immigration Service, reported his room at a hotel was entered while he was asleep and $42 stolen.

David Senet, of New York City, also reported his hotel room had been entered and a diamond pin valued at $150 stolen.

News Dealer Robbed.

Harry Wander, operator of a newsstand at 701 R street northwest, reported to police yesterday that $150 was stolen from his stand. He named a suspect.

Thieves ransacked the home of Edward Morgan at 622 Randolph street northwest, and stole jewelry valued at $300 and family heirlooms of no stated value.

Henry Schultz, of New York City, reported to police yesterday that clothing valued at $50 was stolen from his automobile parked at Eighth and M streets northwest.

Man Looking Up Shaft Is Hurt by Dumbwaiter

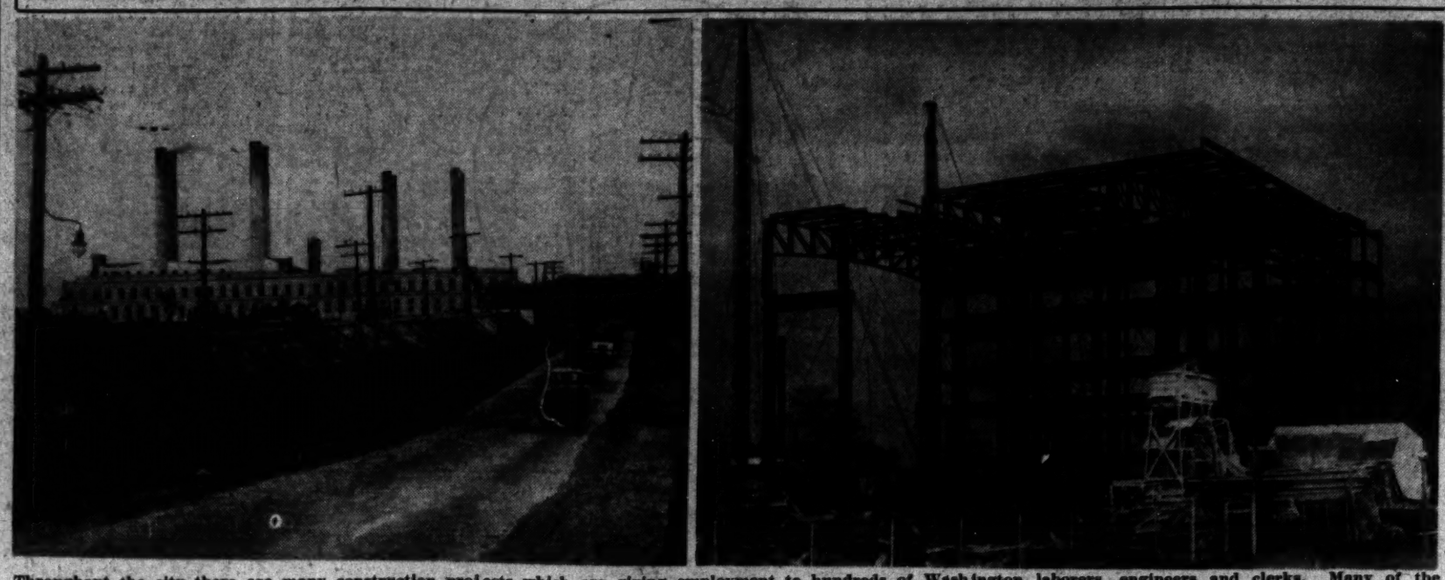
Jobs Provided for Hundreds in Various Construction Projects



Throughout the city there are many construction projects which are giving employment to hundreds of Washington laborers, engineers and clerks. Many of the building programs will extend for several years. Left, a view of the Potomac Electric Power Co. power plant at Benning, which will be removed to Buzzards Point, now undeveloped commercially. This project will take more than two and one-half years and will give employment to a large staff of workers during this period. The new project is shown at right in its present state of construction. The plant when completed will serve the largest part of this city's needs for electric power.

INAUGURAL WAS DRY, VIGILANTE DECLARES

Capt. Gaston Tells Meeting He Saw Only Five Persons "About Half Tight."

Inauguration dry enforcement measures of the Metropolitan Police Department under the direction of Superintendent Ernest W. Brown were praised last night by Capt. Edward Page Gaston, commander of the Vigilantes, at a dry mass meeting at the Waugh M. E. Church.

The inauguration was described as one of the driest and most orderly in the history of the Nation. There was little, if any evidence of drinking, Capt. Gaston said.

He said that during his inaugural activities he saw only "five persons about half tight at the Inaugural Ball, a small percentage when one realizes there were about 5,000 patrons."

After the meeing he said his organization played an important part in the almost total lack of drunkenness.

He closed his address with an outline of the purpose of the Vigilantes and urged the churches of the Nation to strengthen their drive against repeal of the dry laws.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the Women's National Law Enforcement League, told the audience that "both houses of Congress have been fooled as to actual liquor conditions which have been founded on greatly exaggerated, and in many instances carefully fomented, rumors."

She described the fight before the drys as tremendous and said that "never in the history of this Nation have the liquor interests had such a powerful, well-organized, well-financed lobby at the Nation's Capitol as they have today."

Other speakers on the program were John T. Hammond, of Washington, former police chief of Des Moines, Ia., and J. Raymond Schmidt, of the International Reform Federation.

New Quarters Occupied By Catholic Charities

Because of the need for more space, engendered by present conditions and also as an economy movement, the Catholic Charities, formerly located in the Homer Building, have moved headquarters to 601 Z street northwest, and are now settled in their new location. The building was formerly occupied by the Catholic Daughters of America.

In addition to the Catholic Charities, the National Conference of Catholic Charities will also make its headquarters in this building.

Three Dentists Robbed Of Gold Worth $180

Three dentists at the Columbia Medical Building discovered that their offices had been entered yesterday and dental gold was missing.

INAUGURAL VISITORS SUPPLIED WITH CASH

Capital Hotels Report They Had Little Trouble About Checks.

Most of the inaugural visitors came to Washington prepared to pay hotel bills and other expenses in cash instead of by check, leading Washington hotel managers revealed last night. Cases where guests were unable to pay in cash were not numerous, they said, though at one hotel it was necessary for the management to advance funds for transportation to a number of patrons.

A decision not to cash checks on out-of-the city banks was made Friday by the Hotel Association of the District, due to the unsettled banking conditions throughout the country. At the Shoreham Hotel, it was said, checks covering hotel bills only are being accepted. This same policy is being used by several other members of the hotel group.

At the Willard Hotel guests who are unable to pay in cash are being allowed to "charge it," leaving with the agreement that they would wire the money on arrival home, and in some cases the management of the hotel is advancing guests cash for transportation.

The Mayflower Hotel is accepting wire drafts up to $100 and in some cases accepting checks from well-known guests. The Washington Hotel has had little difficulty in handling the situation, nor did the Wardman Park Hotel. The Powhatan Hotel management were accepting a few checks, they said, and were helping regular guests at the hotel to meet their obligations.

At a few of the hotels the management reported that no checks at all were being accepted. The Raleigh, like the Mayflower, accepted wire drafts up to $100.

Man Facing Trial For Bus Assault

Passenger Struck Driver When Told to Move, Is Charge.

A 23-year-old Negro was under arrest in Arlington County Jail last night on a charge of assault on Roy Edwards, an interurban bus driver, because the latter ordered him to move back of the vehicle in compliance with the "Jim Crow" law.

Miller Brockett, 28, of Halls Hill, will be given a hearing in Arlington Police Court this morning. Brockett was arrested by County Policeman Raymond Crack.

Edwards ordered Brockett to the rear of the bus after it had crossed the Key Bridge into Virginia. When the bus reached the Halls Hill stop, Brockett allegedly struck Edwards and fled. Several passengers pursued him, but he escaped for the time being.

Where quotas are exceeded the excess applicants will be placed on a preferred waiting list until backward counties are given opportunity to fill their quotas, after which camp orders will be issued according to the priority of application.

Camps will be conducted for 30 days, opening on July 11, at the following posts: Forts Howard, George G. Meade, Hoyle and Washington in Maryland; Fort Monroe and Fort Myer, Va.

Age requirements for the four courses are: Basic, 17 to 24; Red, 17 to 25; White, 18 to 28, and Blue, 19 to 29. # GIRL, 18, IS KILLED, LAWYER INJURED IN CRASH NEAR CIRCLE

James K. Hughes Seriously Hurt as His Companion in Auto Expires.

Miss Juanita Montgomery, 18, of the Westchester Apartments, was fatally injured and James K. Hughes, 22, Washington attorney, was seriously hurt when a car driven by the latter overturned near Sheridan Circle about 5 a. m. yesterday.

The young woman, who, police said, was a cousin of Hughes, who also lives at the Westchester, died at Emergency Hospital several hours after the accident. Hughes was released after being treated for lacerations about the head.

Later in the morning the young attorney complained of pains in his head and talked confusedly, police learned. Relatives took him to Garfield Hospital, where it was said his skull was possibly fractured and that he had concussion of the brain.

Police said they believed the mishap occurred when Hughes swerved suddenly to avoid striking another car. The injured man is a brother of Denny Hughes, also an attorney, and of Detective Sergt. Van D. Hughes, of the Metropolitan Police Department.
